Relief Veterinary Registry

The AVMA, for the benefit of its members, maintains a file of veterinarians who have asked to be listed as relief veterinarians licensed and available in each state. That information is available by mail or telephone to veterinarians and others (widows etc.) who are seeking to hire veterinarians in relief or other temporary employment capacity.

Relief veterinarians are encouraged to advise us of their availability so that our files may be expanded. If you are already listed and your situation has changed, please inform us. We need the following information:

Name, complete address, and telephone number
States where you are currently licensed and available for relief work
Type of practice sought (small animal, food animal, equine, etc.)

Prospective employees seeking relief veterinarians should write: Relief Veterinarian Registry, American Veterinary Medical Association, 930 North Meacham Road, Schaumburg, Illinois 60196, or call 1-800-233-2862 (Illinois); 1-800-248-2862 (Outside Illinois).

FOOTNOTES TO REFERENCE NOS. IN COLUMN HEADINGS

[1] The association year begins after the end of the last annual meeting.

[2] A name shown in parentheses indicates the re-election of the officer or the selection of the person to continue in the office; if in brackets, the person continued in office for another association year because no annual meeting of the association was convened.

[3] The early chairpersons of the Comitia Minora are not known.

[4] The combination of offices of Secretary and Editor provided for the initial central Office of the Association (Detroit) in January 1923. Earlier, the association records and editorial materials were kept at the home residences of Secretaries and Editors, although for many years, a Librarian was elected to keep the records.

[5] The Association established the American Veterinary Review as its house organ, first published in january 1877, and later relinquished its ownership by gift to the Editor. in October 1915, the American Veterinary Review was purchased and renamed the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

[6] The listing does not include the semi-annual meetings of the USVMA held between 1864 (January 19, first) and 1889 (March 19, last).

[7] The expression "designated serial No." of the Annual Meetings is used because the Association refers to the "-Annual Meeting" in official announcements and publications. There were no annual meetings in 1874 (11th), 1914 (51st), and 1945 (82nd, executive and legislative sessions only). The 12th Annual Meeting in 1875 would have been more correctly termed the 12th anniversary meeting.

[8] The Annual Meeting dates beginning in the 1930s are different from those shown in the older AVMA Directories and the usual published announcements in order to improve their usefulness to the membership. The original dates marked the start of the Annual Meeting in terms of the day of the first full-convention business session, the day of the ceremonial "opening" or "plenary" session, or the first day of sectional or scientific sessions and opening of the exhibition area. These original dates do not reflect the dates of the business transactions of the Association, however, Thus, the original dates are retained in the present table, but are amended with meeting dates of the AVMA House of Delegates (successor to the AVMA House of Representatives) shown with the asterisk (first meeting August 15-16, 1934; T.E. Munice, chairperson).

CENTRAL OFFICE LOCATIONS OF AVMA

Since 1975, AVMA has operated from its own 20,000 square foot office building in Schaumburg, Illinois. Earlier, the Association used leased office space in Detroit (1923 to 1932) and Chicago (1932-1975). The Chicago office locations were 1230 Washington Boulevard (Prairie Farmer Building, 1932-1933); 221 North LaSalle Street (LaSalle-Wacker Building, 1933-1940); and 600 South Michigan Avenue (Fairbanks-Morse Building, 1940-1975).

AVMA decided in 1970 to construct its own office building and on July 6, 1973 broke ground for the present office in suburban Schaumburg. The Association moved into the building on February 28, 1975.

In 1953, the AVMA's legislative-liaison office was established in Washington, D.C. It moved from its first leased office at 1507 M Street NW to the present leased space at 1522 K Street NW in 1966.

[1] The sixteen-year interval between the third and fourth Congresses was caused by the Franco-Prussian War and unsettled conditions in Europe following it.

[2] The tenth Congress had to adjourn after the first day because of the outbreak of World War 1. There was then another sixteen-year interval before the eleventh Congress was held.

[3] The eleven-year interval between the thirteenth and fourteenth Congresses was caused by the outbreak of World War 11, the fourteenth having been scheduled for Berlin in 1942.

The name of such affiliated organization shall be "The (name of college or school) Student Chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association."

PRINCIPLES OF VETERINARY MEDICAL ETHICS OPINIONS AND REPORTS OF THE JUDICIAL COUNCIL

(1987 Revision)

Section 1: Introduction

The document that provides for the regulation of professional behavior of veterinarians in the United States in the Principles of Veterinary Medical Ethics. Adopted in 1960, the Principles replaced the 1940 Code of Veterinary Medical Ethics and the 1952 edition of the Principles, both of which lacked specificity and were regarded by many veterinarians as a guide to etiquette rather than statements of principles. Those who had to interpret and enforce the 1940 Code and the 1952 Principles were constantly faced with the task of rendering opinions on individual questions where those documents were not specific, so the Judicial Council, soon after it was formed in 1958, set about drafting a simple, understandable set of ethical principles. The House of Delegates adopted the final document in 1960. In 1983, the Principles were revised to reflect fundamental concepts and guidelines.

To the 1960 Principles, the Council appended rulings and interpretations to help members and ethics committees attain full understanding of the new concept of setting forth ethical principles. Nevertheless, interpretation and application of the new Principles raised many questions, so the Council has subsequently issued a number of specific and clarifying annotations. With adoption of new advertising regulations by the House of Delegates in 1978, the Judicial Council prepared this new edition of the annotated Principles.

In dealing with questions of ethics, a committee on veterinary medical ethics must attempt to interpret the spirit and intent of the Principles, but it is the incorporated annotations that most often serve as the basis for resolving specific problems.

Relationship of Local, State, and National Associations on the Matter of Ethics

Ideally, all questions of ethical behavior on the part of a veterinarian should be considered and dealt with by the local association's ethics or grievance committee, the members of which should be familiar with local customs and circumstances and are in a position to talk to all parties concerned. In some instances, a solution at the local level may be impossible and referral to the ethics committee of the state association may be advisable. Occasionally, a problem not resolved at either local or state levels should be considered by the AVMA Judicial Council, but the Council should not be used by ethics committees as a means of avoiding disagreeable tasks. Nor should the Council be saddled with handling of minutiae. Having issued annotations, it should be left free to deal with such broader problems as admission and dismissal of AVMA members, interpretation of the Constitution and Bylaws and the Principles of Veterinary Medical Ethics, study of professional conditions, and preparation of annotations.

It's Attitude That Counts

The Principles of Veterinary Medical Ethics are purposely constructed in a general and broad manner, but veterinarians who accept the Golden Rule as a guide for general conduct and make a reasonable effort to abide by the Principles of Veterinary Medical Ethics in professional life will have little difficulty with ethics. Those whose aggressiveness and promotional tendencies cause them to run afoul of the Principles would probably have the same difficulty under more specific rules.

Purportedly, veterinary medicine is an ennobling profession. The Principles light the path to that ennoblement.

Principles of Veterinary Medical Ethics

Briefly stated, our code of ethics is the foundation of our individual and collective efforts. It is based on the Golden Rule.

Part 1 - The principal objectives of the veterinary profession are to render service to society, to conserve our livestock resources, and to prevent and relieve suffering of animals. Veterinarians should conduct themselves in relation to the public, their colleagues and their patients, and the allied professions, so as to merit their full confidence and respect.

Part 2 - Veterinarians may choose whom they will serve. Once they have undertaken care of a patient they must not neglect the patient. In an emergency, however, they should render service to the best of their ability. They should not solicit clients, nor announce fees and services in such a manner as to be misleading, fraudulent, or deceptive.

Part 3 - Veterinarians should not employ professional knowledge and attainments nor dispose of services under terms and conditions which tend to interfere with the free exercise of judgment and skill or tend to cause a deterioration of the quality of veterinary service.

Part 4 - Veterinarians should strive continually to improve veterinary knowledge and skill, making available to their colleagues the benefit of their professional attainments, and seeking, through consultation, assistance of others when it appears that the quality of veterinary service may be enhanced thereby.

Part 5 - The veterinary profession should safeguard the public and itself against veterinarians deficient in moral character or professional competence. Veterinarians should observe all laws, uphold the honor and dignity of the profession, and accept its self-imposed discipline.

Part 6 - The responsibilities of the veterinary profession extend not only to the patient but also to society. The health of the community as well as the patient deserves the veterinarian's interest and participation in nonprofessional activities and organizations.

Section 2: Fundamental Concepts

The honor and dignity of our profession lie in our obedience to a just and reasonable code of ethics set forth as a guide to the members. The object of this code, however, is more far-reaching, for exemplary professional conduct not only upholds honor and dignity, but also enlarges our sphere of usefulness, exalts our social standards and promotes the science we cultivate. Briefly stated, our code of ethics is the foundation of our individual and collective efforts. It is based on the Golden Rule.

It is the solemn duty of all members of the Association to deport themselves in accordance with the spirit of this code.

This code is not intended to cover the entire field of veterinary medical ethics. Professional life is too complex to classify one's duties and obligations to clients, colleagues, and fellow citizens into a set of rules.

Deportment

Members shall not use a college degree to which they are not entitled or any degree or title granted by an institution declared unworthy by contemporary institutions of its class.

No member shall belittle or injure the professional standing of another member of the profession or unnecessarily condemn the character of that person's professional acts.

Frauds

Members of the Association shall avoid the impropriety of employing questionable methods to attract public attention.

When employed by the buyer to inspect an animal for soundness, it is unethical to accept a fee from the seller. The acceptance of such a fee is prima facie evidence of fraud. On the other hand, it is deemed unethical to criticize unfairly an animal about to be sold. The veterinarian's duty in this connection is to be a just and honest referee.

When veterinarians know that surgery has been requested with intent to deceive a third party, they will have engaged in an unethical practice if they perform or participate in the operation.

Guarantee Cures

It is unethical to guarantee a cure.

Secret Remedies

It is unethical and unprofessional for veterinarians to promote, sell, prescribe, or use any product the ingredient formula of which has not been revealed to them.

Genetic Defects

Performance of surgical procedures in all species for the purpose of concealing genetic defects in animals to be shown, raced, bred, or sold as breeding animals is unethical. However, should the health or welfare of the individual patient require correction of such genetic defects, it is recommended that the patient be rendered incapable of reproduction.

Alliance with Unqualified Persons

No member shall willfully place professional knowledge, attainments, or services at the disposal of any lay body, organization, group or individual by whatever name called, or however organized, for the purpose of encouraging unqualified groups and individuals to diagnose and prescribe for the ailments and diseases of animals. Such conduct is especially reprehensible when it is done to promote commercial interests and monetary gain. Such deportment is beneath the dignity of professional ethics and practice; it can be harmful to both the welfare of the animal-owning public and the veterinary profession; it violates principles of humane animal care; it may cause great economic loss and endanger public health and is, therefore, contrary to sound public policy.

Commissions, Rebates, or Kickbacks

It is unethical for a veterinarian to solicit or accept a commission, rebate, or kickback in connection with a recommendation of, or referral of a client to, purveyors of merchandise or services such as dog food, cremation or burial services, caskets, urns, insurance, breeding stock, and livestock supplies.

Testimonials and Endorsements

It is appropriate for AVMA members to report the results of properly controlled experiments of clinical studies, such reports to be publicized through scientific journals or scientific meetings of professional associations. However, testimonials and endorsements by members of the AVMA pertaining to veterinary products, veterinary services, or veterinary equipment shall comply with the following requirements:

a) Endorsaments may not contain any representations which can not be substantiated by the advertiser.

b) Where the endorsement represents that the endorser uses the endorsed product, the endorser must be a bona fide user of the product.

c) There must be adequate substantiation that the endorser's experience with the product is representative of what consumers will generally achieve with the advertised product in actual conditions of use.

d) An expert endorser's qualifications must in fact give him the expertise that he is represented as possessing with respect to the endorsement.

e) An expert's endorsement must be supported by an actual exercise of his expertise in evaluating product features or characteristics with respect to which he is expert, including an examination or testing of the product at least as extensive as someone with the same degree of expertise would normally need to conduct to support the conclusions presented in the endorsement.

f) Where there exists a connection between the endorser and the seller of the advertised product which might materially affect the weight or credibility of the endorsement, such connection must be fully disclosed.

No member or employee of the American Veterinary Medical Association shall use the name of the Association in connection with the promotion or advertising of any commercial product or commercial service, or in any way that would imply American Veterinary Medical Association endorsement of such a product or service, without written permission from the Board of Governors or the Executive Board.

The allying of any veterinarian with a private kennel for the purpose of lending a name either in fact or by inference, in order for the kennel to advertise "under veterinary supervision," would perforce be considered unethical.

Consultations

When a fellow practitioner or diagnostic, research, or laboratory veterinarian is called into consultation by the attending veterinarians, findings and discussions with the client shall be handled in such a manner as to avoid criticism of the attending veterinarian by the client.

Consultants shall not revisit the patient or client or communicate directly with the client without the knowledge of the attending veterinarian.

Diagnostic, research, and laboratory veterinarians in the role of consultants shall deport themselves in the same manner as fellow practitioners whether they are private, commercial, or public functionaries.

In no instance and under no circumstances shall a consultant take charge of a case or problem without the consent of all concerned.

Definitions of Professional and Nonprofessional Products

A professional product is one in which professional veterinary knowledge is indicated whether in the administration of or in the giving of instructions for the safe, proper, and prudent use of the product. Professional veterinary products include, but are not limited to biologicals, pharmaceuticals, parasiticides, and prescription diets.

A nonprofessional product is one that is considered safe for use by the public, without professional instruction. Such products include, but are not limited to, nonprescription commercial diet foods, grooming aids, and restraint equipment.

Dispensing Versus Merchandising

Dispensing has been interpreted to mean providing veterinary products for lay use, only on the supposition that the veterinarian has had knowledge of the particular case or general conditions which apply to the particular farm or kennel. In the veterinarians's office it becomes the distributing of professional veterinary products by virtue of verbal information presented by the owner, as an adjunct to the knowledge gained previously by the practitioner. This is in contrast to the written prescription as a service by the pharmacist.

Merchandising is buying and selling of professional veterinary products without due consideration for the patient receiving such products.

Merchandising by the veterinary profession is unethical.

Sale of Ethical Veterinary Products and Veterinary Prescription Drugs

Commercial firms that have a policy of sales to veterinarians only are known as "ethical" firms and their products as "ethical" products. Such a sales policy has no legal basis and therefore has no legal protection. However, many veterinarians prefer to use the socalled "ethical" products and believe that the sales policy should be respected by the profession.

It is unethical for veterinarians to use their names or permit the use of their names in connection with the purchase of "ethical" products for resale by a commercial distributor to animal owners. It is also unethical for veterinarians to arrange with a commercial distributor to mail prescription drugs directly to animal owners without examining the affected animals and making a diagnosis.

Fees for Service

In determining fees for services rendered, the veterinarian may be expected to consider the nature of the condition, the time, the expense of other resources applicable to the case, and the client's ability to pay.

It is unethical for a veterinarian to participate in fee splitting and rebating or to accept or pay a fee in connection with referrals.

It is not permissible for a veterinary association to take any action which would have the effect of coercing, pressuring or achieving agreement among veterinarians to conform to fixed fees or a fee schedule.

When a veterinarian agrees to provide veterinary services, the quality of service must be maintained at the usual high professional level, regardless of the fees charged, if any.

Compliance with Law

Members shall comply with the common law governing their obligations to their clients and shall obey, without obvious fault, the official public relations and laws governing their acts.

The issuing of false certificates of health on official documents is unethical and noncompliance with official regulations that the veterinarian is entrusted to enforce is deemed a violation of professional honesty.

The records of a veterinary facility are the sole property of that facility, and when a veterinarian leaves salaried employment therein, the departing veterinarian shall not copy, remove, or make any subsequent use of those records.

Members of the Association shall not indulge in illegal practices, such as practicing without procuring a license or teaching others to do so in violation of the laws governing the practice of veterinary medicine.

It is the duty of members of the Association to report illegal practices to the proper authorities and to report such practices by members of the Association to the Executive Board.

Advertising Regulations

Advertising means newspaper, magazine, and periodical announcements and listings; professional cards, professional announcement cards; office and other signs; letterheads; telephone and other directory listings; and any other form of communication designed to inform the general public about the availability, nature, or prices of products or services or to attract clients.

Solicitation means advertising intentionally directed to specific individuals.

Written solicitation is permissible provided it does not exert undue influence, pressure for immediate response, intimidation, or overreaching. Oral or in-person solicitation, although permissible with the foregoing caveats, is nevertheless undesirable because its very nature provides no evidence that can be examined by a regulatory body.

A veterinarian shall not on behalf of himself, his partner, his associate, or any other veterinarian use or participate in the use of, any form of advertising or solicitation which contains a false, deceptive, or misleading statement or claim.

A false, deceptive, or misleading statement or claim includes, without limitation, a statement or claim which:

1) contains a prediction of future success or guarantees that satisfaction or a cure will result from the performance or professional services;

2) contains a testimonial about or endorsement of a veterinarian or a combination of a veterinarian's name or photograph and identify as a veterinarian as part of a testimonial, endorsement, or sales promotion or a nonveterinarian product or service, to the extent that the testimonial or endorsement represents implicitly or explicitly that the endorser's knowledge as a veterinarian give him or her expertise with respect to any feature or characteristic of the nonveterinary product or service, except that this prohibition does not apply to endorsements of valid, nonprofit, charitable organizations whose purpose is to promote veterinary medicine and animal health, provided that such organizations have been recommended for endorsement by a state veterinary association;

3) refers to secret methods of treatment or special services which characterize the ways of a charlatan;

4) concerns illegal transactions;

5) is not identified as a paid advertisement or solicitation unless it is apparent from the context that it is a paid advertisement or solicitation;

6) contains statistical data or other information based on past performance or case reports;

7) contains a statement of opinion as to the quality of professional services or a representation regarding the quality of professional services which is not susceptible of verification to the public;

8) states or implies that a veterinarian is a certified or recognized specialist unless the veterinarian is board certified in such specialty;

9) is intended or is likely to create an inflated or unjustified expectation;

10) contains a material misrepresentation of fact;

11) omits to state any material fact necessary to make the statement not misleading in light of the circumstances under which it is made;

12) would result in the violation of any law or regulation or a contractual or other obligation of any person through whom the veterinarian seeks to communicate;

13) contains a representation or implication that is likely to cause an ordinary prudent layperson to misunderstand or be deceived or fails to contain reasonable warnings or disclaimers necessary to make a representation or implication not deceptive; or

14) relates to professional fees other than: (a) a statement of the fixed fee charged for a specific professional service, provided that the description of such service would not be misunderstood or be deceptive and that the statement indicates whether additional fees may be incurred for related professional services which may be required in individual cases; (b) a statement of the range of fees for specifically described professional services, provided that there is reasonable disclosure of all relevant variables and considerations affecting the fees so that the statement would not be misunderstood or be deceptive, including, without limitation, an indication whether additional fees may be incurred for related professional services which may be required in individual cases.

In advertising by veterinarians, the unqualified use of terms such as "$20 and up" or "$20 to $30" is in violation of AVMA's Advertising Regulations which state that a statement of the range of fees for specifically described professional services must include reasonable disclosure of all relevant variables and causes affecting the fees so that the statement will not be misunderstood or be deceptive. Such statements about fees must also indicate whether additional fees may be incurred for related professional services which may be required in individual cases. Advertising of discounts and discounted fees is considered unprofessional.

Section 3:
Guidelines for Professional Conduct

Principles Applicable to All

The Principles are intended to aid veterinarians individually and collectively in maintaining a high level of ethical conduct.

The ethical principles governing a group, clinic, partnership, or association shall be exactly the same as shall apply to the individuals. They are not laws, but standards by which an individual may determine the propriety of conduct in relationship with clients, colleagues, and with the public.

1) Conduct characterizing a high standard of correct behavior is expected of all members of the profession.

2) Veterinarians should first of all be good citizens and leaders in movements to advance community welfare. They should commit no act that will reflect unfavorably upon the worthiness of their profession.

3) That all component associations that have not done so, adopt the AVMA Principles or a similar code of ethics, and all associations appoint on active committee on ethics.

4) That all state associations endeavor to include in the programs of their state meetings, a paper or discussion on professional ethics.

5) That since a good many violations of the Principles have been observed during the first year of practice, it is suggested that the teaching of ethics and professional morals be intensified in the schools.

6) That the Principles be given a thorough study with a view to clarification of certain sections and amendments to strengthen it.

7) That a more determined effort be made to enforce the Principles in their entirety.

Consultations

Consultations should be conducted in such a spirit of professional cooperation between consultant and attendant veterinarian as to assure the client's confidence in veterinary medicine.

When in the course of authorized official duty it is necessary for a veterinarian to render service in the field of another veterinarian, it will be considered unethical to offer free or compensated service or advice other than that which comes strictly within the scope of the official duty.

Therapy, Determination of Determination of therapy must not be relegated to secondary consideration with remuneration to the veterinarian being the primary interest. The veterinarian's obligation to uphold the dignity and honor of the profession precludes entering into an arrangement whereby, through commission or rebates, judgment on choice of treatment would be influenced by considerations other than needs of the patient, welfare of the client, or safety to the public.

Displays In Waiting Rooms

It is permissable to display professional veterinary products in the waiting room. The display of nonprofessional products is undesirable, but is permissible if such nonprofessional products are generally unavailable or are difficult to obtain in the general vicinity of the client being served.

Commercial Use of Reprints

In the handling of reprints of scientific articles by industrial firms, the firm should obtain the publisher's and author's consent prior to distribution of reprints, and that the publisher in granting permission for a firm to make or distribute reprints should stipulate that the reprint is to remain unchanged, entirely separate, and without any overprint or promotional attachments.

Boarding Kennels

A commercial boarding kennel may be owned by a veterinarian but should not be operated under the veterinarian's name, and the telephone number should be separate from that used by the veterinarian in the conduct of the practice. Persons answering the boarding kennel telephone should not answer by giving the name of the veterinarian or the hospital.

Drugs, Practitioner's Responsibility In The Choice of

Practitioners of veterinary medicine, in common with practitioners in other branches of medicine, are fully responsible for their actions with respect to a patient from the time they accept the case until it is released from their care. In the choice of drugs, biologics, or other treatments, they are expected to use their professional judgment in the interests of the patient, based upon their knowledge of the condition, the probably effects of the treatment, and the available scientific evidence which may affect these decisions. If the preponderance of professional judgment is, or seems to be, contrary to theirs, the burden upon the practitioners to sustain their judgment becomes heavier. Nevertheless, the judgment is theirs and theirs alone.

Policy Pertaining to Corporate Ownership and Management of Veterinary Practices

Veterinarians' participation with other persons in corporations and associations can be divided into three categories. First, professional organizations may be formed in order that their members may practice veterinary medicine. The AVMA believes that the public interest will be served best when decisions affecting the care and treatment of animal patients are made by veterinarians. Having obtained extensive professional education and training, only veterinarians are competent to diagnose disorders and to analyze each patient's complete health requirements. Therefore, the AVMA recommends that the exercise of professional veterinary judgment and skill be governed by veterinarians rather than by nonveterinarians. Superior veterinary medical care is most likely to result when veterinarians in professional corporations, associations, or partnerships retain full control over all professional veterinary judgments.

Second, veterinarians may join organizations created merely to own equipment or the physical assets of a veterinary hospital or to perform business functions. For example, veterinarians may lease a hospital or obtain accounting services from a nonveterinary organization. Since this kind of joint enterprise does not determine the professional treatment which animal patients receive, the public interest will not be jeopardized.

Third, veterinarians, on behalf of nonveterinary corporations, may, wherever permitted by individual state laws, render veterinary services to the public or to such corporations. Because the principal officers, directors, and executives of such organizations may not be veterinarians, veterinarians who practice for such organizations must be especially vigilant in ensuring that their professional veterinary judgments and responsibilities are neither influenced nor controlled by such nonveterinary individuals to the detriment of the animal patient. Regardless of the setting in which veterinary medicine is practiced, veterinarians must always maintain the quality of veterinary care at the usual high professional level.

Since the preceding three types of joint veterinary organizations are sometimes combined, the AVMA recommends that veterinarians be particularly careful to distinguish between enterprises which merely supply ancillary services and organizations which attempt to influence veterinarians' professional responsibilities. So that all animal patients will secure the best medical care, veterinarians should retain full control over the exercise of professional veterinary judgment and skill in corporations whose members or personnel practice veterinary medicine. Only in this way will the present high professional standards be maintained and will the welfare of the animal patients remain the principal concern of veterinarians.

Redemption Coupons

Participation by veterinarians in coupon redemption schemes may be regarded as endorsement of or testimonial for a commercial product and is unprofessional.

Certificates or Diplomas, Continuing Education, Display of

Since the display of continuing education course certificates or diplomas might lead the public to infer that the veterinarian to whom they are issued is a specialist in the specific subject matter, the public display of such documents is unprofessional.

Emergency Service

Every practitioner has a moral and ethical responsibility to provide service when because of accidents or other emergencies involving animals it is necessary to save life or relieve suffering. Inasmuch as the veterinarian cannot always be available to provide this service, the veterinarian has an obligation to join with colleagues in the area to see that emergency services are provided consistent with the needs of the locality.

Pet Cemeteries and Pet Crematoriums, Veterinary Ownership-Operation of

The ethical aspects of ownership-operation of pet cemeteries or crematoriums by veterinarians should not be significantly different from the veterinarian's involvement in other nonveterinary business activities such as pet shops, boarding kennels, and feed mills. Ideally, the enterprise should be a business entity completely separated from the veterinary practice, with the telephone number, the telephone directory listing, the name of the enterprise, and the mailing address indicating no connection with a veterinary hospital, and with separate business records.

The veterinarian who does not own or operate a cemetery or crematorium as a separate business but does provide such service on request should in no way announce or advertise the service.

The veterinarian who renders a disposal, burial, or cremation service should take special care to avoid the impression that veterinarians are caretakers of the quick and the dead. There is potential for unfavorable public relations and questions of ethics when the healer is in a position to profit from the disposition of deceased patients.

Inasmuch as the pet-owning public views burial and cremation in terms of human reference, these services, when rendered for pet animals, should be fully explained so that the differences, if any, will be understood and the client will not be deceived. For example, if the burial of a client's pet does not include a roughbox or casket, a stone marker, title to the plot of land, and perpetual care, the absence of those details should be clearly stated, preferably in writing.

Professional Relationships with New Clients

Great potential for the development of poor client-veterinarian relationships occurs when a dissatisfied animal owner takes the initiative of going from one veterinarian to another without referral. The second veterinarian's careless or ill-considered comments could even result in a lawsuit against a colleague.

The following suggestions are offered for consideration by veterinarians in dealing with clients with whom they are not acquainted or for whom they have not previously rendered service:

Conduct yourself in word and action as if the patient had been referred to you by a colleague. Try to ascertain by careful questioning whether the client has consulted another veterinarian and if so the veterinarian's name, diagnosis and treatment. It may be advisable to contact the previous veterinarian in order to ascertain the diagnosis and treatment before telling the client how you plan to handle the case.

Describe your diagnosis and intended treatment carefully so that the client will be generally satisfied with the professional contacts.

Consider the advisability of notifying the previous veterinarian(s) of your diagnosis and therapy.

Handle new clients, their sick animals, and the veterinarians they have consulted previously in a manner consistent with the Golden Rule. To criticize or disparage another veterinarian's service to a client is unethical. If your colleague's actions reflect professional incompetence or neglect or abuse of the patient, call it to your colleague's attention and, if appropriate, to the attention of officers or practice committees of the local or state veterinary associations or the proper regulatory agency.

You may refuse to accept a client or patient but do not do so solely on the basis that the client had previously contacted another veterinarian.

If for any reason a client requests referral to another veterinarian or veterinary institution, the attending veterinarian should be willing to honor the request and to facilitate the necessary arrangements.

It should also be recognized that the first veterinarian to handle the case has an obligation to other veterinarians that the client may choose to consult about the same case. The first veterinarian should readily withdraw from the case, indicating the circumstances on the records, and should be willing to forward copies of the medical records to other veterinarians who request them.

Vaccination Clinics

Definition: The term vaccination clinics applies to either privately or publicly supported activities in which veterinarians are engaged in mass immunization of pet animals. Usually, animals are brought in to points of assembly by their owners or caretakers in response to a notification that immunization services will be available. Characteristically, these clinics do not provide the opportunity for the participating veterinarians to (1) conduct a physical examination of the individual animals to be immunized, (2) obtain a history of past immunization or prior diseases, or (3) advise individual owners on follow-up immunization and health care.

Scientific and Technical Considerations - Rabies vaccination for the purpose of protecting the public health may be achieved in a rabies vaccination clinic.

When the primary objective is to protect the animal patient's health, clinical examination of the patient including proper history taking, is an essential and necessary part of a professionally acceptable immunization procedure.

Such a clinical examination is expected to be provided without regard to where the vaccination procedure is performed.

Humane Organizations and Spay and Neuter Clinics: Examination and Surgical Sterilization of Pets

A veterinarian should at all times exercise individual judgment in deciding whether to undertake the care of any particular patient, regardless of whether the patient is referred by a humane organization, a spay and neuter clinic, or others. The fees, if any, charged by a veterinarian as a result of any such referral are likewise a matter for individual judgment.

Diagnostic Clinics, Guidelines for Conducting

The problems that have arisen when specialists go into communities to conduct diagnostic clinics under sponsorship of breed associations, sometimes with animosity developing between the specialists and local veterinary practitioners, could be largely avoided if the following guidelines were applied. In proposing these guidelines, the Judicial Council recognized that the clinic approach has shortcomings.

1) Animals should be examined in the favorable environment of a properly equipped veterinary facility where adequate equipment is available and ample time can be taken for anamnesis and subsequent discussion between the specialist and the owner.

2) A diagnostic clinic should be jointly sponsored by a breed association and a local veterinary association.

3) Pertinent information should be recorded for every animal examined at the clinic.

4) Results of the examination should be sent in duplicate to the animal owner by the sponsoring organization, so that the owner may give a copy at the owner's discretion to the veterinarian.

Veterinarian-Client Relationships

The ethical ideals of the veterinary profession imply that a doctor of veterinary medicine and the veterinarian's staff will protect the personal privacy of clients, unless the veterinarian is required, by law, to reveal the confidences or unless it becomes necessary in order to protect the health and welfare of the individual, the animals, and/or others whose health and welfare may be endangered.

Press Relations

Members are encouraged to write articles for the local press announcing the presence of contagious or other important diseases and their seasonal prevention or treatment, provided the motive is a bona fide attempt to protect the health and welfare of animals and the public, rather than personal gain.

RULES OF DISCIPLINARY PROCEDURES OF THE AVMA

This 1975 version of the "Rules of Disciplinary Procedures" was prepared by the Judicial Council in order to make the document consistent with the AVMA's Bylaws and to clarify certain passages. The Executive Board concurred in the revisions proposed and referred the revised document to the House of Delegates which on July 12, 1975 at the Annual Meeting of the AVMA in Anaheim, CA approved the amendments incorporated into this 1975 version.

The procedures established in these Rules shall govern proceedings concerning membership in the Association conducted by the Judicial Council pursuant to Bylaws Article I, Section 8. The procedures set forth in these Rules are subordinate to the Constitution and Bylaws of the AVMA. In the event of any conflict between these Rules and the provisions of the Constitution and Bylaws, the latter shall prevail.

Section 1 - Definitions - As used herein, "Association" means the American Veterinary Medical Association, "Members" means the members of the Association, "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Judicial Council, "Party" means the complainant or respondent in a disciplinary proceeding referred to herein, "Executive Vice President" means the Executive Vice President of the Association, "Bylaws" means the Bylaws of the American Veterinary Medical Association, and "Judicial Council" means the duly elected Judicial Council of the Association.

Section 2 - Initiation of Proceedings - (a) Any person, whether a member or not, or any constituent association, may file a complaint against any member. Such complaint must be filed in writing with the Secretary, dated and signed by the complainant, stating the facts on which it is based; provided, however, that a complaint shall not be considered by the Judicial Council unless filed within one year after the facts constituting the matter complained of became known to the complainant or could have been known in the exercise of reasonable diligence.

b) Upon his own motion, the Executive Vice President may, and upon instruction of the Board of Governors or the Executive Board of AVMA must, investigate the actions of any member when there is a reason to believe that the member is guilty of conduct subject to disciplinary action. If such investigation reveals evidence to support disciplinary action, the Executive Vice President shall prepare a complaint and refer it to the Secretary to be set down for hearing. The Executive Vice President or his designate shall present the case at the subsequent hearing on behalf of the Association as complainant.

c) A complaint may be filed by an investigating jury pursuant to Article V, Section 2(b) (iv) of the Bylaws.

d) To be considered by the Judicial Council, a complaint must allege in writing facts which constitute a basis for disciplinary action for any of the reasons set forth in Article I, Section 8, of the Bylaws.

e) The Secretary shall promptly review every complaint to determine whether (1) to refer the complaint to a constituent organization for further proceedings, (2) to recommend to the Judicial Council that the complaint be dismissed as not involving an issue within the jurisdiction of the Association, or (3) to set the complaint for hearing by the Judicial Council. The Secretary may send a copy of the complaint to the party complained against and request that party to furnish the Secretary with a response before making a preliminary determination.

Section 3 - Hearings - (a) After a complaint has been set down for hearing by the Judicial Council, the Secretary shall serve a copy of the complaint on each party complained against (hereinafter called the respondent) with notice that the party may file a written reply with the Secretary, in duplicate, within thirty days, and that if that party does not file a reply, the charges may be taken as true by default. The Judicial Council may accept late filing of a reply in its discretion.

The Secretary shall promptly deliver copies of the reply, if any, to the complainant and the Judicial Council, or promptly notify each that no reply has been filed within the time prescribed.

b) The chairman of the Judicial Council shall designate the time and place of hearing and the Secretary shall notify the complainant and the respondent of the time and place designated. An appearance at a hearing without objection by a party will constitute a waiver of any defect in the notice of that hearing. In the event that the respondent fails to appear at a duly noticed hearing without obtaining a continuance or adjournment thereof, the Judicial Council may proceed with the hearing in the respondent's absence and shall reach its decision based on the evidence made available at the hearing.

c) After a complaint has been filed with the Secretary, it may be withdrawn by the complainant only with the consent of the Judicial Council.

d) At any hearing every party has the right to present any witnesses, to submit any evidence pertinent to the case, and to cross-examine witnesses of others. Witnesses giving oral testimony shall be sworn in by the chairman. Before permitting testimony relating to the character or general reputation of anyone, the Judical Council shall satisfy itself that the testimony has a direct bearing on the case at issue.

Section 4 - Decisions of Judicial Council - (a) The decision of the Judicial Council shall be by a majority vote by secret ballot, and in writing containing findings of fact and statement of disciplinary action, if any. The decision concerning each member complained against shall be (1) to acquit, (2) to censure, (3) to place on probation, (4) to suspend, or (5) to expel. A failure of secrecy shall not invalidate the decision. The decision shall be filed with the Secretary who shall transmit a copy of the decision to complainant and respondent within fourteen days after it is rendered.

b) Within thirty days after the decision has been rendered, either party may petition the Judicial Council for a rehearing, solely on the ground of newly discovered material evidence which the petitioner could not, with reasonable diligence, have discovered and produced at the original hearing. The petition must be filed in writing with the Secretary.

The petitioner must deliver copies of the Petition for Rehearing to each party with notice that a written reply may be filed with the Secretary within fifteen days. A copy of the notice must be sent promptly to the Secretary.

c) A petition for rehearing shall be considered by the Judicial Council at its next regular meeting and shall be granted or denied and upon such action the Secretary shall immediately inform the respondent and complainant. No more than one petition for rehearing may be filed by any party in a case.

Section 5 - Preliminary Judicial Determination - If the Judicial Council believes that the disciplined member may resort to legal action because of suspension or expulsion, it may specify that the suspension or expulsion shall become effective upon entry of the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction in a suit by the Association for declaratory relief declaring that the suspension or expulsion violates no right of the member.

Section 6 - General Provisions - (a) Any party to a disciplinary proceeding may file with the Secretary a written request for disqualification of a member of the Judicial Council, stating the grounds cited for disqualification. Any ground for disqualification of which the party then has knowledge is deemed waived unless the request is filed before the Judicial Council renders its decision. If a majority of the members of the Judicial Council finds any automatic ground for disqualification to be present, or finds any other facts which in their judgment may prevent a member of the Judicial Council from rendering an impartial decision, or create the appearance that the member will not do so, that member shall stand disqualified.

b) Every party may be represented in person or by a member of the Association. The Judicial Council may have legal counsel present to advise it on issues of procedure.

c) The Judicial Council will not be bound by technical rules of evidence employed in legal proceedings. The Judicial Council may accept any evidence it deems appropriate.

In any proceeding a transcript may be made at the discretion of the Judicial Council.

d) Any notice required to be given or paper required to be served may be given or served by personally handing it to the party to be notified or by mail addressed to his last known mailing address; if mailed, notice shall be deemed given when mailed.

Notice of any hearing shall include the names of the members of the Judicial Council and, except for an adjourned hearing, be given not less than ten days before the date of the hearing, and no hearing shall be set for a time not permitting at least ten days' notice.

e) Communications shall be directed to the Secretary. The Secretary shall render all necessary assistance to the parties, shall on application furnish forms and papers required, shall receive and file all documents or other papers, and shall receive all fees and disburse all moneys payable to the Association.

GENERAL APPELLATE PROCEDURES OF THE AMERICAN VETERINARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

(To ensure that persons preceiving themselves adversely affected by AVMA decisions will have access to due process, the House of Delegates in July, 1980, on recommendation of the Executive Board, adopted the following general appellate procedures.)

The procedures established herein shall govern appeals from decisions of: (i) all AVMA Boards, Councils or Committees which do not have established written procedures applicable to appeals of such decisions; and (ii) all AVMA Officers and Staff Members if such decisions are not subject to review pursuant to any other established written procedures applicable to appeals of such decisions. The procedures set forth herein do not apply to decisions of the AVMA Executive Board and of the Board of Governors and are subordinate to the Constitution and Bylaws of the AVMA. In the event of any conflict between these procedures and the provisions of the Constitution and Bylaws, the latter will prevail.

Section 1 - Definitions: As used herein, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

Section 3 - Optional Petition for Reconsideration: A person adversely affected by an AVMA decision may petition the AVMA decision-maker to reconsider its decision by filing with the AVMA decision-maker a written petition for reconsideration which shall include a statement of the grounds for reconsideration and documentation, if any, in support of the petition. Such a petition must be filed within 60 days of the date on which the AVMA decision-maker announces its decision, or within 60 days of the date on which the AVMA decision-maker advises the affected person of the availability of this appeals procedure, whichever is later. In the event that the AVMA decision-maker declines to reconsider or amend its decision to the satisfaction of the affected person, the affected person must follow the procedure outlined below if he or she desires to appeal the AVMA decision further.

Section 4 - Notification of Appeal: A person adversely affected by an AVMA decision shall notify the AVMA Board of Governors in writing of an intention to petition for review of the decision. Such written notification must be filed with the AVMA Board of Governors, 930 North Meacham Road, Schaumburg, Illinois, 60196, U.S.A., within 90 days after (i) the announcement of the initial AVMA decision; or (ii) the decision on the petition for reconsideration pursuant to Section 3, above; or (iii) the petitioner is advised of the availability of this procedure, whichever is later. Copies of the notification of appeal shall be provided promptly by the Board to the AVMA decision-maker.

E. At the discretion of the Board of Governors or upon the advance written request of the petitioner or the AVMA decision-maker, a transcript of the hearing shall be made at the expense of the person requesting the transcript.

Section 8 - Communications with Board of Governors: After a written notification of appeal is received at AVMA and before the Board of Governors has ruled upon the petition for review, no person shall communicate, orally or in writing, with any member of the Board, in support of or in opposition to the petition, unless the substance of the communication, including complete copies of any documents submitted therewith, is also revealed to the petitioner and to the AVMA decision-maker. The petitioner and the AVMA decision-maker shall have an opportunity to respond in writing within 30 days after they are notified of the communications. The Board of Governors shall not rule upon the petition for review until the aforementioned 30-day period, if applicable, has expired.

Section 9 - Board of Governors Decision: After review and consideration of the AVMA decision, the petition for review, and any other relevant evidence, the Board of Governors shall issue a written decision affirming or recommending changes in the AVMA decision and stating the reasons therefor. The Board shall provide copies of its decision to the petitioner, to the AVMA decision-maker, and, at the discretion of the Board's Chairman, to members of the AVMA Executive Board. The AVMA decision shall be affirmed or modified to the extent directed by the AVMA Board of Governors. Section 10 - Expenses. In the event that a hearing is held before the Board, reasonable expenses, based on AVMA guidelines for travel, meals and lodging of the Board and witnesses, shall be borne by the petitioner if the Board affirms in its entirety the AVMA decision and if the petitioner had requested the hearing. Such expenses will be borne by the AVMA or by the AVMA decision-maker if the Board sustains in its entirety the petitioner's appeal and if the AVMA decision-maker has requested the hearing. In all other instances the Board of Governors shall provide for the equitable distribution of the hearing expenses, if any.

A. Expenses will be initially reimbursed by AVMA and billed back to the appropriate party, depending on the Board's decision on the petition for review.

B. The Board of Governors shall have the option of requiring a petitioner whose request for a hearing is granted to make a cash deposit prior to the hearing to cover anticipated expenses in the event that the AVMA decision is affirmed in its entirety by the Board.

C. The Board shall provide for the equitable distribution of all other costs incurred in connection with the petition for review.

Section 11 - Reconsideration. After the announcement of the Board's decision on the petition for review, the petitioner or the AVMA decision-maker may file with the Board of Governors a petition for reconsideration on the basis of new evidence that could not, with reasonable diligence, have been discovered and made available to the Board before its decision on the petition for review. The petition for reconsideration must be filed with the Board of Governors within 30 days of the announcement of the Board's decision. The procedure for reconsideration shall be the same as that described in Section 6 through 9 above. No more than one petition for reconsideration may be filed by the petitioner or by the AVMA decision-maker. Copies of the petition for reconsideration shall be provided by the Board to the petitioner or to the AVMA decision-maker which did not file the petition for reconsideration.

Section 12 - Discretionary Review by AVMA Executive Board: At their discretion, a majority of the members of the AVMA Executive Board may vote to review the decision of the Board of Governors. Neither the petitioner nor the AVMA decision-maker shall submit requests for review of the Board of Governors' decision to the Executive Board. In the event that the AVMA Executive Board decides to review the decision of the Board of Governors, the following procedure shall be observed:

A. The decision of the Board of Governors, and all available materials furnished to the Board for its consideration in arriving at the decision, including the petition for review and any responses thereto, shall be made available to the Executive Board at its request.

B. The Executive Board may, at its discretion, invite the petitioner, the AVMA decision-maker, or a representative of either party, to address the Executive Board on the merits of the petition.

C. A majority of the members of the Executive Board may vote to affirm or modify the decision of the Board of Governors, or to take no position at all with respect to the decision of the Board of Governors. The AVMA decision shall be affirmed or modified to the extent directed by the Executive Board.

Section 13 - General Provisions: The following general provisions shall apply to petitions for review filed before the Board of Governors:

A. The petitioner or the AVMA decision-maker may file with the Board of Governors a written request for disqualification of a member of the Board stating the grounds for disqualification. Any ground for disqualification of which the petitioner or the AVMA decision-maker then has knowledge is deemed waived unless the request is filed before the Board of Governors renders its decision on the petition for review. If a majority of the Board of Governors finds that any of its members should be disqualified because of any facts which in their judgment prevent such member from rendering an impartial decision or create the appearance that the member will not do so, such member shall be disqualified. The remaining members of the Board shall appoint a replacement for the disqualified member from the AVMA Executive Board.

B. The Board of Governors will not be bound by technical rules of evidence employed in legal proceedings. The Board may accept any evidence deemed appropriate.

C. Any paper required to be filed, served or given to another person may be filed, served or given by personally handing it to the person to be notified or by mailing it addressed to the person's last known mailing address; if mailed, the paper shall be deemed filed, served, or given when mailed.

AVMA POLICY STATEMENTS AND GUIDELINES

CHECKLIST FOR EMPLOYMENT AND PARTNERSHIP CONTRACTS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1982)

Because veterinary practice often requires that veterinarians work with or for other veterinarians, some contractual agreements are essential. The following points of consideration should be considered in preparing such contracts in order to lessen the probability of disagreement and clearly define individual responsibility. Because there are many varied factors depending on the type of practice, capabilities of people involved, section of the country, etcetera; no model contract is suggested. Instead, the points of consideration listed below should be agreed upon when a specific contract is prepared. It must be understood that there should be mutual confidence in each party's willingness to do the right thing. All possible contingencies can not be anticipated in a contract and, as concerns arise, an attitude of fairness between the concerned parties will usually solve problems satisfactorily. Most disagreements are founded on misunderstandings and the following areas of understanding will lessen the likelihood of future altercations. It is recommended that legal counsel be engaged to review all documents before entering into contracts or agreements of such importance.

GUIDELINES ON ACUPUNCTURE

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1980)

The AVMA has grave concern about acupuncture, regarding it as experimental.

The public must be protected from those who make claims for acupuncture that are not based on adequate controlled experiments or documented research. Veterinarians must be aware of their legal responsibilities when acupuncture is used.

The administration of an acupuncture needle should be regarded as a surgical procedure under the state veterinary practice acts.

GUIDELINES ON EMERGENCY VETERINARY SERVICE

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1980)

1. Emergency veterinary service should be provided in every community where there is a private veterinary practitioner.
2. The public should be informed about the veterinary emergency service through telephone directories and other means.
3. The veterinarian who provides emergency treatment should refer the case and all pertinent records back to the owner's regular veterinarian, or a veterinarian of the owner's choice, as soon as practical after the emergency treatment has been concluded.
4. No set of emergency service guidelines can be designed to cover all practice situations. However, all veterinary emergency plans, regardless of the size or location, should be dedicated to a high standard of veterinary care and should be consistent with the "Principles of Veterinary Medical Ethics."

AVMA GUIDELINES FOR HORSESHOW VETERINARIANS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1982)

The American Veterinary Medical Association endorses the American Association of Equine Practitioners' policy on Veterinary Service for Horseshows as stated in Section A, page 32 in "Guide for Veterinary Service and Judging of Equestrian Events", published by AAEP in June, 1984. The AVMA further endorses Section B of that publication, which defines areas of veterinary responsibility and provides guidelines for the conduct of horseshow veterinarians.

The American Veterinary Medical Association: 1) encourages its members who serve as show horse veterinarians to become familiar with AHSA rules that govern conduct of horse show participants and with applicable state or federal laws relating to horseshows, 2) encourages the scheduling of pertinent educational subjects at veterinary meetings and conventions, 3) encourages the publication and dissemination of educational material to veterinarians who are interested in show horse medicine, 4) encourages its members who are interested in show horse veterinary practice to become members of the American Horse Shows Association.

With the consent of the American Association of Equine Practitioners, the AAEP documents refered to above are quoted below for the benefit of all members. The AHSA Rule Book is available only to AHSA members. Membership information can be obtained from the American Horse Shows Association, Inc., 220 East 42nd Street, Fourth Floor, New York, NY 10017-9998,(212) 972-AHSA.

A. A.A.E.P. Policy on Official Show Veterinary Service

The "role and responsibility of Official Veterinarians for horse shows and other equestrian events," long established as official policy by the American Association of Equine Practitioners is a crucial basic guide. Following is their policy statement:

> "The Official Veterinarian shall serve as a professional consultant on veterinary matters to the show management, the stewards and the judges".
> "He shall in his professional role advise the management and cooperating persons and agencies concerning the care and welfare of the animals present at the show or event and shall administer to the horses present as the need arises".
> He shall endeavor to do everything possible within the scope of his professional training to aid the sport in general and the event in particular. Conversely, he shall not in his role as official veterinarian assume nor shall he be expected to assume the role, the responsibilities, or the perogatives of the management, the judges, the stewards, other officials or regulatory agents or agencies.
> "He shall not at any time assume or shall he be expected to assume a dual role in conjunction with his role as official veterinarian."

B. Areas of Veterinary Responsibility

There are always two and maybe as many as five areas of veterinary service and responsibility at a horse show. (1) The Official Horse Show Veterinarian responsible to Show Management, (2) the Attending Veterinarian responsible for providing professional services for exhibitors, (3) U.S. Department of Agriculture (APHIS) requirements generated by the Horse Protection Act of 1970, (4) Drug and medication, and the American Quarter Horse Association, (5) and State regulatory requirements in States where a certificate of vaccination for Venezuelan Encephalomyelitis or a certificate of a negative test for equine infectious anemia is prerequisite to showing a horse.

1. The Official Show Veterinarian in effect is an employee of and is responsible to Show Management. His principal function is to serve as professional consultant and advisor on all veterinary matters affecting the show. This includes coordinating the foregoing five areas of veterinary responsibility and in some instances performing all duties necessary to implement them. With respect to the American Horse Shows Association, his duties are clearly stated in the AHSA rule book (quoted below). Other governing rule books are less specific.
2. The Attending Veterinarian has the role of treating sick and injured horses on the show grounds and in doing so is in effect employed by and responsible to the individual horse owner involved. A local practitioner with hospital and other services readily available for emergencies is best fitted for this role.
3. Dual roles whereby the same individual serves both as Official Veterinarian and Attending Veterinarian is required by some shows. This is most undesirable because it immediately creates a serious conflict of interest sitaution and for that reason is discouraged in the states A.A.E.P. policy. Recommended procedure is to select a non-local man to serve as Official Veterinarian - a man not closely familiar with horses being shown and who has no clients among the exhibitors. Attending Veterinary Service is best provided by local practitioners.
4. U.S.D.A. Veterinary Service is required by the "Horse Protection Act" which became Public Law 91-540 on December 9, 1970. It establishes special veterinary service at shows where it is applicable. The Law was signed primarily to prevent the showing of Tennessee Walking Horses that had been "sored". Enforcement is the responsibility of USDA and is handled by the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS). It is implemented through rules and regulations published by USDA. The law, as well as the rules and regulations, are not published by USDA. The law, as well as the rules and regulations, are not published here because they are subject to change. In fact, several changes have been made in the rules and more may be expected as experience in implementation is gained and dictates.

The law places several responsibilities on show management. One is that management must remove sored horses from the class in which they compete at some time prior to completion of judging and awarding of prizes. To accomplish this, management may require the official show veterinarian to examine all horses for evidence of soreing prior to entering the show ring. If such is to be the arrangement, USDA recommends that the veterinarian and management have written agreement that he is the veterinary medical officer designated to help management comply with the Horse Protection Act.

Usual procedure is for each horse to be inspected by the veterinarian at a designated convenient time and place before entering the show ring. If a horse is found that in the opinion of the examining veterinarian does not meet the qualifications of the show with respect to soreing, he must file an official written report with copies to (1) the show judges before the class is placed, (2) to management as soon as possible, and (3) to the veterinarian in-charge of the APHIS Field Area within 72 hours of the close of the show.

If certain horses are to be inspected following a class, the person having custody of the horse should be so notified while the horse is still in the show ring. Such inspection should be conducted by a Federal or State employed veterinarian representing USDA if present at the show.

Any veterinarian involved in any with implementation of the Act at a show should read and fully understand all veterinary requirements and implications in the USDA rules and regulations. Information may be obtained from APHS area offices or from Veterinary Services, APHIS, USDA, Federal Center Bldg. No. 1, Hyattsville, MD 20782. He should also have in advance a clear-cut plan and understanding with show management as to criteria and procedures to follow in inspecting and reporting.

APHIS veterinarians may or may not be present at a show. Their presence in no way relieves show management of any responsibilities or the official show veterinarian of any duties.

One fact must be ever remembered - no veterinarian in any category has the authority to disqualify a horse and order that he not be shown. The veterinarian is not a police officer. He is a professional consultant and as such documents and renders his professional opinion directly to show management and the appropriate APHIS office. Any deviation from this procedure promptly leads to serious public relations problems.

5. Drugs and Medication Testing - The American Horse Shows Association has a drugs and medications testing program that involves many selected shows each year. The program is run by the AHSA Administrator of the Drugs and Medications Rule who makes all arrangements with the show to be tested. The American Quarter Horse Association has a comparable program for its shows. Some testing is being required by other organizations also.
6. State Animal Disease Regulatory Requirements - Some States, also show management of some shows, require that all horses have an official certification indicating they have been tested for equine infectious anemia and found negative prior to entering a show ground. Some States and some shows also have requirements for Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis vaccination. Other diseases may cause comparable restrictions if at any time one becomes a threat. Such activities come under the direction of the State Veterinarian, responsible for animal disease control programs within the State. Requirements and administrative methods vary from State to State and show to show. Consequently, an Official Veterinarian must determine what pertains at each show.
7. Basic Veterinary Requirements- A great majority of all horse shows are governed either by the AHSA rule book or the AQHA rule book. Several other associations also have show rule books. All shows are governed by some rule book or recorded rules, portions of which dictate or affect veterinary service. Veterinary service requirements are not the same in all rule books. Also more than one rule book may govern at the same show. Consequently,any veterinarian before serving a show should ascertain from management what rules will pertain and have a clear-cut understanding as to what his duties and responsibilities are to be. The Official Veterinarian should have a complete understanding of all show rules and any State or Federal regulation pertinent to veterinary services for the show. He should also be familiar with all types of veterinary services that might be required at the show. The Attending Veterinarian should be prepared to handle cases from minor injuries to broken legs, respiratory infections, pneumonia and severe colic.

GUIDELINES FOR NAMING OF VETERINARY FACILITIES

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1982)

In order to avoid confusion on the part of the general public and to provide guidelines for consistency in the designation of veterinary facilities by the veterinary profession, the committee on designation of veterinary facilities recommends that the following nomenclature be used:

Animal Medical Center - A veterinary or animal medical center is defined as a facility in which consultative, clinical, and hospital services are rendered and in which a large staff of basic and applied veterinary scientists perform significant research and conduct advanced professional educational programs.

Hospital - A veterinary or animal hospital is defined as a facility in which the practice conducted includes the confinement as well as the treatment of patients.

Clinic - A veterinary or animal clinic is defined as a facility in which the practice conducted is essentially an out-patient type of practice.

Office - A veterinary facility where a limited or consultative practice is conducted and which provides no facilities for the housing of patients.

Mobile Facility - A practice conducted from a vehicle with special medical or surgical facilities or from a vehicle suitable only for making house or farm calls. Regardless of mode of transportation, such practice shall have a permanent base of operations with a published address and telephone facilities for making appointments or responding to emergency situations.

GUIDELINES ON PET HEALTH INSURANCE AND OTHER 3RD PARTY ANIMAL HEALTH PLANS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1985)

The AVMA recognizes that there is potentially great value in pet health insurance and supports the concept of adequately funded, well organized, and licensed pet health insurance plans. However, it is not within the AVMA's purview to endorse any particular company's program. It is the duty and responsibility of the insurance commissioner in the state where a pet health insurance plan is sold to decide whether that pet health insurance, health maintenance organization, etc. meets the rules and regulations of that state.

The AVMA is primarily concerned with the ethical behavior, professional duties, and responsibilities of the veterinarian.

A Pet Health Insurance Program Should:

1. Be in the public interest, with clearly specified protection for the pet owner.
2. Allow pet owners the freedom to select a veterinarian of their choice.
3. Allow for referrals.
4. Be acceptable to the insurance commissioner of the state in which it is sold.
5. Be licensed to do business in the state in which the plan is sold.

A Pet Health Insurance Program Should Not:

1. Put veterinarians or their employees in the position of actively soliciting clients for commercial plans or receiving commissions from such plans.
2. Permit fee splitting.

Further, veterinarians may keep on hand or display in their facilities application forms and pamphlets pertaining to pet health insurance in order to respond to clients' requests for information.

PRESCRIPTION WRITING

(Adopted by the AVMA Executive Board, 1979)

Veterinarians often use or recommend the use of various veterinary drugs for the treatment of animals. Some of these drugs must be administered to the animal by the veterinarian for legal or medical reasons and other drugs can be administered by the veterinarian or by the animal owner. With respect to the latter kinds of drugs, the animal owner may wish to purchase them directly from the veterinarian prescribing the drug or from another source.

Questions have been raised about the ability of the animal owner to purchase a veterinary drug from a non-veterinary source if the drug can be legally and medically administered by the owner. To purchase such drugs from a nonveterinary source, the owner often requires and receives a written prescription from the veterinarian. In order to permit the animal owner to continue to choose a veterinary or non-veterinary source for a veterinary drug which he or she can administer, veterinarians should offer prescriptions to animal owners who want to obtain such drugs from nonveterinary sources.

GUIDELINES FOR REFERRALS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1980)

Definitions

Referring Veterinarian: The veterinarian who was, at the time of referral, in charge of the patient.

Receiving Veterinarian: A veterinarian to whom a patient is sent either by referral or for consultation.

Consultation: A deliberation between 2 or more veterinarians concerning the diagnosis of a disease and the proper management of the case.

Referral: The transfer of responsibility of diagnosis and treatment from the referring veterinarian to the receiving veterinarian.

Method of Referral

Communication should be by letter, telephone, or direct contact between veterinarians. The most appropriate method of communication should be determined by the veterinarians involved.

The referring veterinarian should provide the receiving veterinarian with all the appropriate information pertinent to the case before or at the time of the receiving veterinarian's first contact with the patient or the client.

When the referred patient has been examined and definite findings have been made, the referring veterinarian should be promptly informed of those findings. Information provided should include diagnosis, proposed treatment, and other recommendations.

Immediately upon discharge of the patient, the referring veterinarian should receive a detailed and complete report, preferably written, and be advised as to continuing care of the patient or termination of the case.

The receiving veterinarian should advise and encourage the client to contact the attending veterinarian for the continuing care of the patient.

Each veterinarian involved will collect his own fee from the client.

GUIDELINES FOR VETERINARY PRACTICE FACILITIES

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1978)

The AVMA considered establishing standards for veterinary practice facilities, and came to realize that specific requirements are difficult to define. The diverse types of practice, economic conditions, and facility requirements throughout the country preclude developing a single set of specific standards applicable to all practices.

As a result, the Association has listed 12 general principles of good practice that encompass all of the aspects of veterinary medicine and should be considered in the development and operation of any practice. They are:

1) Overall cleanliness and neatness of personnel.
2) Adequate protection against dissemination of disease.
3) Proper disposal of all waste material.
4) Adequate protection against radiation accidents.
5) Adequate ventilation and freedom from noxious odors.
6) Freedom from noise pollution.
7) Adequate restraint facilities as per specialty.
8) Availability of proper refrigeration and sterlization equipment.
9) Facilities and equipment suitable for currently acceptable veterinary practice.
10) Adequate therapeutic and financial records.
11) Evidence of continuing education participation.
12) Facilities should comply with local ordinances and with cognizance of OSHA recommendations.

AVMA POSITION ON ANIMAL DENTISTRY

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1982)

It is the opinion of the American Veterinary Medical Association that the cleaning, adjustment (floating), or repair of animals' teeth is a function of veterinary practice because it requires diagnosis and treatment, and to be fully effective demands extensive knowledge of anatomy, physiology, pathology, neurology, medicine, and surgery that is part of the graduate veterinarian's training.

AVMA POSITION ON ANIMAL HEALTH CERTIFICATES

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1981)

The accredited veterinarian is responsible for the accuracy of health certificates that he or she issues, and it behooves the individual veterinarian to conduct appropriate examinations before any health certificate is issued.

AVMA POSITION ON PRESIGNED HEALTH CERTIFICATES

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1974)

The AVMA believes that any veterinarian found guilty of presigning or otherwise misusing intra-or inter-state or export health certificates should have his or her accreditation immeidately removed, and all pertinent information should be transmitted to the state board of veterinary medical examiners for a proper hearing leading to suspension of his or her license to practice veterinary medicine. The AVMA feels that the chief animal health official of each state should exercise strict control over the issuing and control of all health certificates.

AVMA POSITION ON ANIMAL POPULATION CONTROL AND OVARIOHYSTERECTOMY CLINICS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1981)

The overpopulation of unwanted dogs and cats, is of concern to public officials, animal control officers, humane leaders, the general public, and veterinarians.

Veterinarians have observed the growth of this serious and complex problem. They have repeatedly appealed to all who are concerned that effective and workable measures should be used to reduce the number of unwanted animals.

A number of veterinary medical associations and groups have extensively studied the problem and its possible solutions. The efforts and leadership of these groups are commendable.

The AVMA concludes:

(1) Animal population control is and should be of major concern.

(2) While some public officials have been remiss in providing for and effectively enforcing animal control laws, commendations are in order for the majority who have conscientiously tried to secure the personnel, funds, and equipment for this duty in keeping with increased public awareness of the problem.

(3) Ovariohysterectomy and orchiectomy (neutering) are highly recommended, but these procedures provide an extremely ineffective solution to control animal overpopulation.

  a) Neutering clinics have not had a major impact on animal population control. Even when provided at no cost, there has been little public use of their services. Such clinics do not reach a wide enough segment of the unwanted animal population to be effective. We praise responsible pet owners who use neutering to prevent unwanted animals.

  b) Experience has shown that many pet owners who use the services of free neutering clinics are in income groups which can afford the services of private veterinarians. If established, publicly financed clinics should insure that their services are primarily available to lower-income groups.

  c) Neutering clinics have frequently proved more costly than anticipated and have required public subsidization.

(4) The most promising solution to the control of unwanted animals lies in the ultimate development of an effective and inexpensive nonsurgical sterilization method for animals.

Based on these observations, AVMA cannot encourage the development of neutering clinics as an effective means of animal population control and particularly cannot advocate subsidization of neutering clinics with tax dollars.

The AVMA recommends the following positive and effective means for pet population control:

(1) Strict enforcement of existing animal control laws and development of more comprehensive and improved laws using concepts described in the Model Dog and Cat Control Ordinance.

(2) Substantially higher license fees for animals not neutered.

(3) Licensing of all cats and control measures for them comparable with those for dogs.

(4) Continuation by AVMA of an intensive public education information program designed to help pet owners to be more responsible and concerned.

(5) Requirements that animals adopted from any animal shelter - public or private - be rendered sterile.

(6) Encouragement of surgical sterilization until nonsurgical sterilization is available.

(7) Encourage development of an identification system for pet animals to aid in identifying unwanted or unowned animals.

(8) Cooperation of the veterinary profession, humane organizations, and concerned groups in effective efforts for pet population control.

AVMA POSITION ON COMPLAINTS ABOUT VETERINARY SERVICE

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1982)

The AVMA recommends:

1) that the colleges of veterinary medicine continue to place emphasis on the orientation of students to professionalism, ethics, practice management, and veterinarian-client relations for they are the key foundation of our profession's public image.

2) that each constituent association and each species-oriented specialty association that does not already have an ethics-grievance committee or a peer-review committee, consider establishing such a committee so that complaints about veterinary service coming to those organizations' attention will be handled promptly in an understanding manner.

3) that institutions that educate animal technicians continue to stress student orientation in client relationships.

4) that persons responsible for planning continuing education courses consider incorporating in their course schedules some material pertaining to professionalism, client relation, and the art of practice.

5) that complaint investigations should be handled through veterinary medical associations and their designated committees, wherever possible, before they come to the attention of the veterinary medical examining boards.

AVMA POSITION ON EMBRYO TRANSPLANT PROCEDURES

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1981)

A state veterinary medical association raised a question regarding the ethical relationship between the breeding specialist who performs embryo transplant procedures and the local practitioner who provides routine health care to the herd. Also questioned were the legal considerations related to a specialist performing surgical procedures related to embryo transplant in a state where the specialist is not licensed.

It was the opinion of the AVMA that embryo transfer procedure is a function of veterinary practice since it requires diagnosis and surgery. To be fully effective, it demands the extensive knowledge in anatomy, physiology, biochemistry, endocrinology, and sterile surgical procedures that is part of the training of the graduate veterinarian. The AVMA suggests that more practitioners become proficient in embryo transplantation and provide the service to their clients.

AVMA is not qualified to comment on the legal considerations reltaing to the various state practice acts, but all veterinarians should conform to the laws of the states in which they practice. The relationship between the 2 veterinarians seems to fall within the ethical considerations for referrals, and if the AVMA Guidelines for Referrals are followed, there should be no conflict.

AVMA POSITION ON USE OF SODIUM PENTOBARBITAL BY LAY PERSONS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1981)

It has been brought to the AVMA's attention that sodium pentobarbital is being used for euthanasia by humane organizations and dog pound personnel without veterinary supervision and with the possibility of drug abuse by unauthorized persons. Use of the drug is not illegal under proper supervision. The Drug Enforcement Agency regulations must be applied within the constraints of applicable state law.

Therefore, the AVMA recommends that sodium pentobarbital (Class II) should only be used by or under direct supervision of a licensed veterinarian registered with the DEA. In those areas where lay personnel or organizations are permitted to use sodium pentobarbital, the Drug Enforcement Agency should strictly enforce the Class II drug control regulations, requiring those persons or organizations to comply with the same registration, record keeping, security, and monitoring requirements as the licensed veterinarian.

PARVOVIRUS ACTIONS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1981)

The AVMA compliments the ethical biological manufacturing industry and the practicing veterinarians of our country on their rapid response to the epidemic of parvovirus infection. The dog-owning public is also praised for its patient understanding of the vaccine shortage that hampered the profession's ability to provide protection.

The public and practicing veterinarians are cautioned to realize that information expressed in the light of present research may change as further knowledge of this disease is gained. The AVMA will make every effort to remain aware of this scientific progress and to advise the profession and the public.

PROTOCOL FOR THE TATTOO IDENTIFICATION OF DOGS AND CATS THAT HAVE BEEN SPAYED OR NEUTERED[1]

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1980)

Since November, 1976, the AVMA Council on Veterinary Service has been pursuing a project to develop a means to identify spayed dogs and cats. This project was initiated by requests from the New York State Humane Association and the multi-state Colorado Federation of Animal Welfare Agencies. Those organizations felt that with the prominence of shelters in the role of animal placement, and with their often-mandatory requirements for spaying as a qualification for placement, a permanent means of spay identification was needed. Such identification should be easily recognized and serves as evidence of the surgery having been performed to prevent needless repeat surgery as new owners adhere to the adoption requirements. While feeling that the requests had merit, the Council recognized that, to be widely adopted by the profession, the identification procedure must be easily and economically performed and adaptable to the wide variety of surgical procedures used for ovariohysterectomies. This protocol has been developed in response to these various needs.

The Tatoo Symbol

A symbol denoting the indicated surgery is applied with a vibrating needle tattoo unit. For ovariohysterectomies, the female sex symbol (♀) with an x in the circle (♀) is used. For castrations, the male symbol (⊗) is similarly recommended. For those who desire to use them, modifications of the symbols can be used if a hereditary defect is corrected surgically for the health and welfare of the animal. In such cases, spaying or neutering is recommended to prevent further spread of the defect. A portion of the symbol (⊗) can be applied at the time of initial surgery and completed when the spaying or neutering is done later. The size of the circle in the tatoos should be approximately 1/2" to 3/4" in diameter, depending on the size of the animal.

PROTOCOL FOR THE TATTOO IDENTIFICATION OF DOGS AND CATS THAT HAVE BEEN SPAYED OR NEUTERED[1] (Cont.)

Instrumentation

A vibrating-type tattoo applicator is recommended to allow free-hand application at any selected site of appropriate size symbols for the type and size of patient. Of 3 such units that were available in veterinary marketing channels and tried by the author, 1 unit[2] was found to be superior.

Technique of Application

The recommended tattoo site is the prepubic area of the female or the inguinal area of the male. At the time of surgery, hair from this area is clipped in addition to hair at the surgical site. Before or after the major surgical procedure, the tattoo site is prepared by a presurgical scrub, using surgical soap, rinsed well with alcohol, and wiped dry. Next a thin coating of vaseline is applied to the tattoo site. The tattoo unit is securely held like a pencil and the skin is spread taut with the thumb and index finger of the other hand. With the machine properly adjusted, only light pressure is needed to make a lasting, indelible tattoo. The operator will become accustomed to the individual tattoo unit and will have to determine its individual ink requirements to complete a symbol. When the symbol is completed, the site is wiped and any needed "touchups" are made to the symbol. Another light coating of vaseline is then applied over the tattoo. Should it be more convenient to tattoo before surgery, a surgical scrub over the tattoo has no deleterious effect on its quality.

Conclusion

Adverse reactions or complications have not been encountered using the described procedure to tattoo over 2,000 patients during a 3-year period. Follow-up examinations have shown that the tattoo remains highly visible with little apparent fading or other deterioration. The time needed to perform the procedure is less than 1 minute of a surgical assistant's labor.

In addition to signifying that the surgery has been done, the tattoo also serves as another permanent identification mark on the animal. The benefit it affords for the welfare of the patient has received universal appreciation by the owners and plaudits from animal shelters and humane societies. All of this further enhances the image of veterinarians as caring professionals.

WILD OR EXOTIC ANIMALS AS PETS

(Resolution 2, 1973: Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1973)

RESOLVED, that AVMA strongly opposed the keeping of wild or exotic species of animals as pets and believes that all commercial traffic of these animals for such purpose should be prohibited.

Statement About the Resolution

People acquire skunks, raccoons, monkeys, alligators, and other exotic species as pets because they like to possess unusual pets or regard them as status symbols.

These exotic species create disease, diet, and exercise problems different from those of domesticated pets (dogs and cats).

Disposing of an exotic pet can be a traumatic experience, with difficulty in relocating such animals. Frequently, zoos will not accept them and they are "too domesticated" to return to the wild, so euthanasia may be the only alternative. Therefore, veterinarians should exert influence to discourage the keeping of wild or exotic species as pets.

AVMA STATEMENT ON CONTINUING EDUCATION IN BOVINE MASTITIS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1982)

The AVMA Mastitis Committee has recognized that graduating seniors from many U.S. veterinary colleges are poorly equipped to take the basic steps required to develop and maintain ongoing mastitis control programs. The microbiological screening procedures, the treatment regimens for loctating and dry-cow therapy, and the evaluation of milking equipment are areas in which the recent graduate must become proficient along with communication skills. The Committee also recognizes that these areas of expertise are not going to be developed in the university classroom, but rather in the field. We therefore strongly encourage the broader development of seminar-type continuing education sponsored by national, state and/or local veterinary associations. We reccommend three major areas of involvement: 1) microbiology of milk and milk quality, 2) pharmacokinetics of mastitis therapy, and 3) milking machine function.

GUIDELINES FOR VETERINARIANS PARTICIPATING IN OVARIOHYSTERECTOMY-ORCHIECTOMY CLINICS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, July, 1984)

Veterinarians who participate in ovariohysterectomy-orchiectomy clinics should abide by the spirit and the letter of the veterinary code of ethics.

Any animal, regardless of its ownership, deserves the best efforts of the licensed veterinarian, and a quality of care equal to that provided by the private sector of the veterinary profession.

Therefore, the quality of veterinary medicine practiced and the quality of the surgery performed should equal the quality of private practice generally available.

AVMA POSITION ON SURGICAL PROCEDURES FOR NONVETERINARY STUDENTS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates July, 1984)

It is the opinion of the American Veterinary Medical Association that surgery on any animal is a function of veterinary practice which requires extensive knowledge of anatomy, physiology, pathology, and medicine. Therefore, instruction on nonveterinary students in surgical procedures is not advocated.

RECOMMENDED MINIMAL STANDARDS OF PERFORMANCE FOR PRACTICING VETERINARIANS WHO OFFER MILK QUALITY CONTROL PROGRAMS

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates July, 1984)

Losses due to mastitis are estimated at over $180/cow in the USA. Recent work emphasizes losses due to even small cell count increases. Dairymen who have followed sound milk quality control programs have found the cost of control to be far less than the heavy losses associated with mastitis, and they have found that milk production can be significantly increased as infections are eliminated. Results of successful programs have been widely publicized through the efforts of extension personnel and others, thus stimulating other dairymen to seek guidance in establishing control programs. Many dairymen seek such guidance from veterinarians in private practice. Some dairymen, however, do not have ready access to the services of private practitioners who are skilled in developing milk quality control programs.

Milk quality control programs generally have three goals:

1) Prevention of an infectious disease which has a direct and serious economic impact for the dairyman.
2) Alleviation of mastitis which is present or may occur.
3) Improvement of milk quality through a reduced incidence of the disease and through good management practices.

Various formal and informal programs have been in effect for many years. During the past 20 years milk quality programs have been instituted by the United States Public Health Service and by virtually every local health department in the nation. Some states and some local areas offer specific mastitis control programs. More often, such programs for mastitis control have been a matter between the dairyman and his veterinarian.

Although milk quality and mastitis control programs may be separate concepts, there is a strong interaction and many milk quality programs are solved only by attention to the mastitis problem. In varying degrees these milk quality and mastitis control programs have included:

1) Somatic Cell Counts (SCC) or other screening tests to detect abnormalities in the milk supply.
2) Use of DHI and other records that indicate SCC, bacteria, etc.
3) Consideration of the environment, sanitation, and milking management on the dairy farm.
4) Consideration of the milking system and equipment.
5) Identification of the individual affected and infected animals.
6) Identification of the causative organism.
7) Therapy and residue avoidance.
8) Prevention.

In many instances, private practitioners will direct and assist in milk quality programs. In some cases, they will be in the position to evaluate and interpret the opinions of others. Sometimes, a team effort would be involved in offering a complete milk quality control program. The team might include: private practitioner, milking machine serviceman, sanitarian, dairy plant fieldman, dairy extension specialist, and agricultural engineer. Because it is usually not feasible to involve all of these specialists in the solution to individual dairy farm problems, the private practitioner is in the best position to evaluate and interpret all of the relevant facts and opinions and to coordinate them into a rational milk quality control program.

The committee believes the outline that follows could be useful to various groups within the profession. Private practitioners may find it a useful list against which they can score their methods of practice, and it may be useful to them as a basis of requesting workshops or refresher courses. The list may be useful to those in the profession (veterinary medical associations, extension veterinarians, colleges of veterinary medicine, and continuing education coordinators) who have a responsibility for developing continuing education courses for private practitioners. Colleges of veterinary medicine may find the material useful in evaluating certain courses offered to veterinary students.

A MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING FOR HUMANE ORGANIZATIONS AND VETERINARIANS

(Adopted by the American Humane Association and the American Veterinary Medical Association in 1982. This document supersedes the Memorandum of Understanding adopted in 1973 and its predecessor adopted in 1960.)

Veterinary medical associations and humane organizations have a common bond or purpose in the preservation of the life, health, and general well-being of animals of all species. Each has its appointed task in the field of animal welfare: the veterinarian diagnosing and prescribing the treatment and conservation of the life and well-being of animals; humane organizations working for the protection, relief, and comfort of animals.

1. Veterinary associations and humane organizations should try to promote the health and welfare of animals through mutually cooperative endeavors.
2. Each group should strive to understand and respect the other's viewpoints and differences of opinion in reaching their mutual goals. Respectful disagreement on some issues should not be allowed to interfere with cooperation in matters on which there is agreement.
3. To promote understanding and cooperation, liaison should be maintained between organized veterinary medicine and humane organizations at the local, state, and national levels. To that end, liaison committees at each level might serve most effectively to assure communication between the two groups and to hear grievances that might be referred by either the veterinary medical associations or the humane organizations.
4. Veterinarians are encouraged to participate in humane activities through membership and active participation in local humane organizations.
5. Veterinary medical associations and humane organizations should, through published literature and individual counseling by their members, promote responsible pet ownership and proper humane care of all animals. The public should be urged to consult licensed veterinarians in matters that require veterinary skill and knowledge, and to report to the humane organization any observed instances of abuse or inhumane treatment of animals.
6. Throughout the United States, the existence of well-equipped private animal hospitals provides an excellent opportunity to extend charitable veterinary service to those who need it through mutual cooperation between local veterinary medical associations and humane organizations.
7. Local veterinarians and veterinary associations are encouraged to provide veterinary service to animal shelters at a mutually agreeable fee. Individual veterinarians should decide whether to participate with humane organizations to provide special plans or services such as health examinations for adopted pets, surgical neutering, or vaccinations. Such plans and services when agreed upon should provide that the attending veterinarian will have freedom of medical judgment regarding the patients' needs. The veterinarians' decisions and actions should conform to accepted veterinary practice and with the codes of ethics of local, state, and national veterinary associations. The humane organization should recognize these constraints and not expect the veterinarian to violate the ethical codes.
8. As with other clients, when each patient is presented for care, the veterinarian should confer with the responsible humane organization official and explain the diagnosis, recommended and optional therapy, prognosis, and estimated cost. The responsible official, as the client, should select from the options (including euthanasia) and authorize the veterinarian to proceed. The two parties should consult periodically on the progress of each case to preclude misunderstandings on the extent of care or the fees incurred.
9. In agreements between humane organizations and private veterinarians, the veterinarian is knowledgeable of his or her expenses and is able to determine and negotiate the appropriate fees for services. A veterinarian who agrees to provide services for a reduced fee or without compensation must not render less than the usual high quality of service that would be provided for the full fee. The scope of professional services and detailed arrangements to provide those services should be worked out to the mutual satisfaction of the humane organization and veterinarians concerned. All such programs should consider sanitation, disease and parasite control, immunizations, and health examinations.

AVMA GUIDELINES FOR VETERINARY ASSOCIATIONS AND VETERINARIANS WORKING WITH HUMANE ORGANIZATIONS

New York City, July 17, 1983)

Statement of Position

Veterinary medical associations, veterinarians, and humane organizations have a common bond through their work with animals. Beyond this common bond is a desire for, and serious interest in, good husbandry, quality of care, and the welfare of animals.

Veterinary and humane organizations, using their special skills, must decide on ways that they can work together toward the things that are important to each of them.

The groups must work to understand and respect each other's differences of opinion in reaching these goals. Respectful disagreement on a few issues must not be allowed to interfere with cooperation on the many issues on which there is agreement. Finally, the veterinarian must, through word and deed, promote a responsible ownership and care for all animals.

Recommendations To Veterinarians and Veterinary Associations

It is recommended that veterinary associations and individual veterinarians participate in humane organizations' activities. This can be best accomplished through membership and active participation in humane organizations and by offering advice, professional services, and skills that the veterinarians possess.

These professional skills and services must be offered to local, state, and national levels of the humane organization in order to insure a coordinated effort, and maintain communication. When offering professional services to such organizations, a veterinarian's decisions and actions must conform not only to accepted standards of veterinary practice, but with the code of ethics of local, state, and national veterinary associations, as well.

Individual veterinarians must decide for themselves whether or not to participate with humane organizations to produce special plans and/or services, such as health examinations, surgery, immunizations, and/or advice on such matters as sanitation, disease control, parasite control, and others. The scope of professional services and detailed arrangements to provide these services must be worked out in advance to the mutual satisfaction of the humane organization and the veterinarian concerned. Such plans and professional servies, when agreed upon, must give the veterinarian the responsibility for making the medical judgments regarding the patient's needs.

Normally, following presentation of an animal for evaluation and care, the veterinarian must confer with the owner or his agent, explain the diagnosis, recommend optional methods of treatment, if any, offer a prognosis, and discuss the anticipated cost of treatment. The same procedure must be followed when rendering service to a humane organization in that the authorized official becomes the client and becomes solely responsible for making decisions after all aspects of the case are presented. The two parties should consult periodically on the progress of each case to preclude misunderstandings on the extent of care, or the fees incurred.

Fees for services are to be determined by the veterinarian and the humane organization as negotiable items. Regardless of the fee, the veterinarian must not render less than the usual high quality of service that would be provided for the regular fee.

NOTES FOR POTENTIAL USERS OF THE STANDARD CONSENT FORM

(Not to be printed as part of the form)

1) It should be understood that this form will not protect the veterinarian from liability for malpractice (negligence). Releases from liability for malpractice, executed by a patient prior to the occurrence of the negligent act, are generally disfavored by the courts. The proposed form is designed merely to protect the veterinarian from liability for international acts such as interference with another's property, which means, in fact, permission to do the operation(s) or procedure(s).

2) When more than one veterinarian is involved in the practice, the name of the hospital or clinic should be shown as well as the name of the individual veterinarian. If the number of veterinarians in a clinic or hospital is few enough to make it practical, all consents should be addressed not only to the hospital and clinic and the individual veterinarian, but also the other veterinarians practicing in the clinic as partners or otherwise. Where appropriate, such information should be preprinted.

3) The description of the procedures should be brief but sufficiently comprehensive to cover the situation.

4) If euthanasia is involved, the veterinarian should be sure that the person signing the form clearly understands the meaning of the term.

5) Users may omit any part of this form with which they disagree.

PEER REVIEW PROCEDURE MANUAL

Prepared by the Council on Veterinary Services

PREFACE

It is essential not only that justice be done: it must be perceived to have been done. Acting justly, and demonstrating that one has done so, is something every person of good intentions wishes to do. Professional persons assume this obligation in a special way.

The veterinarian has always been expected to be sensitive to any uncertainty or misgivings exhibited by a client during treatment of his or her animal and to be willing to discuss explicit complaints. Veterinarians are concerned, for both professional and personal reasons, that clients leave their offices well satisfied.

Each year, there are innumerable veterinarian-client encounters. As veterinary care delivery has grown more complex, informal methods of resolving misunderstandings are not always sufficient. Consequently, a more formal method of response has been developed - peer review.

Peer review in its simplest terms is a mechanism by which the veterinary profession demonstrates the appropriateness and quality of the care it renders. It provides an expert and credible system for resolving disagreements that cannot be resolved at an earlier, more informal stage. It may be carried out by ethics or grievance committees of local or state associations or by more formal peer review boards established by those same associations. All such committees or boards shall be discussed here as a single entity.

Clients must be aware of the existence and availability of peer review and of its use. The finest mechanism is worthless if no one knows it is there.

Peer review is expert because men and women with appropriate professional credentials help conduct the hearings, review the evidence, and make objective decisions and recommendations based on the findings.

It is credible because its rules and procedures are clearly set forth and afford an equal opportunity for each participant to be fully heard. (In the view of many, the presence of a nonveterinarian on the committee greatly enhances this credibility.) Nonveterinarian representatives should serve in an advisory capacity in the evaluation of procedures and mechanisms for fair and equitable resolution of disagreements.

There are a few things that peer review is not. It is not a court of law. It is neither an adversary proceeding nor a punitive expedition. It is there to help educate, adjudicate, clarify, and make corrections where necessary.

Peer review is voluntary. However, those using its services should be asked to abide by its findings. It is important, then, for peer review to work well so that people who need its services will voluntarily seek them and will want to abide by the outcome. The strength of peer review is derived entirely from its ability to function effectively and fairly. If the concept or peer review is neither new nor terribly complex, why is a manual necessary? Primarily for two reasons.

First, to suggest procedures that can be adopted to help ensure the success of the system.

Second, there are so many professional groups involved in veterinary care, which are potential participants in peer review, that there needs to be some reasonable degree of uniformity in the process as one observes it from community to community and from state to state.

This manual was developed within the guidelines of established policies of the American Veterinary Medical Association. It is an attempt to assist the component and constituent society jointly to create an operative peer review system as quickly and efficiently as possible.

Peer review may seem to be a difficult undertaking in theory, but, once tried, it will quickly become comfortable and simple.

There are a number of reasons why the veterinary profession needs to expand and perfect its peer review system. None is more important, however, than peer review's potential for demonstrating publicly the excellent care veterinarians provide to their patients and the initiative the profession takes to correct problems which may arise.

PURPOSE

A peer review committee is established within a local, regional, or state veterinary association to review matters concerning, but not limited to, appropriateness of care and quality of treatment. Acting in an advisory capacity, it may also address fees. A committee may act on appropriate requests initiated by clients, veterinarians, or insurance carriers.

RESPONSIBILITY

It is the responsibility of a peer review committee to explore to the extent necessary all matters referred to it and to do so within a period of time that makes its efforts effective. Its means of communication may vary as the situation warrants. A peer review committee has an equal responsibility to clients, veterinarians, and insurance carriers.

MATTERS FOR REVIEW

Appropriateness of Care: The peer review committee shall determine the professional acceptability of planned or completed treatments to include necessity and consistency with diagnosis.

Quality of Treatment: An evaluation of the skill with which a treatment is provided in light of the standards which generally prevail within the profession by those who routinely perform the treatment in question, as judged by competent practitioners who are qualified to perform the procedure.

Fees: The Committee may determine from the evidence made available to it whether the fee in question is the veterinarian's usual fee for a given procedure. If the fee being charged appears not to be the veterinarian's usual fee, the Committee then can determine whether the fee is reasonable considering the degree of difficulty or complexity of the veterinary procedure employed. The Committee should not use a fee schedule or survey, or make any findings respecting what the customary fee in the geographic area may be for any particular procedure, since such activity could have antitrust implications.

MEMBERSHIP

It is essential that veterinary associations' peer review committees be reasonably uniform in both structure and procedure because the effect of their actions may have regional or national implications.

A peer review committee is composed of licensed veterinarians well respected in their professional community. It should include members representing a cross section of veterinarians in age, species expertise, and experience. Veterinary associations are encouraged to include a well-respected nonveterinarian as a resource to their peer review committees.

The size of the peer review committee should reflect the geographic area covered, the veterinary population of the association, and the potential patient/client caseload. There should, in all cases, be at least three members.

Members should serve staggered terms of three years to assure continuity of experience.

No member of a veterinary association body responsible for hearing appeals should serve on a component committee because of the potential conflict of interest in hearing such appeals. Whenever possible, veterinary association officers should not serve on the committee.

If a committee feels the need for additional expertise in order to render a proper judgment in a particular case, the chairman may appoint additional members to hear that case. These appointed members have the same status, in that instance, as do permanent members of the committee.

If a veterinarian who limits his or her practice is being reviewed, he or she may require the chairman to obtain a panel of other similarly experienced practitioners from the association membership or from the appropriate specialty organization. This panel, together with the chairman or vice chairman or designated member, will comprise the review committee in this instance.

Any party involved may, prior to the review, ask to be informed of the members composing the committee hearing the case. Any party involved may submit a properly documented request that the chairman excuse a committee member for cause. Another may be appointed to take the place of the excused member for the deliberation in question. The chairman, with the advice of the committee, should be empowered to accept or reject this request, giving the reasons for such action.

GEOGRAPHIC JURISDICTION

Cases are heard within the jurisdiction of the veterinary association where the service in question has been or will be performed. If the local veterinary association fails to act on a case within a reasonable length of time, and the state veterinary association has made every effort to assure review at the local level, then the state association peer review committee should hear that case.

PROCEDURE AND LIMITATION

Generally, mediation is the initial step a committee takes in attempting to resolve differences. If efforts to mediate prove unsuccessful, the case is deferred to the peer review committee for full review. Following that review, the committee reaches a decision based on its factual findings and transmits its decision to all participants.

Licensed veterinarians practicing in the state, their clients, insurance carriers, and governmental agencies, should all be encouraged to utilize peer review when appropriate.

A peer review committee has no disciplinary powers of itself. However, in cases involving habitual offenders, the committee may recommend continuing educational courses. It is not within the scope of such a committee to consider cases in litigation.

METHOD FOR REQUESTING A REVIEW

Any party wishing to initiate review must make the request in writing to the appropriate local or state veterinary association. A request for review should be accompanied by supporting records and pertinent information, stating the specific questions to be answered. Such reviews should be conducted at the lowest level association which provides peer review.

If an insurance carrier questions a claim form, the veterinarian's office should be contacted first by the carrier for clarification. If the problem cannot be resolved between the parties, it can then be referred to the peer review committee of the state veterinary association for review. When the insurance carrier makes the request in writing, it must include documentation that attempts to resolve the problem have been made without success. After receiving the request, the state or local veterinary association determines if it is eligible for review, then refers it to the appropriate peer review committee.

Mediation: When a request for review is received by a peer review committee, the chairman appoints one member to act as mediator. The mediator considers the request to determine whether the requesting party has fulfilled its resonsibility to attempt to resolve the differences.

The mediator then contacts all parties involved and tries to reconcile differences. The mediator carefully documents all contacts with clients, veterinarians, and carriers. In no circumstances does the mediator examine a patient.

If the case is resolved by the mediator, the mediator submits a written report to the chairman and the case is closed. If mediation is not successful, the mediator informs the chairman by written report. (Refer to Appendix 2).

Pre-review procedure: If a veterinarian providing specialty care is being reviewed, the veterinarian may require that the peer review committee chairman appoint a special panel of at least three specialists from the appropriate specialty organization or three members of the local or state association who have similar experience. (Each specialty organization determines how the specialty panel is to be selected.) The committee chairman, or his designate, joins the specialty panel in reviewing the case. Alternatively, the peer review committee can also request such an arrangement if it does not feel itself sufficiently knowledgeable in the specialty area to make the necessary decisions.

Clinical examination of patient: If the committee feels that a clinical examination is necessary, the client is asked to sign a form giving permission for the examination prior to the review (see Appendix 4). The client's veterinarian is notified that the examination is to take place (see Appendix 5). The findings are not discussed with the client at the time of the examination. If the committee decides that a clinical examination is necessary in order to render a decision, but the client withholds permission for the examination, the review is terminated with a written explanation of the reason for the termination given to all parties.

COMMUNICATIONS AND RECORD KEEPING

Communications: It is suggested that the peer review committee report its decisions and/or recommendations in writing within 60 days of the initiation of review to all parties concerned. It is recommended that, during each step of the review process, all letters and documents be stamped confidential and copies be sent to the executive offices of the state or local veterinary association. All phone conversations and informal discussions should be well documented, dated, and retained by the chairman of the peer review committee. Contents of all cases should be kept in strictest confidence.

The committee, in writing, informs all parties involved of their right to appeal its decisions.

A committee report should take note of cases of noncooperation by an involved veterinarian.

How a Review is conducted: The mediator makes his or her report to the committee and leaves. Each party is then interviewed separately by the committee.

Peer review is intended to be a mediation process. Because peer review is not a court of law, it is recommended that attorneys not be present at a review and that no verbatim report of the proceedings be made. The committee reaches a decision in closed session and writes a report (see Appendix 7).

THE COMMITTEE'S REPORT

A majority vote constitutes the decision of the peer review committee. Written minority opinions are permitted and should be included with the committee's final report.

The report should be specific with respect to the question raised and not include extraneous or unnecessary comment.

All parties are notified in writing of the committee's decision and recommendations with an explanation of the right to appeal (see Appendix 8). Copies of the committee's report and of all pertinent data should be forwarded to the parent association's executive offices. Contents of all cases should be kept in strictest confidence and be retained for the period of time advised by legal counsel.

APPEAL OF THE COMMITTEE'S DECISION

A decision can be appealed within 30 days, with the party initiating the appeal required to show cause why an appeal is justified. An appeal is justified if it can be shown that proper procedure was not followed, that information not available at the time of review has been developed, or that a decision was made that, on the face of it, ran counter to the evidence and testimony presented.

All parties have the right to appeal a decision of the committee when any of the previous conditions are alleged.

The request for appeal of a peer review committee decision should be sent in writing to the chief elected officer of the parent association. Such requests should specify and document the basis on which the appeal is requested in conformance with the three reasons for appeal listed above.

Decisions of local association peer review committees will be referred to the peer review committee of the next higher level association within the state's hierarchy of veterinary associations. For example, decisions of local association peer review committees may be appealed to a regional association, if one exists, or, lacking an intermediate association, it may be appealed directly to the state association's peer review committee.

APPEAL OF A DECISION BY A LOCAL ASSOCIATION PEER REVIEW COMMITTEE

The chief elected officer of the local association will assure that all of the documentation necessary to the appeal is present, and forward the request for appeal to the chairman of the peer review committee of the next higher echelon veterinary association in the state's hierarchy. The regional or state peer review committee will review the case and the appeal request and will decide whether or not the appeal is justified. The committee may: 1) reject the appeal as unwarranted and allow the original decision to stand; 2) hear the appeal case offering all parties to the decision the opportunity to present information.

APPEAL OF A DECISION BY THE STATE ASSOCIATION PEER REVIEW COMMITTEE

If a decision by the state association's peer review committee is appealed, the chief elected officer of the state, on receiving the request for appeal, will initiate an investigation of the appeal by the executive board of the state association. The executive board will review all of the facts of the case and the request for appeal and determine what further action is appropriate. The three most common alternative decisions available to the board are: 1) appeal is unwarranted and the challenged decision stands; 2) the case is sent back to the peer review committee for re-review, if the initial review is considered inadequate or incomplete; or 3) the executive board agrees to hear the appeal case.

The decision of the executive board is final within the peer review context.

CASES INVOLVING NONMEMBER VETERINARIANS

Because the state veterinary association has a responsibility to both the public and the veterinary profession, veterinarians who are not members of their state or local associations should be notified that they may also participate in peer review. This includes review at their request, the request of a client, or the request of a third party. Non-members being reviewed should agree to the review in writing.

PEER REVIEW LIABILITY LAW

State, regional, and local associations should purchase liablity insurance for all members participating in peer review committees.

An effort should be made to pass a peer review liability law in each state legislature. The sample law that follows is a guide, not necessarily a model. It does, however, contain elements which might be included when drafting a law for each state. Each association is strongly advised to seek legal advice on the appropriate format for its jurisdiction.

SAMPLE LAW

No member of a veterinary peer review committee of a state or local veterinary association shall be deemed liable in damages to any person for any action taken or recommendation made within the scope of the functions of such committee, if such committee member acts without malice and in reasonable belief that such action or recommendation is warranted by the facts known to him after reasonable effort to obtain the facts of the matter as to which such action or recommendation is made.

The veterinary peer review committee and its records shall be exempt from discovery proceedings.

GUIDELINES FOR USE OF VOLUNTEERS IN VETERINARY PRACTICE

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1985)

Each veterinary establishment that uses volunteer trainees should be aware of the labor laws within the state where the establishment is located.

Volunteer trainees will most likely not be considered employees if all the following criteria are met:

1. The training, even though it includes actual operation of the employee's facilities and equipment, is similar to that which would be given in a vocational school;
2. The training is for the benefit of the trainees or students;
3. The trainees or students do not displace regular employees, but work under their close supervision;
4. The employer who provides the training derives no immediate advantage from the activities of the trainees or students, and on occasion the operations may actually be impeded;
5. The trainees or students are not necessarily entitled to a job at the conclusion of the training period; and
6. The employer and the trainees or students understand that the trainees or students are not entitled to wages for the time spent in training.

PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY

The AVMA malpractice policy covers the veterinarian for his own acts and for the acts of others if he is liable for such acts. The volunteer whose actions lead to a professional liability claim against the veterinarian is not an insured individual under the policy. If the volunteer is sued jointly with the doctor, the AVMA Group Insurance Trust will usually offer a gratuitous defense in behalf of the volunteer, but with a clear understanding up front that in the unlikely event of a judgement being awarded against the volunteer, no payment will be made. If the volunteer alone is sued, he or she will receive no defense or coverage of any kind.

Veterinarians that do not have AVMA professional liability coverage, should check with their insurance carrier to establish to what extent their policy will cover volunteers' liability.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Each state has its own worker's compensation statue. In most states, the statute defines employees as persons in the service of another under any contract of hire. Volunteers do not meet this definition since they are not paid, and many states exclude them from coverage under workers' compensation statutes. Still other states construe them to be employees for coverage purposes. Where the statute is silent, insurance companies rely on case law to determine whether a claim is payable. Each veterinary establishment should check the workers' compensation statute in the state where the establishment is located to determine whether volunteers are covered.

AUTOMOBILE AND PUBLIC LIABILITY

Each veterinary establishment should check with its insurance carrier to assure that volunteers are covered by its automobile and public liability policies.

GUIDELINES REGARDING HAZARDS TO PREGNANCY IN THE WORKPLACE

(Approved by the AVMA House of Delegates, 1985)

It is incumbent on the veterinarian employer to inform all female employees or volunteers regarding the job hazards pertaining to pregnancy in the practice of veterinary medicine, those hazards are listed as physical, chemical, and biological.

It is recommended that veterinarians as employers become familiar with the occupational hazard laws of their respective states.

Unfortunately, lack of knowledge and improper counselling too frequently causes apprehension and despair among veterinary personnel. Consequently, it is essential that the employer carry out and document two steps in employee management: (1) new employee indoctrination (2) counseling during pregnancy.

1. ORIENTATION AND INDOCTRINATION

The initial step for any administrative protocol dealing with female employees involves orientation and indoctrination. During these orientation discussions, all female employees should be instructed as to their responsibility regarding pregnancy work hazards. Employers may wish to provide written materials on the subject.

Employers may wish simply to indicate in a general way what they may expect to experience and the potential association hazards.

The new employee should then be required to read and sign a form such as that shown in Figure 1 acknowledging that she has been instructed in this area and that it is her responsibility to notify her supervisor when she is pregnant or suspects she is pregnant.

NEW EMPLOYEE OR VOLUNTEER NOTIFICATION

This is to certify that __________, a new employee of __________ has received instructions regarding our mutual responsibilities should she become pregnant during employment.

I understand that should I become pregnant, it is my responsibility to inform my supervisor of my condition immediately so that additional protective measures can be taken.

Supervisor: __________ Employee: __________

2. COUNSELLING DURING PREGNANCY

The next point for action on the part of the administrator occurs when the female employee discloses that she is pregnant. The administrator should counsel the employee regarding appropriate restrictions to her schedule. Under no circumstances should termination or involuntary leave-of-absence occur.

AVMA Model Program to Assist Chemically Impaired Veterinarians, Veterinary Students, Animal Technicians and Their Families

INTRODUCTION

This program is a model for state veterinary medical associations wishing to assist chemically impaired veterinarins, animal technicians, veterinary students, and their families. A chemically impaired individual is defined as one whose use of alcohol or other drugs interferes with that person's ability to function professionally, socially, or in personal relationships. Chemical impairment affects nearly 1 out of every 15 persons in the United States. Veterinarians as well as others involved in the delivery of veterinary service and their families are not immune to this disease. As a matter of fact, ready access to alcohol and other drugs may contribute to an increased incidence of impairment among this group.

The steps in any program to assist chemically impaired individuals should begin with prevention and end with efforts to prevent the recovering person from relapse. The following outline describes the steps in the program and provides additional information to assist with implementation of a program. Although the program is described in a step by step fashion, these steps will be, of necessity, intertwined, repetitive, and omitted or modified in individual cases. These programs may be more successful if conducted in conjunction with other programs for impaired professionals and in cooperation with state licensing agencies. Several state medical, dental, pharmaceutical, and other professional associations have established programs for impaired professionals and may be willing to cooperate on an interprofessional level. In less populated states, the success of programs to assist impaired individuals may be dependent upon the cooperative efforts of several professional associations.

This model program was developed by AVMA's Committee on Impaired Veterinarins. Members listed below are working with established programs in their home states and are available to assist in the development programs in other states at no cost other than travel reimbursement:

Dr. Thomas E. Roberts, Chairman, P.O.Box 1147, Cody, WY 82414 (307-587-3151)
Dr. Dan G. Parmer, 4350 W. Ford City Dr., Apt. 402, Chicago, IL 60652 (312-650-1389)
Dr. F.M. Garner, 4416 Oak Hill Road, Rockville, MD 20853 (301-924-3794)
Dr. H. Larry Gore, 7131 Lake Ellenor Dr., Orlando, FL 32809 (305-851-3862)
Dr. J. Martin McDaniel, P.O.Box 396, Clackamas, OR 97015 (503-655-1771)
Dr. Blaine McGowan, 320 W. 8th St, Davis, CA 95616 (916-752-3088)
Dr. Robert Shomer, 10 Indian Field Court, Mahwah, NJ 07430 (201-837-3470)

FUNDING IMPAIRED PROGRAMS

Impaired programs need money to cover travel expense for persons involved with program function, development of educational and promotional materials, and presentation of conferences and workshops. In addition to funds from veterinary medical and auxiliary associations, financial support for impaired programs may be available from health and malpractice insurance carriers, pharmaceutical firms, and private foundations.

PREVENTION

- Brochures and other educational materials describing the problem of chemical impairment and the impaired veterinarian's program have been developed for distribution to state associations by AVMA. A resource manual for state programs can be obtained by contacting AVMA.
- Every state association should organize and fund a permanent committee on impaired veterinarians, consisting of at least two persons. (Some associations may establish several permanent committees to cover specific geographic regions within the state.)
- Auxiliary support and cooperation will be important to the success of state programs. When a person is chemically impaired, spouses and family members are usually those most affected. Auxiliary members should be on the program's committee.
- Educational programs for animal technology and veterinary students should be included in impaired programs.
- Conferences and workshops to discuss chemical impairment and publicize the program should be held.
- Publicity about the program should periodically appear in veterinary, auxiliary, student, and animal technician publications.
- Veterinary convention booths sponsored by state association committees on impaired veterinarians are an important means of publicizing the assistance available to impaired individuals, their families, friends, and associates.

DISCOVERING (IDENTIFYING) IMPAIRED INDIVIDUALS

- Absolute confidentiality is the most important feature of any successful program.[1]
- Referral of an impaired person to a program may be done by the affected person, a family member, colleague, close friend, or a state licensing agency.
- Telephone hotlines, preferably manned on a 24-hour basis, should be part of any successful program. When 24-hour coverage is not possible, one or two alternative telephone numbers of persons intimately involved with the program should be publicized.
- Information about the program and, when indicated, immediate personal assistance should be promptly furnished to persons who contact the telephone hotline or other individuals intimately concerned about helping impaired individuals.
- Referrals from state licensing agencies should be received with the understanding that the agency will not interfere with an impaired person who is undergoing treatment so long as satisfactory progress is being made.
- Verifying the facts in each case and confronting the impaired individual with the facts (called "intervention") should always follow discovery unless the impaired individual goes immediately into treatment or begins an Alcoholics/Narcotics Anonymous program.

[1] Several states have laws that protect recovering persons under treatment from being reported to state licensing agencies and from any action by a licensing agency so long as the individual is making progress in an impaired professionals program.

FACT FINDING AND VERIFICATION

- Responsible person/committee member should immediately visit the referring person to gather facts and background information.
- Information gathered should be reduced to time, date, and place of significant incidents, and limited to absolute facts.
- Fact finding should take a minimum of 4 hours, and probably more.
- Significant or meaningful individuals should be contacted to confirm initial findings.
- Employees interviewed may be reluctant to participate because of potential for loss of employment, interviewers should make employees aware of this potential.
- Primary information to be collected should include:
  - What prompted referral? What happened? How? Why?
  - Who is most affected? Spouse? Children? Colleagues? Clients? Employees?
  - Family history - Others in family involved with drugs or alcohol? Other background?
  - Meaningful or most significant person or persons in impaired individual's life. (employer, colleague, employee, spouse, personal friend, representative of the state licensing authority, etc.).
  - Other persons who are important to the impaired individual.
  - Insurance Coverage or other means available to cover cost of treatment for the impaired individual.[2]

- Availability of hospital or treatment center.
- Persons available to cover impaired veterinarian's practice.
- Alternative arrangements for contingencies.
- Personal information:
  - Is affected individual requesting help?
  - Is affected individual remorseful? Suicidal? Impaired driving record?
  - Can affected individual withstand pressure of intervention?
  - Will intervention be a surprise to affected individual?
    - Has affected individual - had blackouts, i.e. periods of memory loss?
      missed work or appointments?
      failed to answer telephone or taken it off hook for extended periods?
      abused anyone?
  - Does affected individual have medical problems? Ulcer history? Is he or she seeing a physician?
  - Are there financial problems, excessive spending?
  - Are spouse and family prepared for "rough" phases of intervention and treatment process?
  - Primary chemical or chemicals involved.[3]
  - How chemicals are used.
- Fact finding and verification should be followed as soon as possible by intervention.

[3] NOTE: This and other questions are very important to the physician and treatment center during detoxification and later treatment, and should not be viewed as simple curiosity.

INTERVENTION

- Intervention team must consist of a minimum of two persons, one of whom is a recovering individual.
- The interviewer/fact finder (usually a member of the permanent committee) assembles the intervention team, and may serve as team leader.
- The intervention team's composition is dependent upon facts available, but should include meaningful individuals who will have a specific role in the intervention. Depending upon circumstances, experienced/instructed individuals on the permanent committee need not actually participate in intervention.
- Persons with a punitive intent on excessive sympathy toward the impaired individual should be excluded from the intervention team.
- Prior to intervention, the team should rehearse "role playing" assignments and be prepared for alternatives during the actual confrontation. Use notes, if needed.
- Actual intervention must take place in an atmosphere of firm but loving care for the affected individual.
- Confrontation (actual intervention) should take place in neutral surroundings, possibly not the individual's home.[4]

[4] The person's office or the office or home of a colleague or friend may be more appropriate. The time and place of the confrontation should be determined during fact finding and role playing.

- During the confrontation, the intervention team should state the facts of the impaired person's condition, recommend treatment, and be prepared to "close off escape routes" by having solutions available for real or imagined reasons why the individual cannot start treatment immediately. The recovering individual on the intervention team will be familiar with various evasion tactics that are likely to ensue.
- Once the individual has agreed to treatment, a team member should always accompany the person to the hospital or treatment center. Transportation and admission to a treatment center should take place immediately.
- The intervention team must be prepared for emotional outbursts by the impaired individual including denial, disbelief, anger, aggression, refusal, and/or self-destructive impulses.
- Suicidal tendencies are prevalent among impaired individuals. The intervention team must be aware that such tendencies are not necessarily exacerbated by the confrontation/intervention process, but that impaired individuals may exhibit suicidal impulses. Nevertheless, the intervention team should not be diverted from its primary goal - to get the individual into treatment.
- Unsuccessful intervention may be successful at a later time. An impaired person who refuses treatment may be subject to being reported to the state licensing agency. If unsuccessful, follow-up contact should be maintained at timely (montly) intervals via telephone or personal visits.

TREATMENT

- In-patient therapy at approved alcohol and drug treatment and rehabilitation centers is highly recommended. Most courses of therapy include four days of hospitalized detoxification followed by a competent evaluation and four weeks to four or more months of therapy in the treatment center.
- Appropriate follow up in an alcoholic or narcotics rehabilitation program is mandatory component of a successful program for impaired individuals, and may include participation in special professional programs specified by the appropriate authority.
- Non-resident therapy for impaired individuals is usually less than satisfactory. Some state laws require in-patient therapy for licensed professionals.
- Concomitant therapy for family members must also be included in a successful program.
- The impaired person who drops out of the program may be subject to being reported to the state licensing authority. Many insurance companies will not honor claims from persons who have dropped out of in-patient treatment and therapy programs.
- Persons who drop out of courses of therapy should be encouraged to begin the program again. Many impaired individuals who are recovering successfully have reentered the program several times before being able to make it completely through the active treatment portion of the program.

TERMINATION OF ACTIVE TREATMENT

- An adequately monitored follow-up program of three-to-five years duration is an absolute necessity to assist the recovering individual. Some states or programes require that impaired individuals sign a written contract agreeing to undergo rehabilitation.
- Volunteers who monitor the recovering individual should have a case load of not more than three persons.
- Long-term recovering persons are often ideal volunteer monitors.
- Individuals who are recovering from drug impairments should have periodic chemical analysis of urine specimens. Some state programs require samples to be taken with a physician in attendance.
- Impaired individuals must bear the costs of laboratory tests and other procedures during the follow-up period.
- Involvement in alcohol or narcotics rehabilitation programs must be a part of the follow-up period.
- Family follow-up and support, such as AL-ANON, Etc., must be included.

PREVENTING RECURRENCE

- The most crucial period occurs when the impaired person reenters the profession. Reversion to the impaired state is more likely to occur at this time than at any other time in the recovery process.
- Persons reentering the profession may need licensure advocacy, continuing education deficit correction, financial and legal counselling, and/or alternative meaningful employment, if reentry is not possible.
- Support from persons acquainted with the problem and maintenance of continued confidentiality will be particularly helpful to the impaired individual.

- Support from persons acquainted with the problem and maintenance of continued confidentiality will be particularly helpful to the impaired individual.

- Recovering persons need to receive continuous positive reinforcement of the benefits of recovery.
- Continued attendance at an alcohol or narcotics rehabilitation program has proven to be the best form of prevention.

Guidelines For Animal-Facilitated Therapy Programs

(Approved by the AVMA Executive Board, 1983)

Statement of Position

When the AVMA officially recognized the importance of the human/animal bond to client and community health in 1982, it really acknowledged that the human/animal bond has existed for thousands of years and that this relationship has major significance for veterinary medicine. As veterinary medicine serves society, it fulfills both human and animal needs. The veterinarian, as an individual and a professional, is in a position to provide community service and to aid in the scientific evaluation and documentation of the health benefits of the human/animal bond.

Animal-Facilitated Therapy

Today, animals provide many positive human health benefits: companionship, a friend to care for and to keep one occupied, something alive and warm to touch, a focus of attention, a reason for exercise, and to provide protection. Therapy programs using animals have evolved worldwide in many forms and with many names whenever a need for an opportunity has arisen. Usually these programs are directed toward people with health problems requiring rehabilitation, such as the elderly, physically handicapped, deaf, blind, emotionally or physically ill or persons in correctional institutions. However, most individuals and families can and do benefit from human/animal relationships.

Locations

Programs may take place at home on a one-to-one basis with a hearing dog, at a nursing home with an animal-visitation program, at a correctional institution with a resident mascot, or at a horseback riding center for the mentally or physically impaired.

Veterinary Involvement

Veterinarians may be asked to participate in programs in a variety of ways.

1. Approached by a client that has read about animal-facilitated therapy, who wishes to start a program for a parent in a nursing home, and asks a practitioner for advice.
2. Approached by the director of a nursing home or day care center, who wishes to develop a program and seeks guidance from a local veterinary medical association.
3. Approached by the director of a humane society or animal shelter, who wishes to use adoptable random-source animals in a program and would like the veterinarian to aid in animal selection and provide health care for the animals.
4. As part of a community service project, a veterinarian may initiate a visiting pet program by encouraging the cooperation of the local veterinary association, a humane society, a scout troop, and a health-care facility.

The field of animal-facilitated therapy is open to innovative and creative thinking. Many situations exist in which animal-facilitated therapy has yet to be tried.

How To Get Started

An animal-facilitated therapy program should be started only after there has been adequate advanced preparation and discussion by everyone that will be involved. Simply bringing animals in contact with the target population is not sufficient. On the other hand, programs can become so structured with regulations that they never get off the ground or they subsequently flounder. Each program has its own potential benefits and problems.

Animal Selection

Animals should be selected on the basis of type, breed, size, age, sex, and especially behavior appropriate for the intended use. The animal should be chosen with the target population in mind. Experience shows a boisterous, overactive dog may be friendly but inappropriate for a nursing home in which most patients are using walkers. A visiting calf or lamb may be more effective with patients who have rural background than would a caged rodent.

Health Care

1. Animals should be selected that are healthy, well trained, temperamentally suitable, and appropriately immunized.
2. A health-care plan is needed to prevent and/or to minimize the risk from common zoonotic diseases such as rabies, psittacosis, and salmonellosis, as well as internal and external parasites.
3. The current Compendium of Animal Rabies Vaccines (prepared by The National Association of State Public Health Veterinarians, Inc. P.O. Box 13528, Baltimore, MD 21203, and published yearly in the Journal of the AVMA and/or state guidelines should be followed.
4. Humane animal care should include appropriate grooming, feeding, watering and exercise schedules. Animals should be monitored for clinical signs of stress and their well-being should be ensured.

Client Education

No one is in a better position than the veterinarian to monitor the health and welfare of the animal used in an animal-facilitated therapy program. Fundamental animal handling, behavior, housing, and husbandry may have to be explained. Feeding, watering, and exercise schedules should be established. A specific individual, such as a staff member, should be responsible for the animal and its well being. Animals should be monitored for clinical signs of stress and their humane treatment should be ensured. Potential health hazards of common zoonoses should be discussed and evaluated with the facility staff.

Fundamental Steps

1. Become informed about animal-facilitated therapy concepts and current programs.
2. Be knowledgeable about local and state laws concerning use of animals in the designated facility. Federal regulations do not prohibit use of animals in federally funded health-care facilities.
3. Contact and encourage cooperation and participation of facility directors, activities directors, and facility staff. This is vital to the successful animal-facilitated program.
4. Establish realistic program goals. An unstructured rush of enthusiasm can lead to early people burnout and abandonment of the program.
5. Employ a team approach. Recruit help from community resources, such as psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers, occupational therapists, humane groups, 4-H clubs, riding clubs, civic and church groups, foundations, nurses, and your clients.
6. Talk about it.

ESSENTIAL REQUIREMENTS OF AN ACCREDITED OR APPROVED COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

(As Revised by the Council of Education and Approved by the House of Delegates, July, 1987)

A. STATEMENT OF GENERAL POLICY

1) The Council on Education will evaluate each college of veterinary medicine in the United States and Canada in terms of the degree to which it meets its own stated objectives and the established criteria for accreditation. Evaluations will be conducted at intervals not greater than seven years and at lesser intervals as stated in the paragraph entitled "Classification," when in the judgment of the Council unusual conditions require more frequent evaluation, or at the request of the College.

2) Upon request the Council will consider evaluation of a proposed or newly established college. The Council offers consultation to any college on special problems concerning accreditation.

3) While reconizing the existence and appropriateness of diverse institutional missions and educational objectives, the Council subscribes to the proposition that local circumstances do not justify accreditation of a substandard program in veterinary education leading to a professional degree.

4) The Council requires an annual interim report from each accredited college describing any recent or anticipated changes and the ways in which previous Council recommendations have been met. When an accredited or approved college contemplates fundamental changes in its administration, organization, association with its parent institution, curriculum, faculty, instructional program, or stated objectives, the Council should be provided an opportunity to review the proposed changes prior to adoption.

B. AIMS AND PURPOSES OF THE COUNCIL

1) To meet the needs of society by promoting active programs in veterinary medical education. In fulfilling this function, the Council will encourage and assist colleges of veterinary medicine to meet the requirements for full accreditation.

2) To establish and apply criteria for the accreditation of colleges that offer programs leading to a professional degree in veterinary medicine. These criteria shall pertain to students, faculty, curriculum, facilities, research, graduate programs, and continuing education.

3) To publish periodically the accreditation status of the colleges as determined by the Council.

4) To study and to recommend methods of instruction in colleges of veterinary medicine with the objective of progressive improvements.

5) To support the colleges in their efforts to attract qualified faculty and support personnel.

6) To make recommendations concerning the establishment of courses that will enable veterinarians to meet changing professional demands and to meet the needs of the public whom they serve.

C. ESSENTIAL REQUIREMENTS

1) Organization. An accredited college of veterinary medicine must be a part of an institution of higher learning accredited by an organization recognized for that purpose by the United States or Canadian government. A college may be accredited only when it is a major administrative division of the parent institution and is afforded the same recognition, status, and autonomy as other professional colleges in that institution. The chief administrative officer or dean must be a veterinarian.

2) Finances. A college of veterinary medicine must have sufficient financial resources to meet the Essential requirements for accreditation. Clinical services must be offered for instructional purposes and not primarily as a source of revenue. The field services and hospitals must be supported financially by the institution as needed to function as a teaching laboratory. Provisions must be made to fund acquisition and maintenance of equipment.

3) Physical Facilities and Equipment. All aspects of the physical facilities must provide an appropriate learning environment. Classrooms, teaching laboratories, seminar rooms, and other teaching spaces shall be clean, maintained in good repair, and adequate in number, size, and equipment for the instructional purposes intended and the number of students enrolled. Adequate lighting and ventilation shall be provided.

Administrative and faculty offices, library facilities, research laboratories, and storage space must be sufficient for the needs of the faculty and staff.

An accredited college must maintain or be formally affiliated with an acceptable hospital for the humane care and treatment of animals. Appropriate service components, including but not limited to pharmacy, radiology, diagnostic support services, and necropsy facilities must be provided to support the teaching hospital. Isolation quarters and intensive care units must be provided for various species.

Facilities for the housing of animals used for teaching and research shall be sufficient in number, properly constructed, and maintained in a manner consistent with accepted humane standards. Adequate teaching, laboratory, research, and clinical equipment must be available for examination, diagnosis, and treatment of all animals used by the college.

4) Clinical Resources. An adequate number of normal and diseased animals of various species must be available for instructional purposes, either as clinical patients or provided by the institution. While it is unrealistic to specify the precise number of hospital, field service/ambulatory clinic, and outpatient cases required to provide adequate clinical instruction, it is essential that a sufficient number and variety of surgical and medical patients be available during the school year for students to have reasonable clinical experiences. The teaching hospital shall provide exemplary nursing care for its patients, as well as instruction in nursing procedures. A supervised field service and/or ambulatory clinic must be maintained in which students are offered ample opportunities to obtain clinical experience under field conditions.

Medical records must be maintained in an effective retrieval system. These records must include owner and patient identification, history, diagnosis, treatment, response to treatment, and case disposition. A system of classification and nomenclature of diseases and procedures shall be used for recording all information. All support service reports shall be a part of the complete record.

5) Library and Learning Resources. A library is essential to veterinary medical education, research, public service, and continuing education. Library facilities must be adequately housed, appropriately staffed, conveniently located, and available for the use of veterinary students and faculty at all reasonable hours. The library shall be administered by a qualified librarian and must be adequately budgeted for both operation and the purchase of learning resources.

There shall be an adequate collection of appropriate instructional materials for each subject, including books, periodicals, specimens, and audio-visual materials. The college shall have access to instructional materials development capability such as medical illustration and photography for producing materials for teaching, research, and publication purposes.

6) Enrollment. The total number of students attending a college of veterinary medicine must be consistent with the physical facilities, equipment, clinical accessions, and the number and qualifications of faculty, support staff, and administrative personnel.

7) Admission. An admission committee, a majority of which shall be full-time faculty members, shall make recommendations to the dean regarding the students to be admitted to the professional curriculum. The committee shall consider applications of candidates who meet the academic and other stated requirements of the college. Prescribed subjects for admission shall include college-level mathematics, English, physics, biology, chemistry, humanities or social sciences, and other credits prerequisite to the professional program in veterinary medicine. Factors such as character, communication skills, experience with animals, general knowledge, and motivation of the candidate may also be considered by the committee.

8) Faculty. The faculty must provide competence in all subject matter areas of the curriculium as well as effective teaching skills. There shall be evidence of a balanced program of teaching, research, and public service. Contribution to original knowledge is an important additional criterion in evaluating the faculty and the college. Faculty time must be scheduled to provide for the professional development of the individual.

Academic positions must offer the security and benefits necessary to maintain stability, continuity, and competence of the faculty. Part-time faculty, residents, and graduate students may supplement the teaching efforts of the full-time permanent faculty if appropriately integrated into the instructional program.

9) Curriculum. The professional curriculum shall extend over a period equivalent to a minimum of four academic years, and shall provide a sound foundation in the fundamentals of veterinary medicine. It must be sufficiently flexible to permit adjustment to new knowledge and techniques as they are developed. The instructional system shall provide opportunities for students, to develop the desire to continue their education throughout their lives and to appreciate fully the breadth and scope of the profession's responsibilities and opportunities.

The professional degree curriculum must provide instruction in at least the following subjects as applied to the various species of animals: anatomy, physiology, pharmacology, microbiology, parasitology, pathology, herd/flock health management, preventive medicine, public health, medicine, surgery, theriogenology, and other recognized clinical specialties. The program shall include instruction in professional ethics, humane stewardship of animals, client and professional relations, and veterinary economics. Elective opportunities shall exist to permit students to pursue additional training in traditional disciplines and to be introduced to new fields and related subjects.

Students shall be supervised and evaluated during applied instruction in hospital wards and field service/ambulatory clinics as well as in diagnostic, surgical, and necropsy laboratories. Such instruction shall include diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of animal disease, humane stewardship, procedures for quarantine and control of contagious diseases, and veterinary aspects of public health.

Animal use shall be monitored by an animal use committee in order to ensure humane care. The species of animals and the number to be used shall be carefully matched with specific teaching and research objectives.

10) Continuing and Postgraduate Education. Continuing education shall be a responsibility of the college. Faculty shall be encouraged to contribute to continuing education offerings for veterinarians and others.

Programs of study leading to advanced degrees, specialty board certification, and refinement of technical skills shall be identifiable from the professional degree program. Enrollment in postgraduate programs shall be commensurate with facilities, resources, and faculty qualifications.

D. CLASSIFICATION

With respect to the preceding " Essential Requirements," each college evaluated by the Council will be placed in one of the following classifications:

1) Full Accreditation. Meets or exceeds minimal requirements. This classification may be granted for a period not to exceed seven years.

2) Limited Accreditation. Meets or exceeds most, but not all, minimal requirements. This classification may be assigned for a period not to exceed five consecutive years. If major physical facilities are required to correct deficiencies and if the college has presented positive evidence that it will be eligible for full accreditation at the end of an additional two years, this extension may be granted.

3) Terminal Accreditation. Meets or exceeds some, but not all, essential requirements, and in the judgment of the Council will not be able to meet all of the essential requirements within a period of Limited Accreditation. This classification may be assigned for a period not to exceed four years, terminating in all cases in a classification of Accreditation Withheld.

4) Provisional Accreditation. Has not been in existence sufficiently long for students in the charter class to complete the professional program, but has complied with the prescribed conditions of this document for at least the first half of the professional curriculum. This classification may be assigned for a period not to exceed two years.

Each of the above classifications provides an "accredited" status to the college.

5) Accreditation Withheld. Does not meet the specifications for any classification of accreditation.

6) Approved. A college foreign to the United States and Canada that, upon evaluation by the Council, has been determined to meet or exceed all of the essential requirements. This classification may be assigned for a period not to exceed seven years.

7) Approval Withheld. A college foreign to the United States and Canada that, upon evaluation by the Council, has been determined not to meet the essential requirements.

8) Reasonable Assurance. A statement may be provided to an educational institution indicating that there is a reasonable assurance of future accreditation of a developing college of veterinary medicine, if such college is established according to plans presented to the Council and if these plans demonstrate intent to meet or exceed the essential requirements. This classification must be renewed annually.

At present, various schools are at the following levels of accreditation:

Full Accreditation	23 colleges
Limited Accreditation	6 colleges
Accreditation Withheld	0 colleges
Provisional Accreditation	1 college
Reasonable Assurance	1 college
Approved	1 college

[1] The term "College of Veterinary Medicine" or simply "College" is used throughout this document to indicate any educational unit offering education and training leading to a professional degree in veterinary medicine. The designations "College of Veterinary Medicine", "Veterinary College", "School of Veterinary Medicine", and "Faculty of Veterinary Medicine" are understood to be included wherever the term "College" is used.

(Accreditation Status As Of October 1, 1987)

Auburn University, College of Veterinary Medicine, Auburn, Alabama 36849, Dr. J. T. Vaughan, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 205-826-4000 (Accreditation-Full)

Founded in 1907 as the College of Veterinary Medicine from a division of veterinary science and physiology which was established in 1892. The name was changed to School of Veterinary Medicine in 1927. On July 1, 1985, the name once again became College of Veterinary Medicine.

From 1907 through 1916, the professional curriculum covered three years of nine months each; in 1917 it was increased to four years.

At first, entrance was by certificate from an accredited high school or by examination in high school subjects. In 1912, the entrance requirements were increased to 12 units or three years of high school, in 1914 to 14 units and in 1921 to 15 units of the successful completion of an examination of four years of high school work. In 1935, graduation from an accredited high school plus one year, or minimum of 30 semester hours of college work, was required. Effective with the academic year 1968-69 seven quarters, or equivalent, of study in an accredited college or university, with a minimum of 123 quarter hours or 82 semester hours, were required with a grade point average of at least 1.25 (A = 3). In 1980, the requirement is 128 quarter hours or equivalent semester hours with a grade point average of at least 2.50/4.00. The total number of graduates through 1987 is 4,136.

University of California, School of Veterinary Medicine, Davis, California 95616, Dr. Edward A. Rhode, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 916-752-1360 (Accreditation-Full)

The University of California organized a college of veterinary medicine in 1894, at the affiliated colleges on the San Francisco campus. Several classes and a total of 18 students were graduated. Because of meager enrollment the college was closed in 1900. A department of veterinary science was established in the College of Agriculture on the University of California Berkeley Campus in 1901, with the personnel devoting time to research in the agricultural experiment station.

The present School of Veterinary Medicine, situated on the Davis campus, opened in the fall of 1948 with 42 students. From 1949 through 1964 classes of 52 students were admitted; commencing in 1965 the entering class was 80 students, but was increased to 85 in 1970, 94 in 1972, 128 in 1978, and stablized at 122 in 1982. The first class was graduated in June 1952.

The curriculum in veterinary medicine covers a minimum period of seven years, three pre-veterinary and four in the professional curriculum. The student body, however, averages over four years of pre-veterinary medicine. Students without baccalaureate degrees admitted to the professional curriculum are granted the degree of Bachelor of Science in the School of Veterinary Medicine upon satisfactory completion of the first two years of work in the School. The degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine is granted upon satisfactory completion of the four year curriculum at the School. The school offers graduate study for the Master of Preventive Veterinary Medicine degree and confers residency certificates in prescribed clinical fields.

Academic graduate work for the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees is available in all major fields of veterinary medical science. The School has graduated 2,692 D.V.M.'s to date.

(Accreditation Status As Of October 1, 1987)

Colorado State University, College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences, Ft. Collins, Colorado 80523, Dr. James L. Voss, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 303-491-7051 (Accreditation-Full)

The professional school of veterinary medicine was established in 1907 with entrance requirements of 15 units of high school work. In 1932, the requirements were increased to require graduation from an accredited high school, plus one year of preveterinary college work. Requirements were further increased in 1949 to two years of college and again in 1972 to three years of preprofessional coursework to meet the minimum admission standards. In 1987, the preprofessional requirements were revised to a minimum of two years of university coursework. Most students, however, complete over four years of college work prior to entry into the professional curriculum.

From 1907-1912 the professional curriculum took three years to complete; since 1913, four years have been required for completion of the doctor of veterinary medicine degree.

The College operates a regional school providing educational opportunities in veterinary medicine for residents of Colorado and other states of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE), including Alaska, Arizona, Hawaii, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Utah, and Wyoming, as well as a limited number of non-resident, at-large students. Approximately 124 students are admitted in each entering class. As of 1987, 3,945 students have been graduated with the D.V.M degree.

The College also offers undergraduate degrees in microbiology and environmental health. Programs leading to the master of science and doctor of philosophy degrees are offered in all departments of the College. Residency training and internships are available in clinical fields.

Authorized by act of the legislature in 1894 and established in 1896, the college receives public support but is administered by the trustees of Cornell University, a private corporation. Entrance requirements include three years of college work with credits in several specific subjects.

The first class graduated in 1897. Prior to the formation of the veterinary college, Dr. James Law was professor of veterinary science at Cornell University from 1868, when the university was founded. The Cornell University faculty provided for degrees in Veterinary Medicine in 1871. (A Bachelor of Veterinary Science, B.V.S., after 4 years of study; a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, D.V.M., after 2 additional years.) In 1876, Daniel Elmer Salmon received the D.V.M. degree, the first to be awarded by a university in the United States. In 1910 Florence Kimball received the first D.V.M. to be awarded to a woman in this country. Degrees presently awarded are D.V.M., M.S., Ph.D., and D.Sc.V.M. The total number of graduates, including the class of 1987 is 3,764.

University of Florida, College of Veterinary Medicine, Gainesville, Florida 32610, Dr. Kirk N. Gelatt, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 904-392-3261 (Limited)

In 1965, the Florida Legislature authorized the establishment of a College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Florida. Funds for preliminary planning were appropriated in 1969 and 1970. A university advisory committee recommended that the instructional activities be developed, organized and budgeted as a component of the University's J. Hillis Miller Health Science Center and that the programs of the College concerned with extension and research on livestock and poultry diseases be developed and budgeted as part of the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

On April 1, 1971, a dean was appointed. Construction on two building was completed in 1977. The first building included the administrative offices, teaching hospital and clinics, research laboratories and an animal research unit. It is located on a 100 acre site on the property of the J. Hillis Miller Health Science Center. The second building is a basic science and research unit located contiguous to this buildings of the Health Science Center.

A core-elective curriculum is composed of three phases. Phase I is concerned with the structure and function of normal animal systems and events that occur at the cellular level. Phase II considers the abnormal animal: general pathology, etiology of diseases; specific diseases on an organ system basis; diagnosis and treatment. Phase III is composed of two components: core clinical training and elective clinical rotations, courses and special field experience.

University of Georgia, College of Veterinary Medicine, Athens, Georgia 30602, Dr. David P. Anderson, Dean; Main Telehone Number: 404-542-3461 (Accreditation-Full)

A division of Veterinary Medicine existed in the College of Agriculture from 1918-33. This unit granted 67 D.V.M. degrees.

In 1946, a School of Veterinary Medicine was established by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia. The first class of students was admitted that fall and first year classes were taught in the College of Agriculture. Officially, the School of Veterinary Medicine became a separate unit in July, 1947. Also in that year a Dean was appointed and a new physical plant was begun.

In 1948, the School of Veterinary Medicine entered into a compact agreement with the Southern Regional Education Board providing spaces in the College for regional students. This arrangement is still in effect.

The name was changed from School to College of Veterinary Medicine in 1970 by the Board of Regents. This was in recognition of the diversity of the overall program including well-developed programs in undergraduate, professional and graduate study.

The number of students in any given year was decreased to its present level of 80 in 1987. Accepted students average 4 years of preprofessional training. The professional degree program (D.V.M.) is 4 academic years in length. Post-graduate study leading to the M.S. and/or Ph.D. degree is available through 6 departments of the College.

The University of Georgia has graduated 2,514 veterinarians through 1986.

The College of Veterinary Medicine was established in 1944, although veterinary science courses had been offered in the College of Agriculture since 1870. Presently, 80 first-year students are accepted and the three remaining classes are filled.

All applicants to the professional curriculum must present a minimum of 60 semester hours of preprofessional course work from a fully accredited college or university. A minimum cumulative grade point average of 3.5 (3.0 = C) is required, however, the current acceptance level is substantially above that level.

Candidates for the DVM degree must have passing grades in all courses taken and a C or better average in all courses in the veterinary medical curriculum. Graduate work leading to the degree of M.S. and Ph.D. is offered in the three departments of the College.

The facilities for the College include a new Veterinary Medicine Animal Clinics and Hospital complex, a new basic sciences building including a diagnostic laboratory, and an 80-acre veterinary research farm.

The first class graduated in 1952, and a total number of graduates is 2,031 as of 1987.

Authorized in 1877, and established in 1879, the school had its origin in the combined course in agriculture and veterinary medicine previously given at the college. At first, the extrance requirements were examinations in specified subjects; beginning in 1911, graduation from an approved high school was required. In 1931, one year of prescribed college work was added and, in 1949, two years of prescribed college work (90 quarter credits or 60 semester credits) were required for admission.

From 1879 to 1887, the professional curriculum covered two years, and was then increased to three years. In 1903, the course was extended to four years, the school being the first in this respect among American veterinary colleges.

The first class graduated in 1880, and consisted of 5 men who had considerable advanced training and were given their degree after one year. The total number of graduates to date is 4,469.

The curriculum leading to the degree, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, was established effective in 1905. However, beginning in 1886, courses were offered to students enrolled in Agriculture, but not for veterinary degree credit. At first, the school was known as the Department of Veterinary Medicine; it became the Division of Veterinary Medicine in 1919, and in 1943 the name Division, was changed to School. In 1963, it was designated a full College. Until 1919 the supervising officer was designated as head.

At first, 15 units of high school work (equivalent to graduation) were required for admission. Effective in 1932, 32 hours of college work were required. Effective with the academic year of 1981-82, 71 hours of preveterinary medical college work were required.

Louisiana State University, School of Veterinary Medicine, Baton Rouge, Louisiana 70803, Dr. Everett D. Besch, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 504-388-3202 (Accreditation-Full)

The School of Veterinary Medicine was established in 1962 and again in 1967 by resolution of the LSU Board of Supervisors and authorized in 1968 through action of the Louisiana State Legislature.

From 1968 to 1973, activities of the project planning group dealt with program development, curriculum definition, facilities planning and faculty acquisition. The first entering class of 36 students was selected in August, 1973 and instruction in veterinary medicine began on January 3, 1974. Interim facilities were located on the Baton Rouge Campus prior to the completion of the veterinary medicine building. Maximum entering class size of 80 was attained in 1976 and maximum enrollment in 1979-80. The first class was graduated in May, 1977. The number of veterinarians graduated to date is 740.

The Veterinary Medicine Building, a multi-purpose, three-storied structure of contemporary design, was occupied in June of 1978. This compacted building, 324,125 gross square feet of floor space, provides facilities for 320 students in the professional program (approximately 400 in all programs) and supports six departments: Anatomy and Fine Structure; Veterinary Clinical Sciences; Epidemiology and Community Health; Microbiology and Parasitology; Pathology; and Physiology; Pharmacology and Toxicology. A minimum of 66 semester credit hours of collegiate study are required for enrollment. Graduate studies through the Ph.D. degree are available in general departments.

The School received renewal of its full accreditation status in November, 1984.

Michigan State University, College of Veterinary Medicine, East Lansing, Michigan 48824-1316, Dr. John B. Tasker, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 517-355-6509 (Accreditation-Limited)

Courses in veterinary science had been taught at East Lansing since 1878 by what was then called Michigan Agricultural College. In 1909 the Michigan legislature authorized a complete program leading to the D.V.M. degree, which the governing board established in 1910 as a four-year curriculum under a Division of Veterinary Science. The name was changed to School of Veterinary Medicine in 1944 and to College of Veterinary Medicine in 1955 when the parent institution became Michigan State University.

At first the entrance requirement was graduation from high school. In 1935, one year of preveterinary college work was added. Beginning in 1949, two years of preprofessional training were required for admission. At present, the equivalent of at least two years of college-level preprofessional education, including a prescribed list of coursework, is required for admission.

The first class, consisting of one man, was graduated in 1913. The number of veterinarians graduated to date totals 4,034.

The college is organized into two clinical departments that focus on small and large animal clinical sciences, respectively, and five basic science departments – anatomy, microbiology and public health, pathology, pharmacology and toxicology, and physiology. The basic science departments are shared with the College of Human Medicine and the College of Osteopathic Medicine at Michigan State University, a unique relationship that enhances the teaching, research, and clinical programs of all three units.

The college also operates a teaching hospital, a statewide animal health diagnostic service, and a program in veterinary technology.

Postgraduate study leading to the M.S. and/or Ph.D. degree is available through all departments of the college. Residency training and internships are available in clinical fields.

The University of Minnesota, College of Veterinary Medicine, St. Paul, Minnesota 55108, Dr. R. H. Dunlop, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 612-624-9227 (Accreditation-Full)

The College of Veterinary Medicine was established by the 1947 Legislature and the University Board of Regents as a School of Veterinary Medicine. On July 1, 1957, the Board of Regents established it as a College of Veterinary Medicine with the same administrative status as the other professional colleges in the University. Since its inception in 1947, the College has continually expanded its facilities for teaching, research and public service. The 1971 Legislature appropriated funds for further expansion of the College; construction of a new building (Phase I of a planned building expansion program) was completed in fall, 1975, and the building occupied in January, 1976. This facility houses portions of both basic science and clinical science facilities. The Phase II building program authorized by the Legislature in 1979 was completed in 1982. It provided a superb base for the College's instructional and clinical programs.

The College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Minnesota traditionally has served as a regional facility, providing educational opportunities for residents of neighboring states, viz., North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin, as well as Minnesotans. In the recent past, compacts have been made with North Dakota and Nebraska to enable guaranteed numbers of their residents to attend the College at resident tuition rates, with the home state contributing to the cost of the student's eductaion. Wisconsin and South Dakota participate in reciprocity agreements. The enrollment in 1985 was 80 students. This will be reduced to 72 in 1986-87. About 100 students are enrolled in Masters and Ph.D. programs.

The College is organized into five departments - Veterinary Biology, Veterinary Pathobiology, Small Animal Clinical Sciences, Large Animal Clinical Sciences, and Veterinary Diasnostic Investigation. The latter department is responsible for operation of the Minnesota Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory. One associate dean is responsible for Academic Affairs, Equal Opportunity and International Programs. An associate dean for planning and veterinary medical services oversees the Veterinary Teaching Hospital Animal Resources and capital programs. Another associate dean coordinates research and graduate education.

The curriculum is four years and emphasizes the acquisition of skills and behaviors expected of veterinary scientists in modern society. Other noteworthy features of the curriculum include body system integration, learning by use of explicit objectives, employment of a system of comprehensive examinations, and use of computers to provide access to medical information.

The graduate program provides training leading to the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in Veterinary Medical Science in the fields of Veterinary Pathology, Toxicology, Infectious Diseases and Production Animal Diseases. The College received full accreditation in 1985.

University of Missouri, College of Veterinary Medicine, Columbia, Missouri 65211, Dr. Robert F. Kahrs, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 314-882-2121 (Accreditation-Limited)

Veterinary Medicine at the University of Missouri-Columbia is based on the long-standing concern for livestock health in Missouri. The first instruction in veterinary medicine at UMC was offered in 1872.

Strong impetus was given to veterinary medicine at UMC by Dr. John W. Connaway, who became head of the Department of Veterinary Science in 1891. Dr. Connaway, in collaboration with Dr. Mark Francis of Texas, conducted the key research which led to the solution of the problem of Texas fever. Dr. Connaway went on to direct the Hog Cholera vaccination program and serum production in Missouri. He was also a strong proponent for establishing a professional-level veterinary curriculum at UMC.

In 1946, the first students were admitted to the new professional program. In 1949, the Department of Veterinary Science became the School of Veterinary Medicine. The first class graduated in 1950. In 1985, the total number of graduates stood at 1,648. Starting in 1976, 76 students were admitted each year to the professional curriculum. The School became the College of Veterinary Medicine in 1974.

In addition to the professional curriculum, advanced degree programs in various disciplines have been made available.

The College is located on the same campus as a College of Agriculture and a School of Medicine, and is located in the same city with a cancer research hospital.

University of Montreal Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, Saint Hyacinthe, Quebec, Canada J2S 7C6, Dr. Raymond S. Roy, Dean. (Accreditation-Full)

Actually established in 1886 as a school to serve the French-speaking people of greater Montreal, this school had earlier origin and connections with (1) Montreal Veterinary College (English), founded in 1866 and closed in 1902, (2) School of Veterinary Medicine, in Montreal (French), founded in 1885, and annexed in 1894, (3) Veterinary School of Quebec (city), founded in 1886 and closed in 1894. The Veterinary School of Montreal was founded in 1886 by V. T. Daubigny and the present school is its normal continuation. Various changes in name, affiliation and location took place; in 1928, the school was moved from Montreal to Oka, was managed by the Trappist Fathers, where it remained until 1947, when it was moved to St. Hyacinthe and affiliated with the University of Montreal. Since 1969, the school is fully integrated to this University.

The earlier entrance requirements are not known, more recently they have been a collegial studies certificate (D.E.C.) from a C.E.G.E.P., or at least one year of biology at a University. Currently, applicants must have completed a minimum of two years of College studies including: Physical Education 12 cr., Philosophy 12 cr., French 12 cr., Complementary courses 12 cr., Health Sciences concentration including: Mathematics 6 cr., Physics 9 cr., Chemistry 9 cr., Biology 6 cr., and two credits in those four courses at the choice of the student.

Prior to 1918, the course covered three years, then it was lengthened to four years and to five years in 1941. Since 1957, the course was four years for students having a B.A. degree or the equivalent and five years for other candidates. It is now four years for all students. Because of the mixed origin of the school, the number of graduates and the year the first class graduated cannot be stated with certainty. To date, the total number of graduates is 1,904. This is the only French-speaking school in North America. In 1986, we celebrated our 100th anniversary.

The General Assembly of North Carolina established a School of Veterinary Medicine at North Carolina State University at Raleigh on June 26, 1975. Construction funds were appropriated in the next several sessions of the legislature and construction of the main facilities, to include the teaching hospital, library, classrooms, teaching and research laboratories, was initiated in January 1979.

The first class was admitted in 1981. The school's facilities are designed to accommodate four classes of 72 veterinary students plus residents, interns and graduate students. Since 1983, 72 students have been admitted in each class.

A four-year curriculum was established as a requirement for the Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree.

The Ohio State University, College of Veterinary Medicine, Columbus, Ohio 43210, Dr. Ronald A. Wright, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 614-292-1171 (Accreditation-Full)

Established in 1885 as the School of Veterinary Medicine, it was made the College of Veterinary Medicine in 1897. The school had its origin when the Board of Trustees of the University, realizing the proportion of the state's wealth which was invested in livestock and sensing the need for its adequate protection from contagious diseases, petitioned the legislature for the establishment of a veterinary college.

At first, the entrance requirements were either examination in specified subjects, high school graduation, or a teacher's certificate. In 1906, the requirements were increased by examination in additional subjects, a high school diploma being accepted in lieu of examination for such required subjects as it included. In 1933, one year of preveterinary college work was required and, beginning with the academic year 1949-50, two years.

From 1885 to 1914, the professional curriculum covered three years; it was increased to four years in 1915. The first class graduated in 1887 and the total number of graduates to date is 4,326 D.V.M.'s. In addition, 284 M.Sc. and 101 Ph.D. degrees have been granted by the Graduate School for students majoring in graduate programs in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Oklahoma State University, College of Veterinary Medicine, Stillwater, Oklahoma 74078, Dr. Joseph W. Alexander, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 405-624-5000 (Accrediation-Full)

Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College and the Agricultural Experiment Station was established by an act of the First Territorial Legislature in 1890. The School of Veterinary Medicine was established in 1947.

The name of the College was changed to Oklahoma State University and the School was changed to College in 1957.

The College had its origin in the Department of Veterinary Medicine which was one of the very early departments of the Agricultural Mechanical College. This department offered service courses to students in agriculture.

Work in the College is outlined to provide a thorough and well balanced course in veterinary medicine and when completed will lead to a degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

Entrance requirements are as follows: Completion of the equivalent of two years of prescribed college work, including courses in Zoology, Botany, Microbiology, Genetics, Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Biochemistry, English, and electives to present not fewer than 60 semester hours, exclusive of military training and physical education. From the beginning, the professional curriculum has been four years in length. Post-graduate study leading to the M.S. and/or Ph.D. degree is available through three departments of the College.

Ontario Veterinary College, University of Guelph, Guelph, Ontario, Canada N1G 2W1, Dr. N. Ole Nielsen, Dean. (Accreditation-Limited)

The Ontario Veterinary College was established in Toronto, Canada, in 1862 by Andrew Smith, F.R.C.V.S. It was the first of the accredited veterinary colleges now operating in America and has been in continuous operation since its establishment. In 1908 the College became a government institution under the Minister of Agriculture of the Province of Ontario. At the same time, through an arrangement with the University of Toronto, graduates of the Veterinary College could proceed to a third year of study; on successful completion of this additional year candidates received the degree of Bachelor of Veterinary Science from the University.

In 1919 the College was affiliated with the University of Toronto, the entrance requirements were established as junior matriculation (the equivalent of four years of secondary school), and the degree of Bachelor of Veterinary Science was conferred on all graduates of the course which now extended over four academic years.

The College was removed from Toronto to Guelph in 1922. This new location provided better facilities for practical instruction and made possible the establishment of an ambulatory clinic at a later date.

In 1945 the entrance requirements were raised to senior matriculation (the equivalent of five years of secondary school) with better-than-credit standing in specified subjects. At the same time the degree conferred on graduates was changed to Doctor of Veterinary Medicine and granted for the first time in 1946.

In 1949 the course was lengthened to five academic years. In 1965 the College became a Faculty of the University of Guelph, with a course of study consisting of four professional years following two years of preveterinary education at the university level.

The total number of graduates of the College in 1985 inclusive is 8,053.

College of Veterinary Medicine at Oregon State University, Corvallis, Oregon 97331, Dr. Loren D. Koller, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 503-754-2141 (Accreditation-Full)

Courses in Veterinary Science were among the subjects taught at Oregon State Agriculture College as early as 1892. In 1910, the Department of Veterinary Science was established within the School of Agriculture. In 1914, a veterinarian, Dr. BennettT. Simms, was employed and the name of the Department was changed to Veterinary Medicine.

In 1975, the State Legislature, responding to the need for more veterinarians in Oregon and to the need for increasing the opportunities for Oregonians to study veterinary medicine, established the School of Veterinary Medicine at Oregon State University (OSU). A new veterinary teaching facility was constructed at Oregon State University in 1980.

At least seven years of study, three pre-professional and four professional, are required to earn the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. The College has a unique educational program in that it teaches the major portion of its curriculum on the OSU campus and acquires a part of the curriculum through a cooperative arrangement with Washington State University and the University of Idaho. It is on this basis that the College carries the accreditation status of full accreditation.

Each year 28 residents of Oregon and eight residents from the Western Regional Compact states (Alaska, Arizona, Hawaii, Montana, New Mexico, Utah, and Wyoming) enter Oregon State University and take their first year of professional study on the Corvallis campus. These 36 students then transfer to Washington State University for their second and part of their third year of study. At the end of April in their third year, they then transfer back to Oregon State University to complete their third year and to take their fourth and final year of instruction.

The first class of veterinary students entered the College in September, 1979, and received the DVM from Oregon State University in 1983.

First proposed in 1807 by a member of the medical faculty at the University, the school was authorized by the Board of Trustees in 1878, established in 1883 and actually opened in 1884. This is the first school of the currently accredited veterinary colleges in the United States which had its origin in medicine rather than in agriculture.

At first, admission was by examination in specified subjects, or by high school certificate. In 1914, two years of high school were required for entrance and this was raised to four years in 1916. In 1936, one year of preveterinary college work was required and, in 1940, two years. In 1970, three years or preveterinary college was required.

From 1884 to 1915, the professional curriculum covered three years; it was increased to four years in 1916. The total number of graduates to date is 4,281.

University of Prince Edward Island, Atlantic Veterinary College, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada C1A 4P3, Dr. Reginald G. Thomson, Dean. (Accreditation - Reasonable Assurance)

Agreements signed in 1983 by the Government of Canada and those of the four Atlantic Provinces (i.e. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, and Prince Edward Island) led to the establishment of Canada's fourth school of veterinary medicine.

The first students were admitted in the Doctor of Veterinary Medicine Program in September 1986. Although the M.Sc. program has received all necessary approvals from the University's Senate and from government, it is unlikely that any students will be enrolled at the graduate level until 1987. It is also in 1987 that the veterinary teaching hospital is slated to be opened.

Admission requirements include: 1) a total of 30 one-semester university-level courses (including Genetics, Microbiology, Comparative Anatomy, Organic Chemistry, Biochemistry, 2 Physics with 1 Biophysics preferred. Calculus, Statistics, Computer Science, 2 English including 1 with a strong writing requirement, 5 additional Humanities and Social Sciences, and 13 free electives); plus 2) 400 hours or more of food animal-related experience; and 3) 40 hours each of large animal and small animal veterinary-related experience.

In 1957, the Indiana General Assembly authorized the establishment of the School of Veterinary Science and Medicine at Purdue University. In 1974 the name was changed to the School of Veterinary Medicine. The first class of fifty students was enrolled in 1959. Five departments comprise the research and instructional units of the School as follows: (1) Department of Veterinary Anatomy, (2) Department of Veterinary Physiology and Pharmacology, (3) Department of Veterinary Microbiology, Pathology and Public Health, (4) Department of Large Animal Clinics, and (5) Department of Small Animal Clinics. Prior to the establishment of the School, a Department of Veterianry Science had existed at Purdue University since 1887, primarily as a research and service department in the Purdue Agricultural Experiment Station. The research and extension activities of this department have been retained in conjunction with the School of Veterinary Medicine.

The facilities include the basic science areas, large and small animal clinic facilities, the Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratory, and animal isolation units for the housing of research animals. A three hundred and seventy acre research farm provides facilities for research on animal diseases of agronomic importance.

The curriculum covers a minimum of six years; two years in preveterinary studies and four years in the professional school. The departments of Veterinary Anatomy; Veterinary Physiology and Pharmacology; and Veterinary Microbiology, Pathology, and Public Health are authorized by the Graduate School to offer programs in graduate study and research leading to the degree, Doctor of Philosophy. The Department of Large Animal Clinics and the Department of Small Animal Clinics are currently authorized to provide programs leading to the Degree of Master of Science. Residency programs exist in both clinical departments and an intern program is available in the Department of Small Animal Clinics.

A two-year associate degree program in Veterinary Technology was initiated in June 1975.

University of Saskatchewan, Western College of Veterinary Medicine, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada S7N 0W0, Dr. G. F. Hamilton, Dean. (Accreditation-Full)

The Western College of Veterinary Medicine was established at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon, Canada in the Fall of 1963 to serve the needs of the four western Canadian provinces, namely, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Dr. D. L. T. Smith, the first dean, arrived in the Spring of 1964 and the College began its development. The first class, which numbered 27, graduated in 1969. Currently, the class size is 70. By the summer of 1987, the College had graduated 1,065 veterinarians, most of whom have taken up residence in western Canada.

At least two years of pre-veterinary university training are required for admission. The D.V.M. curriculum is presented over four years with a 32-week academic year.

The Western College of Veterinary Medicine has been accredited by the A.V.M.A., C.V.M.A. and the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons.

The College expansion was completed in 1981 and there are now about 300,000 square feet of gross space. The College is organized into seven departments - Anatomy; Physiological Sciences; Microbiology; Pathology; Anesthesiology, Radiology and Surgery; Internal Medicine; and Herd Medicine and Theriogeniology. In addition, the service responsibilities of the institution are administered through the Veterinary Teaching Hospital which encompasses the Large Animal Clinic, Small Animal Clinic, Field Service and a number of supporting diagnostic service functions. The Veterinary Teaching Hospital provides the facilities and clinical practice for the various formal post-graduate programs, while the academic departments are responsible for direction and content. Currently, personnel includes approximately 74 faculty and 105 support staff.

All departments offer graduate programs. Research training is recognized through M.Sc. and Ph.D. degree programs and clinical training is achieved through internship, residency, diploma, and M.Vet.Sc. programs. The College has wide-ranging research programs but has given particular emphasis to gastroenterology, preventive medicine, toxicology, reproduction and wildlife diseases.

In 1975 an independent research unit, the Veterinary Infectious Disease organization (VIDO), was established on the campus at the University of Saskatchewan. This unit is dedicated to research on indigenous infectious diseases of importance to the Canadian livestock industry. Currently, it is staffed with 22 professional and 20 support staff. Presently, it has four major projects, namely, neonatal disease in the calf, bovine respiratory disease, porcine respiratory disease and hemorrhagicenteritis in turkeys.

Headquarters and principal facilities of the College are located on the Knoxville campus of the University. Satellite facilities for teaching and research are located at several other locations in the state.

The College of Veterinary Medicine has a three-year year-round, core-plus-options curriculum. The equivalent of at least three years of university-level preprofessional education, including certain specified subjects, is required for admission. The first class was admitted in September 1976. Formal graduate programs, residency training, and continuing education are offered. First class of 39 students graduated June, 1979.

The College has a unique administrative organization. The Department of Animal Science, which includes anatomy, physiology, nutrition, and animal behavior, is jointly administered by the College of Veterinary Medicine and the College of Agriculture. The Department of Microbiology, which includes basic bacteriology, virology, mycology, and immunology, is jointly administered by the College of Veterinary Medicine and the College of Liberal Arts. Texas A&M University, College of Veterinary Medicine, College Station, Texas 77843, Dr. George C. Shelton, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 409-845-5051 (Accreditation-Full)

Veterinary medicine has been taught at Texas A&M since 1888. A school of veterinary medicine was established in 1916 with 13 students. The first dean was Dr. Mark Francis, the pioneer investigator of Texas Fever and the "Father of Veterinary Medicine in Texas". The College has seven academic departments and multiple other units such as the Veterinary Teaching Hospital, Biomedical Learning Resources Center, Center for Comparative Medicine, and the Environmental Toxicology Program.

The professional curriculum was changed from 8 required semesters to 9 required trimesters in 1963. In 1979, the College returned to the Early Semester Calendar and a four year program. A new professional curriculum requiring 83 preprofessional and 180 professional semester credits was implemented in 1985.

The Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (D.V.M.) degree is awarded on successful completion of the professional curriculum. Formal graduate programs, intern and residency training and continuing education are available at the postdoctorate level.

The school became the College of Veterinary Medicine in August 1963 when the name of the parent institution was changed to Texas A&M University. In 1986, the College and its component programs became a part of the Texas Veterinary Medical Center.

Tufts University, School of Veterinary Medicine, 200 Westboro Road, North Grafton, Massachusetts 01536, Dr. Franklin M. Loew, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 617-839-5302 (Accreditation-Full)

Tufts University, established in 1852, established New England's only school of veterinary medicine in 1978, accepted its first class of students in 1979, and awarded its first D.V.M. degrees in 1983. The School shares Tufts' Boston campus with the schools of medicine and dental medicine and with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's nutrition research center. Medical, veterinary medical, and dental students spend their first two professional years in Boston where the shared basic sciences departments are based.

The School's 635-acre clinical campus is in N. Grafton, Mass., 37 miles west of Boston, where students spend their final two professional years. On this campus are the Foster Hospital for Small Animals, the Hospital for Large Animals, the Wildlife Clinic, the Amelia Peabody Pavilion, and clinical libraries, research laboratories, and the School's main administrative offices. As well, the School operates a working farm there, raising sheep, swine, cattle, and horses, and cultivating 160 acres of hay, corn, and triticale. Woodstock, Conn., 40 miles south of N. Grafton, is the base of the School's ambulatory farm service clinic.

Class size is 65 and about 70% of the students are from Massachusetts, 10% from the rest of New England, and 20% from elsewhere in the U.S., Canada, or other countries.

Virginia Tech and University of Maryland, Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine, Blacksburg, Virginia 24061, Dr. Peter Eyre, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 703-961-7666 (Accreditation-Limited)

A College of Veterinary Medicine for Virginia and the region was authorized at Virginia Tech by the 1974 Virginia General Assembly. A Dean was appointed in 1974 and in 1978 the first construction funds for a three-phase construction program was authorized. Phase I of the building program, the Interim Clinic, was completed in 1981. Phase II, the administrative-teaching-research facility, was completed in 1983. Phase III, the Veterinary Medical Teaching Hospital, is scheduled for completion in 1986.

The State of Maryland legislature has appropriated funds for the Avrum Gudelsky Veterinary Center on the University of Maryland, College Park Campus, with construction scheduled to begin in 1987.

The College has five academic departments. Four discipline-based departments are at Virginia Tech: Veterinary Biosciences, Pathobiology, Small Animal Clinical Sciences and Large Animal Clinical Sciences. A fifth department is located at the University of Maryland, College Park campus.

The college curriculum is a four-year course leading to the DVM degree. The curriculum is based upon the block system of instruction and consists of core courses and clerkships, including both course work and clinical training offered at the teaching hospital and in off-campus facilities. Admissions requirements include at least two years in an accredited college or university. Instructional, research, and service programs are a joint effort of the regional college.

Graduate programs leading to the Ph.D. degree in Veterinary Medical Sciences were initiated in 1985.

Washington State University, College of Veterinary Medicine, Pullman, Washington 99164, Dr. Robert B. Wilson, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 509-335-3564 (Accreditation-Full)

In 1890 the legislature of the state of Washington authorized the establishment of the State Agricultural College, Experiment Station and School of Science, now officially designated as Washington State University. One of the major subjects to be taught was veterinary art.

In 1899 the School of Veterinary Science was made a major division of the college, and courses leading to the professional degree were offered. Two years of high school credit were required for admission, and three years of professional study qualified one for the degree, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. The administrative officer was known as head of the department.

In 1906 high school graduation was required for admission, and four years of study were required for graduation. Reorganization of the state college occurred in 1917, and the department was then administered by a dean. In 1925 the name of the division was changed to the College of Veterinary Medicine.

In 1935 one year of specified college credit was required for admission; in 1949 this was increased to two years. Preveterinary requirements are currently a minimum of three years. The total number of graduates to date in 1981 is 2,362.

The college is organized into three departments: Veterinary and Comparative Anatomy, Pharmacology and Physiology; Veterinary Microbiology and Pathology; and Veterinary Clinical Medicine and Surgery, which are in turn made up of divisions. Graduate programs in veterinary science lead to the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees, which may be taken concurrently with the D.V.M. degree.

A regional program initiated with Idaho (1974) and with Oregon (1977) is referred to as the Washington-Oregon-Idaho Regional Program in Veterinary Medicine (WOI).

The University of Wisconsin-Madison, School of Veterinary Medicine, Madison, Wisconsin 53706, Dr. B. C. Easterday, Dean; Main Telephone Number: 608-263-6716 (Accreditation-Provisional)

The School of Veterinary Medicine, University of Wisconsin-Madison, was established by Wisconsin legislative action in 1979. Construction began in 1981 and the facilities were completed in March 1983.

The mission of the School is to provide the state of Wisconsin with a comprehensive program of veterinary medical education, research and public services. These activities are accommodated in 3 facilities. The main facility (240,000 gross square feet) with clinics, instructional laboratories and lecture rooms, research laboratories, and administration is located on the Madison campus. An instructional and research animal holding facility (70,000 gross square feet) is located on one of the university farms about 3 miles from the main facility. A satellite food animal clinical facility (12,000 gross square feet) is located at River Falls, Wisconsin.

The School is organized into four departments - Comparative Biosciences, Pathobiological Sciences, Medical Sciences and Surgical Sciences. A major objective of the School is a curriculum and associated programs leading to the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. In addition to the DVM degree, the School provides for new and expanded programs in graduate training, continuing education, and veterinary medical specialties. The instructional clinics at Madison and River Falls provide for both primary animal health care and referal services. Expanded and new research programs relating to animal and human health programs are being integrated into graduate and specialty training programs of the School.

The School admitted its first class in the professional program in the fall of 1983. Each class will consist of 80 students. According to present admissions requirements, students will present a minimum of 67 semester credits of preprofessional coursework from an accredited college or university in addition to direct animal experiences.

NOTE: We don't represent this to be a comprehensive list of all veterinary schools in the world. It includes all schools that were listed by the World Health Organization in its World Directory of Veterinary Schools, last published in 1973. The list of schools in Central and South America was updated using the 1983 Pan American Health Organization publication "Diagnosis of Animal Health in the Americas". The list also includes additional schools that have come to our attention for reasons related to the ECFVG program, licensing requirements, or members who graduated from those schools. Such schools are listed here only after correspondence with the national government assures that the school is officially recognized by that government as a professional school of veterinary medicine.

(A) Approved by AVMA
(E) Language of Instruction is English

ANIMAL TECHNOLOGY

Beginning in the 1970's many two-year programs for training animal technicians have been developed in response to an increasing need for personnel qualified by formal training to assist in veterinary practices, biological laboratories, animal research, food inspection, and other areas that require knowledge of both science and animals. Because animal health care delivery continues to become more complex, supplementary technical assistance is needed to give veterinarians additional time for clients and patients. Technicians with specialized training in animal health and animal care are also needed by public health organizations, research institutions, pharmaceutical manufacturers, and universities. Formal academic training programs enable a large group of potential employees to acquire educational backgrounds that will allow them to adapt to particular job situations quickly and easily.

Graduates of two-year college-level programs in animal technology are generally referred to as animal technicians. However, the terminology may differ slightly at various schools or with individual state laws and regulations.

Many employees in veterinary hospitals, research institutions, and other animal care facilities have received training on-the-job, in secondary schools, or at less than the two-year college level. These individuals are commonly called animal attendants, animal caretakers, hospital attendants, animal ward nurses or animal health assistants.

Two other types of veterinary-support personnel are laboratory animal technicians, whose training has been primarily oriented to laboratory animals, and animal technologists, who have had training in a four-year baccalaureate degree program.

Duties Performed by Technicians

An animal technician is knowledgeable in the care and handling of animals, in basic principles of normal and abnormal life processes, and in routine laboratory and clinical procedures. The technician is primarily an assistant to veterinarians, biological research workers, and other scientists.

Examples of duties which might be performed while assisting a practicing veterinarian include:

- obtaining and/recording information about cases;
- preparing patients, instruments, and equipment for surgery;
- collecting specimens and performing certain laboratory procedures;
- dressing wounds;
- assisting in diagnostic, medical, and surgical procedures;
- exposing and developing diagnostic radiographs;
- communicating with animal owners.

In general, the duties of an animal technician in a veterinary practice may include any part of the practice which does not involve diagnosis, prescription, surgery, or any activities prohibited by the veterinary practice act of the state in which a technician is employed.

All functions of an animal technician are performed under the supervision of a veterinarian.

In addition to veterinary practices, animal technicians are employed in a number of other situations such as laboratories doing biological research, companies producing drugs or feeds, animal production facilities, zoos, and meat packing companies. Duties performed in such places include:

- record keeping;
- animal care and feeding;
- laboratory procedures;
- equipment and product maintenance;
- inspection of products or carcasses;

In such employment, the technician works under the supervision of a scientist or a senior technologist.

College placement offices can assist students in finding job opportunities, preparing resumes, and scheduling interviews with prospective employers.

Training

Graduates of animal technology training programs should be prepared to assist in a wide variety of animal health care activities. Each accredited program is designed to develop the knowledge, understanding, and abilities required of technicians who work under professional supervision. Most programs cover two academic years of college-level study and lead to an Associate in Applied Science or equivalent degree. Courses are usually taught by experienced veterinarians, as well as animal technicians, who are aware of what the students future employers will expect them to know.

The core curriculum of an animal technology program includes, fundamentals of chemistry, applied mathematics, communications skills, humanities or liberal arts, and biological science.

Specific course material in an AVMA accredited program includes:

- Orientation to the vocation of animal technology
- Ethics and jurisprudence in veterinary medicine
- Animal husbandry, including restraint, species and breed identification, and sex determination
- Principles of veterinary anatomy and physiology
- Animal care and management
- Biochemistry
- Medical terminology
- Veterinary office management
- Diseases and nursing of companion animals, food production animals, horses and laboratory animals
- Animal nutrition and feeding
- Anesthetic nursing and monitoring, including instrumentation
- Surgical nursing and assisting, including instrumentation
- Necropsy techniques
- Pharmacology for animal technicians
- Radiography, utilizing live animal patients
- Comparative animal hematology
- Veterinary parasitology
- Veterinary clinical biochemistries
- Animal microbiology and sanitation
- Clinical experience in veterinary practice

Accredited programs offer students practical experience with live animals. Many allow for some elective courses to meet special interests of certain students, and generally use the summer vacation period for student acquisition of practical experience. All programs are designed to provide background knowledge and basic skills upon which graduate technicians can build once they are employed and begin to learn specific procedures they will be expected to perform.

Patience, compassion and a willingness to be part of the animal health care team are important assets for an animal technician. A newly graduated technician should be able to handle the common domestic species of animals; know at least one method for performing each of several common laboratory procedures; and be familiar with the names and uses of ordinary drugs, instruments and items of equipment. The employing veterinarian will teach and demonstrate the specific way various procedures are carried out in the technician's particular place of employment and will expect the technician to understand and meticulously follow directions.

Admission to Training Programs

Most programs require applicants to have a high school diploma or equivalency certificate. Other factors include aptitude, interest, and ability of the applicant to profit from the courses offered. Some programs require prerequisite high school or college courses before a student can be admitted. Specific entrance requirements vary somewhat and should be requested from the school or schools to which a student plans to apply. Generally, a strong background in high school science courses is helpful. High school career counseling personnel can assist students in selecting a school and preparing applications.

Many training programs are accredited by the AVMA's Committee on Animal Technician Activities and Training and others are in the process of obtaining accreditation or upgrading their programs to meet accreditation standards. A complete list of accredited programs is available from the AVMA.

Registration

Many states require animal technicians to be registered or certified. Specific registration provisions vary according to the needs and laws of the various states. A summary of laws and regulations dealing with animal technicians in the individual states is available from AVMA. The Laboratory Animal Technician Certification Board sponsored by the American Association of Laboratory Animal Science (AALAS) provides examinations and registry for technicians who are eligible and employed in laboratory animal facilities.

Correspondence Courses

AVMA does not accredit correspondence courses. It is the opinion of the Association that an individual seeking a career in animal technology is well advised to attend a two-year program at an accredited institution of higher learning where courses are taught in clinical and laboratory settings with the use of live animals.

Salaries and Benefits

According to a survey of animal technology programs conducted by AVMA in 1983, average starting salaries ranged from $8,583 to $12,500 per year. Average salaries for experienced graduates of accredited programs ranged from $9,133 to $17,735 per year. Additional benefits may include social security, health insurance, paid vacations, sick leave, and retirement programs, but will vary greatly depending on the individual employer. The level of compensation achieved by an experienced animal technician is most often based on such factors as diligence, punctuality, poise and appearance, ability to anticipate the needs of the veterinarian, attitude, performance of assigned duties, initiative, and ability to follow instructions.

Animal Technician Organizations

A number of state and local organizations of animal technicians have been formed. Leaders of these groups have taken initial steps to form a national organization for graduate animal technicians. Continuing education programs, employment services, and social and job-related activities are common features of these groups which benefit their members. A listing of state and local animal technician organizations is available from AVMA.

Essentials of an Acceptable Program for Training Animal Technician

To be fully accredited by the American Veterinary Medical Association, a program in animal technology must meet the following minimum requirements:

1. It shall be a part of an accredited institution of higher learning.
2. It shall be on a sound financial basis.
3. It shall conduct itself in an ethical manner.
4. The physical plant and equipment must be adequate for purposes intended.
5. The number of students enrolled shall be in keeping with the size of the facilities and faculty.
6. Library facilities must be adequate.
7. Admission requirements shall include high school graduation or equivalent good character, initiative, and motivation.
8. The faculty shall be fully qualified in the subject areas to be taught.
9. The curriculum must provide a sound foundation in basic animal technology, and promote habits of mind that will inspire the student to continue to be educated. It shall cover at least two academic years. It shall include basic general college level courses, as well as specific, job-oriented courses to be taught in laboratory and clinical settings with the use of live animals. The specific courses shall be taught on a very practical plane with the intent of making the student a useful assistant.
10. A system shall be established to evaluate the activities of the graduates of the program.
11. An effort shall be made to provide opportunities for continuing education for employed animal technicians.

Classification of Accreditation Used By AVMA Committee On Animal Technician Activities and Training (CATAT)

Programs evaluated by CATAT will be placed in one of the following classifications with respect to the Essential Requirements listed above. The accreditation status of each accredited program will be published annually, and made available upon request continuously.

Full Accreditation

Those programs that meet or exceed all minimal requirements.

Probational Accreditation

Those programs that meet or exceed most, but not all, minimal requirements. Any program on Probational Accreditation that does not make annual progress toward correcting its deficiencies, or any program that has been on Probational Accreditation for five successive years will be classified Accreditation Withheld.

Provisional Accreditation

Those programs that meet or exceed most, but not all, minimal requirements and that have not completed the entire program and placed graduates.

Accreditation Withheld

Those programs that do not fall in any of the above categories.

CLASSIFICATION OF ACCREDITATION

Programs evaluated by CATAT will be placed in one of the following classifications with respect to the Essential Requirements listed in CATAT-1. The accreditation status of each accredited program will be published annually, and made available upon request continuously.

FULL ACCREDITATION
Those programs that meet or exceed all minimum requirements.

PROVISIONAL ACCREDITATION
Those programs that meet or exceed most, but not all, minimum requirements and that have not completed the entire program and placed graduates.

PROBATIONAL ACCREDITATION
Those programs that meet or exceed most, but not all, minimum requirements. Any program on Probational Accreditation that does not make annual progress toward correcting its deficiencies, or any program that has been on Probational Accreditation for five successive years will be classified Accreditation Withheld.

ACCREDITATION WITHHELD
Those programs that do not fall in any of the above categories.

SPECIALTY BOARDS AND DIPLOMATES

American Board of Veterinary Practitioners

(Recognized by the AVMA on July 16, 1978)

Dr. Roger C. Kuhn
Executive Secretary
2024 Lombard Street
San Francisco, CA 94123

OBJECTIVES: The purpose of the ABVP is to promote and recognize highest standards in the art and science of general veterinary clinical practice. To accomplish this the ABVP seeks:

1. To recognize veterinary practitioners, qualified by examination, who fulfill the specific, functional role of delivering superior, modern, comprehensive veterinary services.
2. To promote the development of graduate education programs with particular emphasis on residency training.
3. To provide an incentive and reward for continuing education and experience following the attainment of a Veterinary Degree.
4. To encourage the development of regional referral centers.
5. To encourage its members to pursue scientific investigations and to report their findings in the veterinary literature.
6. To cooperate with organizations working to improve practice standards and methods.
7. To recognize the multidisciplinary skills needed in today's clinical veterinary practice.

PREREQUISITES FOR EXAMINATION: The ABVP was established to certify veterinarians having a broad knowledge of many clinical subjects. To make certification accessible to more practitioners, the accreditation procedure does not require long, specific, formal, multi-year training programs. Applications are obtained by written request from the Executive Secretary of the ABVP, and are returned to the Executive Secretary along with other required materials on or before August 1 of the year preceding the date of the examination. To be eligible for examination, the following requirements must be satisfied:

1. Applicants must be a graduate of a college of veterinary medicine accredited or approved by the AVMA, or hold a certificate from the Educational Commission for Foreign Veterinary Graduates (ECFVG) or be licensed to practice in some state or province of the United States or Canada.
2. Applicants must be members of the AVMA. (Residents of countries other than the United States do not have to be members of the AVMA.)
3. Applicants must have completed one year in active practice or have completed a rotating internship working primarily with the species for which they are applying. In addition, the applicant must either have completed a two year, approved residency program at a university or similar approved institution OR have completed an additional five years of excellent clinical practice. In order for a residency program to be acceptable, the program must have been multidisciplined and primarily spent with the designated species for which the candidate is applying and must be approved by the Credentials Committee of the ABVP.
4. Applicants must submit letters of reference and demonstrate an ongoing commitment for attending continuing education programs.
5. Applicants must be licensed to practice veterinary medicine in the U.S. or Canada. (Exceptions may be approved by the Council of Regents.)
6. Applicants must provide two articles or case reports in a form suitable for publication in a refereed journal. These reports should include history, diagnosis, diagnostic procedures, treatment, and any histologic, necropsy, or follow-up findings and should represent experience in a variety of disciplines involving the designated species category for which the candidate is applying.
7. Applicants must pass the examination procedure. Applicants will be notified by January 1 if they have been accepted to sit for the examination.

EXAMINATION PROCEDURE: The examination, which is administered annually in conjunction with the AVMA meeting, is in three parts. Each candidate must take all three parts. To pass the examination a candidate must achieve a minimum passing score on each part, as well as an overall passing score. Candidates may repeat any part(s) of the examination he/she does not pass. All examination requirements must be completed within three years from the date the candidate is first accepted by the Credentials Committee.

Support and guidance in the construction of the examination is provided by the Professional Examination Service, 475 Riverside Drive, New York, N.Y. The ABVP Examination Committee is responsible for the development, administration, and scoring of the examination. An appeals procedure, as outlined in the Bylaws of the ABVP, is available by contacting the Executive Secretary of the ABVP. The three parts of the examination are:

1. Core examination: This part tests basic science information (physiology, pharmacology, anatomy, cardiovascular system, etc.) and will not be species orientated. All items will be five-part multiple choice questions.
2. Designated species examination: companion animal practice, food animal practice, equine practice. Candidates must take only that species examination for which they are applying. All items will be five-part multiple choice questions.
3. Written practical examination: Slide presentation. Including the use of audiovisual aid. Candidates are referred to the Candidate Guide For Examination for further information regarding the examination.

CERTIFICATIONS: Final approval for Diplomate status must be granted by the Council of Regents of the ABVP. A certificate will be issued to the successful Diplomate indicating the specialty category of practice, i.e., Companion Animal, Food Animal, or Equine. The Certificate will expire 10 years from the date of last certification. Prior to expiration a recertification examination will be given.

Plan A-Residence Program

Residency training for not less than two years in Veterinary Anesthesiology in a clinical department of a School or College of Veterinary Medicine. The training period shall comprise application of methods for rendering patients insensible to pain during surgical and medical procedures, the support of life functions, especially during the stress of anesthetic and surgical manipulation.

Practice of clinical anesthesia acceptable to the credentials committee for a minimum of one year is required subsequent to the two year residence training. A publication in a referred journal demonstrating results of experimental or clinical investigation in veterinary anesthesiology shall be included with the candidate's application for examination.

Plan B-Combined Residency and Post-Doctoral Program

Formerly Specialty of Dermatology — American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine

Dr. Lloyd M. Reedy, Secretary
2353 Royal Lane
Dallas, TX 75229

OBJECTIVES: The primary objectives of the College shall be to advance veterinary dermatology and increase the competency of those who practice in this field by:

(1) Establishing guidelines for post-doctoral education and experience prerequisite to certification in the specialty of veterinary dermatology.

(2) Examining and certifying veterinarians as specialists in veterinary dermatology to serve the public by providing expert care for animals with dermatologic disease.

(3) Encouraging research and other contributions to knowledge relating to pathogenesis, diagnosis, therapy, prevention and control of diseases directly or indirectly affecting the skin of all animals, and promoting communication and dissemination of this knowledge

PREREQUISITES FOR CERTIFICATION:

(1) The candidate shall have served a minimum of one year internship in a veterinary college, other institution or have otherwise obtained appropriate clinical experience to be approved by the Credentials Committee.

(2) The candidate shall have a minimum of two years of educational experience in the discipline of dermatology after completing the one year internship (section 1). An applicant must have a total ofthree years experience after graduation to be eligible for the examination.

(3) An alternative to the conventional full time two year residency program in veterinary dermatology is available. The goal of this program is to allow the qualified veterinarian to pursue via a flexible, individualized program, the education necessary to fulfill the board certification requirements of the A.C.V.D.

The alternative residency program should prepare the individual in veterinary dermatology and its related fields in a similar manner as a conventional residency program. The program may be pursued on a full time or part time basis and may involve training under multiple individuals.

General Qualifications

An applicant for an alternative residency must have the same general qualifications as required of Diplomates, namely:

A. Be a graduate of a veterinary school or college.

B. Have satisfactory moral and ethical standing.

C. Be approved to practice veterinary medicine in a state or province of the U.S.A. or Canada.

D. Foreign applicants should have an equivalent license to practice in the country of citizenship.

E. Be a member of the AVMA or an equivalent National Veterinary Medical Association.

F. Have completed a one-year internship or practice equivalency.

Program Supervision

All alternative residency programs are to be under the direct supervision of a diplomate of the A.C.V.D. This individual is hereafter referred to as the Preceptor. College members are not required to act as Preceptors. This commitment is voluntary. The Preceptor is responsible for the alternative residency program but need not perform all of the training of the Resident.

Length of Program

A part time alternative residency program must be of at least three years duration. Once the program is accepted by the Credentials Committee, the residency must be completed within 6 years of its initiation.

Documentation

1. All alternative residency programs are to be approved by the Credentials Committee of the A.C.V.D. before the training begins. Any training obtained prior to the approval date may or may not be acceptable.

2. The alternative residency program must be documented completely before it is submitted for approval. Any individual, institution or organization who will supervise a part of the residency must supply a written acceptance of their commitment, a description of their part of the program and the date(s) of the training period. Approximate dates are acceptable. The Preceptor is to receive this information and include it in the program description.

3. After the program is accepted, the Preceptor must submit yearly progress reports. All individuals who are participating in the training of the Resident should document the Resident's performance and forward this material to the Preceptor for inclusion in the yearly report.

4. If the training program does not develop as it was described in the initial application or if the Resident's performance becomes unsatisfactory, the Preceptor must notify the Credentials Committee immediately. The Committee has the authority to withdrawal approval of the program permanently or temporarily until appropriate modifications can be made. The decision of the Credentials Committee can be appealed by notice to the President within 30 days.

5. At the end of the training period, the Preceptor must notify the Credentials Committee that the training has been satisfactorily completed. Appropriate documentation should be forwarded to the Committee for its review. Once the Committee has approved the training, the Resident can submit his application for certification provided that all other qualifications are met.

6. Approval of the training of an individual does not guarantee the acceptance of the application to take the certifying examination since all other aspects of the credentials process must also be completed satisfactorily.

Training

1. An alternative residency program is designed to train the Resident in all aspects of veterinary dermatology. All appropriate study areas such as basic dermatology, histopathology, comparative dermatology and clinical dermatology should be included.

2. Alternative residency programs must include clinical training periods under the direct supervision of a board certified veterinary dermatologist. The Preceptor of the program may perform all or part of this clinical training. If the clinical training is to be done under multiple individuals, no more than four dermatologists or institutions should participate in the training.

(4) At the completion of training, the candidate shall submit 4 (four) copies of an application packet (each collated in a separate cover). Each packet shall contain:

(a) Completed application form

(b) Curriculum vitae

(c) Copy of residency certificate or letter approving the alternative residency program

(d) Copies of Dermatology Publications (not submitted as case summaries under (e). Two are required. The candidate must be first author on one and first or second author on the other. Paper must be published or accepted for publication in a referreed journal. At the discretion of the committee, a paper ready for publication may be accepted.

(e) Typed summaries of three dermatologic cases which the candidate has personally managed.

(f) Letter from ACVD preceptor(s) certifying satisfactory completion of training program.

5) To receive diplomate status, the candidate must pass the certifying examination given by the College. Portions of this examination will include questions on internal medicine relevant to the practice of dermatology.

6) The candidate shall submit the examination fee with the application. Fee is determined annually—presently $150. Application deadline is January 1st.

General inquiries should be directed to the Secretary. Prospective candidates should consult current JAVMA listings regarding forthcoming examination dates. Applications must be received by the Credentials Committee by January 1st for consideration for that year's examination.

EXAMINATION PROCEDURE: The certifying examination is designed to test the candidate's broad and specific knowledge of skin and skin disorders (cellular and subcellular, microscopic and macroscopic, physiologic and pathologic, etiologic and clinical). The examination is given annually (pending qualified candidates) at a time and location acceptable to the Examination Committee and the College, and only for those candidates approved by the Credentials Committee.

The examination covers all phases of dermatology, as well as aspects of internal medicine related to the practice of dermatology, and is weighted approximately as follows: 80% small animal, general and comparative; and 20% large, laboratory and exotic animals. In addition, the approximate weighting of subject content is as follows: (1) structure and function 20%, (2) parasitology 16%, (3) internal medicine (dermatology) 18%, (4) bacteriology 12%, (5) immunology 8%, (6) endocrinology 8%, (7) mycology 3%, (8) neoplasia 3%, (9) miscellaneous (allergy) 12%.

American College of Veterinary Surgeons

(Recognized by the AVMA on June 21, 1976)

Dr. Alfred G. Schiller, Executive Secretary
405 Park Lane Drive
Champaign, IL 61820

OBJECTIVES: The constitution of the American College of Veterinary Surgeons states: The objectives of the American College of Veterinary Surgeons shall be the advancement of the art and science of surgery and the protection of the public against incompetence by: (1) The development of methods of graduate teaching in veterinary surgery with particular reference to the resident system. (2) The establishment of a certifying agency to qualify members of the veterinary profession as specialists in surgery. (3) The encouragement of its members to pursue original investigations and to contribute to the veterinary literature.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION: The constitution of the American College of Veterinary Surgeons (ACVS) has established the following requirements for active membership status:

1. Be either a graduate of a veterinary college accredited by the AVMA or meet all requirements for licensure of foreign veterinary graduates as defined by the AVMA. The Board of Regents may excuse this requirement upon request.
2. Have a satisfactory moral and ethical standing in the profession. Evidence of professional or legal misconduct, such as misrepresentation or committed felony, may be reason for disqualification.
3. Have devoted at least four years, by the application deadline, to special education, training and practice of veterinary surgery after the date of graduation from veterinary school. Any deviation from the approved sequence must be authorized by the Residency Liaison Committee and have prior approval by the Board of Regents (see GUIDELINES FOR RESIDENCY PROGRAM. The following sequence of training is to be used.
    a) The first year must be a rotating internship, or its equivalent as defined by the ACVS (see Standard Programs).
    b) The second, third, and fourth years shall comprise a three-year postgraduate training program under the supervision of diplomates of the ACVS designed to educate the resident primarily in the art and science of surgery. There shall be additional instruction in the related disciplines of medicine, radiology, anesthesiology, clinical pathology and the basic sciences of anatomy, physiology, pathology.

4. Have made a significant contribution to veterinary surgery, as represented by publications and demonstrated by a high standard of proficiency in the specialty. In keeping with the constitutional objectives of the ACVS, each applicant must demonstrate willingness to contribute to the literature. The minimum requirement is two major surgical publications,* in print or fully accepted for publication (proof provided) in a refereed scientific journal, for which the applicant is the senior or sole author and which have resulted from the applicant's research or practice of surgery. These publications must not be more than five years old at the application deadline. Other types of publications, such as case reports, are encouraged but will not satisfy the publication requirement. Responsibility for evaluating the quality of the publications rests with the Credentials Committee.

5. Have successfully passed the examination by the College and certification by the Board of Regents.

*A major surgical publication is one that is beyond the level of a single case report. It is a multiple case study (prospective or retrospective) that has significant conclusions which have not been previously documented. Alternatively, it may document the development of a new technique or original research. The conclusions must be based on data of more than one case. A review article will not qualify unless the author has documented expertise in the area and is contributing material beyond a review of previous literature. Neither a single case report, even with extensive associated literature review and discussion, nor textbook chapters qualify as major surgical publications.

A refereed journal is one governed by policies and procedures established and maintained by a standing editorial board that requires each manuscript submitted for publication to be subjected to critical review and approved by at least one recognized outside authority on the subject.

EXAMINATION: The examination will test all phases of surgery in all species and types of animals as well as competence in areas of specialization. The examination is composed of three sections.

1. The written section consists of multiple choice questions with one correct answer. This part of the examination consists of questions which cover the areas of gastrointestinal, cardiovascular, respiratory, musculoskeletal, urogenital, neurologic (including special senses) and integumentary surgery. Of these questions, approximately 50% are of a general nature, 25% pertain to small animals and 25% to large animals. Furthermore, in each organ system, questions will be asked on the basic sciences (anatomy, physiology, pathology), pharmacology/anesthesia, surgical techniques, diagnosis and surgical treatment.

2. The practical examination is made up of questions with large and small animal surgery equally represented. The practical section of the exam is designed to test interpretive skills and the questions are based on 35 mm slides of surgically related diseases or conditions. Slides depict anatomical specimens, instruments, surgical diseases, pathologic and histologic speciments, and radiographs. Upon viewing the slides, the candidate may be asked to give information regarding: diagnosis, method of treatment, interpretation of radiographs, identification of instruments or equipment. The answers are short written answers of one word or phrase.

3. During the oral examination, each candidate will be questioned by a member of the Examination Committee. The questions will be case-oriented and will test the surgical principles in case management prior to, during, and after surgery. Questions will be of a general nature applying to areas of large and small animal surgery. Candidates should be prepared to answer questions covering all areas of surgical practice.

All three portions of the examination must be successfully completed to become certified by the American College of Veterinary Surgeons. Candidates are allowed three attempts to pass all sections of the examination within four years of the acceptance of their credentials.

Failure to successfully complete all three sections of the examination within four years will require reapplication to the Credentials Committee and complete re-examination. Details can be obtained from the Executive Secretary.

A person shall be qualified to serve as a member of the Board if he is a graduate of an accredited or approved college of veterinary medicine and holds an ECFVG certificate, is a resident of this state, and has been licensed to practice veterinary medicine in this state for the five years preceding the time of his appointment. Each member of the Board shall be paid $______ for each day or substantial portion thereof he is engaged in the work of the Board, in addition to such reimbursement for travel and other expenses as is normally allowed to state employees.

Any member of the Board may be removed by the governor after a hearing by the Board determines cause for removal.

2) The Board shall meet at least once each year at the time and place fixed by rule of the Board. Other necessary meetings may be called by the president of the Board by giving notice as may be required by the rule. Except as may otherwise be provided, a majority of the Board constitutes a quorum. Meetings shall be open and public except that the Board may meet in closed session to prepare, approve, administer, or grade examinations, or to deliberate the qualification of an applicant for license or the disposition of a proceeding to discipline a licensed veterinarian.

3) At its annual meeting, the Board shall organize by electing a president, a secretary-treasurer, and such other officers as may be prescribed by rule. Officers of the Board serve for terms of 1 year and until a successor is elected, without limitation on the number of terms an officer may serve. The president shall serve as chairman of Board meetings.

The duties of the secretary-treasurer shall include carrying on the correspondence of the Board, keeping permanent accounts and records of all receipts and disbursements by the Board and of all Board proceedings, including the disposition of all applications for license, and keeping a register of all persons currently licensed by the Board. All Board records shall be open to public inspection during regular office hours. The secretary-treasurer shall give a surety bond to the Board in such sum as the Board may require by rule, the cost of such bond to be paid by the Board.

At the end of each fiscal year, the president and secretary-treasurer shall submit to the governor a report on the transactions of the Board, including an account of monies received and disbursed.

4) All revenues received by the Board shall be accepted by the secretary-treasurer and deposited by him with the treasurer of the state to be credited to an account to be known as the Board of Veterinary Medicine Fund. All expenses of the Board shall be paid from the fund by voucher signed by the secretary-treasurer of the Board, and no part of the state's general fund shall be expended for this purpose. This fund shall be a continuing account and shall not be subject to reversion to the state's general fund, except to the extent that the balance in ther fund at the close of any fiscal year exceeds the Board's current budget by 200%, in which case the excess shall be transferred to and becomes a part of the state's general fund.

5) The Board shall have the power to:

a) Examine and determine the qualifications and fitness of applicants for a license to practice veterinary medicine in the state.

b) Issue, renew, deny, suspend, or revoke licenses and temporary permits to practice veterinary medicine in the state or otherwise discipline licensed veterinarians consistent with the provisions of the act and the rules and regulations adopted thereunder.

c) Regulate artificial insemination by establishing standards of practice and issue permits to persons found qualified by the Board.

d) Establish and publish annually a schedule of fees for licensing and registration of veterinarians. The fee schedule shall be based on the Board's anticipated financial requirements for the year.

e) Conduct investigations for the purpose of discovering violations of this act or grounds for disciplining licensed veterinarians.

f) Hold hearings on all matters properly brought before the Board and in connection thereto to administer oaths, receive evidence, make the necessary determinations, and enter orders consistent with the findings. The Board may require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of papers, records, or other documentary evidence and commission depositions. The Board may designate one of more of its members to serve as its hearing officer.

g) Employ full- or part-time personnel—professional, clerical, or special—necessary to effectuate the provision of this act and purchase or rent necessary office space, equipment, and supplies.

h) Appoint from its own membership one or more members to act as representatives of the board at any meeting within or without the state where such representation is deemed desirable.

i) Bring procedings in the courts for the enforcement of this act or any regulations made pursuant thereto.

j) Adopt, amend, or repeal all rules necessary for its government and all regulations necessary to carry into effect the provision of this act, including the establishment and publication of standards of professional conduct for the practice of veterinary medicine.

The powers enumerated above are granted for the purpose of enabling the Board to effectively supervise the practice of veterinary medicine and are to be construed liberally to accomplish this objective.

Section 5—Status of Persons Previously Licensed

Any person holding a valid license to practice veterinary medicine in this state on the date this act becomes effective shall be recognized as a licensed veterinarian and shall be entitled to retain this status so long as he complies with the provisions of this act, including annual renewal of the license.

Section 6—Application for License: Qualifications

Any person desiring a license to practice veterinary medicine in this state shall make written application to the Board. The application shall show that the applicant is a graduate of an accredited or approved college of veterinary medicine or the holder of an ECFVG certificate. The application shall also show that the applicant is 21 years of age or more, and a person of good moral character and such other information and proof as the Board may require by rule. The application shall be accompanied by a fee in the amount established and published by the Board.

If the Board determines that the applicant possesses the proper qualifications, it shall admit the applicant to the next examination, or if the applicant is eligible for license without examination under Section 8, the Board may forthwith grant him a license. If an applicant is found not qualified to take the examination or for a license without examination, the secretary-treasurer of the Board shall immediately notify the applicant in writing of such finding and the grounds therefor. An applicant found unqualified may require a hearing on the question of his qualification under the procedure set forth in Section 13. Any applicant who is found not qualified shall be allowed the return of his application fee.

Section 7—Examinations

The Board shall hold at least one examination during each year and may hold such additional examinations as are necessary. The secretary-treasurer shall give public notice of the time and place for each examination at least 120 days in advance of the date set for the examination. A person desiring to take an examination shall make application at least 60 days before the date of the examination.

The preparation, administration, and grading of examinations shall be governed by rules prescribed by the Board. Examinations shall be designed to test the examinee's knowledge of and proficiency in the subjects and techniques commonly taught in veterinary schools. To pass the examination, the examinee must demonstrate scientific and practical knowledge sufficient to prove himself a competent person to practice veterinary medicine in the judgment of the Board. All examinees shall be tested by written examination, supplemented by such oral interviews and practical demonstrations as the Board may deem necessary. The Board may adopt and use the examination prepared by the National Board of Veterinary Examiners.

After each examination, the secretary-treasurer shall notify each examinee of the result of his examination, and the Board shall issue licenses to the persons successfully completing the examination. The secretary-treasurer shall record the new licenses and issue a certificate of registration to the new licensees. Any person failing an examination shall be admitted to any subsequent examination on payment of the application fee.

Section 8—License Without Examination

The Board may issue a license without a written examination to a qualified applicant who furnishes satisfactory proof that he is a graduate of an accredited or approved college of veterinary medicine or holds an

ECFVG certificate and who:

1) Has for the five years next prior to filing his application been a practicing veterinarian licensed in a state, territory, or district of the United States having license requirements, at the time the applicant was first licensed, which were substantially equivalent to the requirements of this act or

2) Has within the three years next prior to filing his application successfully completed the examination provided by the National Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners.

At its discretion, the Board may orally or practically examine any person qualifying for licensing under this section.

Section 9–Temporary Permit

The Board may issue without examination a temporary permit to practice veterinary medicine in this state:

1) To a qualified applicant for license pending examination, provided that such temporary permit shall expire the day after the notice of results of the first examination given after the permit is issued. No temporary permit may be issued to any applicant who has previously failed the examination in this state or in any other state, territory, or district of the United States or a foreign country.

2) To a nonresident veterinarian validly licensed in another state, territory, or district of the United States or a foreign country who pays the fee established and published by the Board provided that such temporary permit shall be issued for a period of no more than 60 days and that no more than one permit shall be issued to a person during each calendar year.

A temporary permit may be summarily revoked by majority vote of the Board without a hearing.

Section 10–License Renewal

All licenses shall expire annually on December 31 of each year but may be renewed by registration with the Board and payment of the registration renewal fee established and published by the Board. On December 1 of each year, the secretary-treasurer shall mail a notice to each licensed veterinarian that his license will expire on December 31 and provide him with a form for reregistration. The secretary-treasurer shall issue a new certificate of registration to all persons registering under this act.

Any person who shall practice veterinary medicine after the expiration of his license and willfully or by neglect fail to renew such license shall be practicing in violation of this act. DIRECTORY OF INFORMATION SOURCES

Compiled By:

E. Guy Coffee*
Chairman, Public Relations Committee Veterinary Medical Libraries Section of the Medical Library Association

Introduction

Veterinarians working at or near veterinary schools and other institutions of higher learning have access to well-stocked libraries and their services. However, veterinarians often practice relatively isolated from libraries and from their professional colleagues. Frequently, they do not have ready access to information needed to solve problems and/or to keep abreast with the state of the art. Fortunately, information is available from a variety of sources.

Veterinary Libraries Services

Different informational needs in different situations require different approaches in answering questions. Books, journal articles, colleagues from neighboring practices or at professional conferences and meetings, veterinary school faculty and extension specialists, and diagnostic laboratories are the most commonly consulted resources. Occasionally, public, college, and other community libraries are consulted. Questions these libraries cannot answer from their own resources may be referred to a specialized library. Veterinary libraries have as a common goal: to provide information to veterinary professionals on and off campuses.

In the past, off-campus services used to be restricted—a trend that is being reversed. With appropriate steps, non-affiliated veterinarians can take advantage of a variety of library and information services, especially in their home states. Remember: published information is stored in libraries, and it is libraries' goal to make this information accessible.

Libraries associated with the schools of veterinary medicine offer a variety of services to off-campus clientele. Free service normally includes use of books, journals, and other informational materials on the premises and answering reference questions received via telephone or mail or in person. Cost recovery fees are usually charged for copies of articles, for computer bibliographic searches of literature, as well as for current alerting-selective dissemination of information (SDI). This is a monthly report of current references on a topic that is computer-generated.

Borrowing is generally restricted to holders of borrowers' cards which may be obtained for a fee at some institutions. Requests from out-of-town users for loans of books are honored when submitted via the requestor's public or other library, hence the term inter-library loan. Turn-around time for filling such requests may vary from a few days up to 2 or 3 weeks, including mail transit time.

First-time users and those not familiar with their corresponding libraries should visit their intended library and/or write or telephone to introduce themselves and to learn about the library's policies, services, and charges.

Periodic visits to a veterinary library are encouraged for the opportunity to browse through new books and to scan through journals that are not received at home, and to research intriguing questions.

Besides libraries at veterinary schools, veterinary collections of varying sizes can be found in some college, university, medical, and government libraries, particularly those connected with departments of agriculture and military installations.

The National Agricultural Library provides service to the employees of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and its agencies and assists as a back-up for Land-Grant College and related libraries.

The National Library of Medicine serves as the library of ultimate resort for information requests from health professionals, submitted via their local libraries only when such requests cannot be filled locally or regionally. Reading room, reference and online retrieval services are available to walk-in users.

Guides to Veterinary Literature

The following give an overview of texts, reference works, journals, and other forms of informational materials available to the practitioner and research worker, and suggest how to use them.

Gray D E: Veterinary science. in: Informational sources in agriculture and food science. Lilley G P (ed) London: Butterworths; 1981: pp 418-439. (Presented in narrative form, emphasizing British sources.)

Kerker A E, Murphy H T: Comparative and veterinary medicine; a guide to the resource literature. Madison: University of WI Press; 1973. 308 p $35.00. (Lists 4,600 titles; needs updating.)

Merala M: Veterinary medicine. in: Guide to sources for agricultural and biological research. Blanchard J R, Farrell, L (ed) Berkeley: University of CA Press; 1981: pp 287-307. (Extensive annotated listing of contemporary veterinary publications, with emphasis on current American usage.)

Annuals, Reviews, Symposia

Reading annual and other periodic reviews as well as symposia on topics of veterinary interest will update one's knowledge with a modest amount of time invested. This kind of publication summarizes recent progress in research and practice — something that an informed professional cannot afford to neglect. Such reviews are normally based on published reports from many sources and are synthesized by an expert to provide an updated view for the reader. Three such publications include:

Advances in Veterinary Science and Comparative Medicine, vol 31, 1987 $69.00. Academic Press, Orlando, FL 32887. (Annual compilation of about 10 review articles on topics of active interest, written by invited specialists from the United States and abroad.)

Veterinary Annual. vol. 29, 1987 $36.00. John Wright PSG, Inc, 545 Great Road, Littleton, MA 01460. (Mostly short and a few longer reviews on clinical topics dealing with farm and small animals, written by British authors. Many subjects are updated every few years.)

Veterinary clinics of North America. Equine practice; vol. 1, 1985. $49.00/year (3 issues). Food animal practice; vol. 1, 1985. $36.00/year (3 issues). Large animal practice; vol. 7, 1985. $39.00/year (3 issues). Small animal practice; vol. 15, 1985. $60.00/year (6 issues). W.B. Saunders Co, West Washington Square, Philadelphia, PA 19105. [Each issue is devoted to a group of related topics (symposium), representing reviews of current thinking and practice in the management of disease.]

Veterinary Conferences, Congresses, and Meetings

Attending professional meetings provides one with the opportunity to learn about, and to discuss with colleagues, recent advancements and special problems in practice and research. Meeting with other veterinarians with similar interests (so called invisible college) is perhaps the most effective means of scientific communication, and should be encouraged. The forthcoming conferences and their organizers to be contacted are regularly listed in the Journal of the AVMA under Meetings and in other veterinary journals.

Published proceedings are veritable records of the state of the art, and identify experts in the field. Proceedings books are carried in veterinary libraries and may be borrowed via inter-library loans. Scanning and reading of pertinent parts accomplishes a similar goal as examining reviews and symposia.

Proceedings books of major regularly held national and international conferences are frequently available. Sometimes only abstracts are published. Many state veterinary associations and specialty veterinary organizations publish proceedings of their seminars and conferences also, which can be obtained from associations headquarters, or borrowed from veterinary libraries.

American Animal Hospital Association. Scientific proceedings of the 54th Annual Meeting, March 21-27, 1987, Phoenix, AZ $14.00 ($42.00 non-members). Order from: AAHA, P.O. Box 15899, Denver, CO 80215-0899. The 55th meeting will be held April 16-22, 1988 in Washington, D.C.

Abstracts and Indexes

Potentially the most productive way for finding current, as well as retrospective information, is tracing it through published records of research and practice, listed as references in indexing and abstracting journals. Addresses of authors of articles are provided, making it easy to request reprints of the indexed/abstracted articles. As an alternative for obtaining full texts of articles, publishers of indexes and abstracts provide copies of articles for a fee. The following selection represents those most commonly useful, although there is a large number of other related and specialized titles also available (for further listings see "Guides").

Index Veterinarius. vol 55, 1987. $470.00/year (US price). Order from: Central Sales, Commonwealth Agricultural Bureaux, Farnham Royal, Slough SL2 3BN, UK (Monthly; computerized, based on selections from 1,350 journals and from books, conference proceedings, etc, totaling about 20,000 citations/year.)

Small Animal Abstracts. vol 13, 1987. $90.00/year (US price). Order from the same address as Index Veterinarius. (Quarterly journal covering cats, dogs, and other pets, reporting about 1,200 abstracts/year which were initially published in Veterinary Bulletin and/or other CAB abstracting journals.)

Veterinary Bulletin. vol 57,1987. $370.00/year (US price). Order from the same address as Index Veterinarius. (Monthly listing with abstracts of an average 700 articles/issue, covering veterinary and related literature worldwide. Practical for keeping up with more important current veterinary literature.)

Poultry Abstracts. vol 13, 1987. $185.00/year (US price). Order from the same address as Index Veterinarius. (Monthly lists of about 280 abstracts of articles dealing with all aspects of avian medicine and poultry husbandry.)

International Veterinary Reference Service Update. vol 28, 1987. Large Animal Edition, and Pet Practice Edition. $98.00 for one, or $180.00 for subscribing to both editions. Order from: American Veterinary Publications, Inc, PO Drawer KK, Santa Barbara, CA 93102. (Each monthly update brings about 75 long informative abstracts in each edition, selected for practitioner needs from English language journals.)

Computer Bibliographic Searches

The advent of online literature retrieval systems in the early 1970's brought a powerful and economical alternative to manual searching through indexes, abstracts, and catalogs for bibliographic author and subject information. Specialized data bases provide extensive coverage of veterinary literature of the last decade; they are being used increasingly by veterinarians, usually through librarians as intermediaries. Veterinarians in practice, as well as those without ready access to this service, are welcome to submit requests for searches to veterinary libraries. An average cost is ca $25.00.

Five major data bases in the English language for veterinary medicine are:

AGRICOLA (AGRICultural On-Line Access), produced by the National Agricultural Library, USDA.

BIOSIS (BIOSciences Information Service), known for its printed version Biological Abstracts.

CAB ABSTRACTS (Commonwealth Agricultural Bureau), Online version of Index Veterinarius and Veterinary Bulletin.

SCISEARCH (Science Citation Index), produced by the Institute for Scientific Information, known for its Current Contents.

MEDLINE, the first public online data base, produced by the National Library of Medicine.

Collective experience in veterinary libraries finds CAB ABSTRACTS and MEDLINE to be the most useful, followed by AGRICOLA. BIOISIS and SCI-SEARCH are consulted occasionally for special problems. A comprehensive listing of 113 data banks that contain animal health-related information is given in: International Directory of Animal Health and Disease Data Banks, issued by the USDA National Agricultural Library, November 1982 (USDA-NAL Misc Pub 1423).

In the Information Age upon us, when computer applications are becoming part of everybody's life, veterinarians are beginning to develop the essential skills for the use of computer power. Now it is almost common to own a personal computer for the management of records in veterinary practice, billing, appointment scheduling, inventory, patient records, and analysis. Veterinarians in research have been managing their data via computers for years.

The time is ripe for veterinarians to begin to conduct their own online searches of literature, although presently about 95% of the users of online services prefer to have them done by their librarians.

What is needed to conduct one's own searches? Some equipment; authorization (password) to access appropriate data systems; basic training, and knowledge of the costs involved.

Equipment. A computer terminal with a modem or acoustic coupler (a device that translates acoustic into digital impulses), and a separate telephone line for connection to an intermediary communications network such as TELENET and TYMNET. ($11.00/hr). Two kinds of terminals are used for online searching: a keyboard connected with a video display terminal (monitor) for viewing, or a keyboard with a printer (for printing). Viewing and printing functions can be combined advantageously to have both.

A printer terminal with a built-in acoustic coupler can be purchased for as little as $1,000.00. Terminals are manufactured by many companies; advice on selection can be obtained from data base vendors, consultant librarians, or reputable dealers.

Many microcomputers or personal computers, such as used by hobbyists and/or some veterinary practitioners, can be used satisfactorily, but they will require a modem and a serial interface to connect the computer to the modem, costing about $450.00. Sets not equipped with a printer will need a printer, costing $300.00 and up, to avoid manual transcription from the monitor. Dial-up terminals can be leased for $40.00 to $100.00/month. It is important that the terminal, modem, and microcomputer meet data base vendors compatibility requirements: check!

Basic training is offered by both multiple data base vendors in multiple locations around the United States and Canada at frequent intervals. BRS charge is $95.00 for full day, and $55.00 for half day training. DIA = LOG charges $125.00 for full day. Inquire for dates and locations near you!

Authorization (password) to access the desired data bases is obtained from producers of individual data bases or major online vendors. It is simpler to deal with a vendor because they all handle many data bases and are better set up for customer services, including training.

CONSULTANT is a computer-assisted diagnosis and information service that was developed by Dr. Maurice White and Mr. john Lewkowicz at Cornell University and is available through Cornell University. The associated Information Service described below was developed by Mrs. Suzanne Whitaker and Dr. White DIAGNOSIS - CONSULTANT contains information on and literature citations for almost 6,000 diseases of dogs, cats, horses, cattle, sheep, goats, and pigs. It's used by hundreds of veterinarians across north America. For each disease there's a brief description, a list of citations, and the clinical signs that might be seen. The clinician or student can ask for a list of the diseases that might cause a clinical sign (or signs) in an animal then look up information on each disease, or can ask for information on a disease directly. The database is updated weekly.

Information Service - the user is linked by electronic mail to the Flower Veterinary Library at Corneel. The library provides a reference service which takes advantage of both this electronic link and the regular review of the clinical literature which keeps the citations in CONSULTANT very current. If the user wants a paper copy of one of the almost 7,000 citations in CONSULTANT or a citation from another source he or she can send electronic mail to the cornell veterinary library to request the citation, which will be copied and mailed. Literature searches are also availalbe. There's a fee to cover costs for these services.

To use CONSULTANT one needs a mode (300 or 1200 baud) and a computer terminal or microcomputer. For an initial fee of $75.00 a user receives a password, a complete step-by-step description of how to use the database, and help over the telephone from the College Computer Facility, if needed. After that, access to the database is a matter of dialing a telephone number to connect with the computer at Cornell University and entering one's password. There's a $12/connect fee, with telephone bills paid by the user. For more information write the above address.

[illegible] Food Animal Residue Avoidance Databank (FARAD) is a pilot [illegible] funded through the USDA Extension Service. It represents a [illegible]ffort to compile into a single source large amounts of information [illegible]ent to the prevention of tissue residues of drugs and other chemicals used in livestock production. FARAD is a computerbased system consisting of six major databases. These data files include: (1) proprietary information on all pharmaceutical products approved for use in food animals in the U.S. The information includes product formulation, withdrawal periods, indication for use, directions, and warning statements; (2) physicochemical information on more than 200 chemicals contained in the databank; (3) regulatory information pertaining to tolerance and action levels of chemical residues in animal products and allowable concentrations of drugs in feed; (4) pharmacokinetic rate and volume constants pertinent to residue depletion moeling in a variety of species. More than 11,000 pharmacokinetic records currently comprise this database. (5) Summary information on educational materials developed undder the USDA's Residue Avoidance program; and (6) bibliographic citations to which all of the information contained in the databank is referenced.

All of the information in FARAD is currently available through 3 regional access centers in the U.S. Although computerized, the FARAD system was designed to be an expert mediated system with only FARAD personnel having direct access for prediciting residue depletion times but is not itself capable of making usch predicitions.

Trained personnel at the regional Access Centers will respond to each request for information on a case by case basis. FARAD telephone liens will be open from 8:00 AM to 5:00 PM Monday through Friday at the following telephone numbers:

Eastern U.S.	904/392-4085
Midwestern U.S.	217-333-3611
Western U.S.	916/752-7507

A new service that was started in 1986. The database is call VET NET and is the online version of The Quarterly Index, which indexes the literature from 23 of the most popular veterinary journals. The online connect cost is $36.00/connect hour. There is a one time sign up fee of $300 which includes training, documentation, and update material.

Also, there is a separate database is designed to give specific information on laboratory tests, treatment protocols, and various procedures widely used in veterinary medicine. There are more data bases being developed, one of which is a drug formulary.

The National Library of Medicine's MEDLARS system makes available for online searching over 20 biomedical databases to librariuans, health tprofessionals, and others. Last year NLM developed a frontend, user-friendly, software package for simple, direct access to the NLM computer. Called GRATEFUL MED, this software package facilitates access to the NLM computer for anyone with an IBM PC or IBM compatible microcomputer with a HAYES Smartmodem or completely compatible modem. GRATEFUL MED's user-friendly, searching is currently available for MWDLINE, its backfiles, and CATLINE, two of MEDLARS online files. MEDLINE includes bibliographic information on articles indexed from sixty veterinary journals. CATLINE contains records for books and serieals in the NLM's collection. An expert search mode on GRATEFUL MED is available for accessing other databses on the MEDLARS ELHILL saystem and for accessing PDQ. Generally, the average cost of a search on MEDLINE and many of the other files costs several dollars.

GRATEFUL MED costs $29.95 (plus $3.00 shipping and handling). Order from the National Technical Information Service, U.S. Department of Commerce, 5285 Port Royal Road, Springfield, VA 22161.

Films and videotapes in the American Veterinary Medical Association Audiovisual Library are distributed by Modern Talking Picture Service free of charge to AVMA and student AVMA members, constituent associations, veterinary medical associations, auxiliaries, colleges and departments of veterinary medicine, animal technician training programs, and armed forces veterinary medical units in the United States. Beginning in 1987 the videotape continuing education holdings of the library have been substantially augmented by a grant from Hills Pet Products, Inc.

LOAN POLICY

This catalog is divided into two sections:

GENERAL INTEREST: These titles are suitable for public presentations to school groups, agricultural organizations, pet owners, and others interested in veterinary medicine and animal health.

TECHNICAL AND SEMI-TECHNICAL: These titles are primarily for use in colleges of veterinary medicine and for continuing education of graduate veterinarians, although some can be used for programs involving knowledgeable livestock producers including 4-H and FFA members, Explorer Scouts in veterinary science posts, and other special-interest groups.

Excessive delays and expenses have made it impossible to ship films and videotapes outside of the United States. IN CANADA, prints of Planned Pethood, A Day in the Life of a Large Animal Practitioner, The Small Animal Practitioner, The Zoo Veterinarian, Today's Veterinarian, Tomorrow's Veterinarian, The Public Service Veterinarian, Rabies, and I've Got to See the Doctor, Laboratory Animal Medicine, The Extension Veterinarian, The Deadly Sting, A Horse of Her Own, and Welcome Neighbor are available through Modern Talking Picture Service offices in Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia. No other AVMA titles are available for use outside the United States.

"After the Storm, the Promise"

"After the Storm, the Promise" by Margaret Keane, an internationally known artist who is renowned for her portrayal of wide eyed and wondrous children. Margaret, an animal lover who has long been aware of the plight of endangered species, has created a series of paintings designed to bring the needs of the beautiful animals to public attention. While a departure in subject matter, the Keane eyes remain the central feature.

Reproduction of this oil on canvas was made possible through Center Art Galleries-Hawaii, and is available as a limited edition lithograph.
